Johnson-Rossmiller Wedding

Phyllis Elaine Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar H. Johnson of Gully became the bride of Mr. Duane D. Rossmiller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Duard Rossmiller, of Great Falls, Mont. on Saturday evening, Dec. 29th, at 8:00 p.m. The Rev. Ralph Chelsen officiated at the double ring ceremony in the presence of approximately 175 friends and relatives amid a winter setting and lighted candelabra. Nuptial music was played by Beverly Bergh of Moorhead, friend of the bride. Barbara Bergh of Moorhead, friend of the bride, sang, "O Promise Me" before the ceremony and "The Lord's Prayer" as the couple knelt at the altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a floor length gown of imported Chantilly lace and nylon tulle over alluring bridal satin. The Juliet bodice was molded of the softly flowering lace in the exquisite perfection of frosted simplicity. A pencil embroidered design framed the sheer yoke of illusion which was accented with a mandarin collar. Her long sleeves tapered gracefully to points over her hands. The billowing skirt of nylon tulle was a masterpiece enhanced charmingly with cascading panniers of the lace which formed the full-hooped belled skirt. Her veil of imported silk illusion was softly draped to an Empire coronet with pasteled sequins and bridal seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of red roses and white carnations fashioned in a heart shaped form of net and ribbon with white streamers. Her only jewelry was white pearl earrings.

For travel Mrs. Rossmiller wore a two-piece brown wool suit with white and brown accessories. Her corsage was a lavender orchid. The couple are making their home in Gully where Mr. Rossmiller is employed.

The Bennetts live here. That's Grandmother Bennett's Bible on the window sill, and the whole family goes to the church across the snow covered field. John Bennett works in the local bank. Martha, his wife, is president of the PTA, and they have three lively children. Grandmother Bennett has been living with them for the past couple of years, since she broke her hip. She can't always get to church in wintertime and that's why she calls this her window. When she can't be in church, it helps to be able to see it.

To her, the church steeple represents a great many things, and brings back many memories. Her son was married in that church. Her husband was buried from it. Her grandchildren were christened in it.

The Church has helped her to bear grief, in hours of sorrow; and it has seemed to put a benediction upon her happiness, in times of joy. Most important of all, whatever the occasion, whatever the crisis . . . the Church has always been there.

To Grandmother Bennett, the most comforting thing in the world is knowing that it always will be there.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Top Click of the New Car Season

Want to take the wheel of the car that's winning raves from Coast to Coast and back again?

Then take the wheel of a 1957 Buick and try the sparkling-est new performance team in all autodom.

Here, with just a judicious touch of foot to treadle, you get response so obediently instant, so liquid smooth, and so full range in "Drive"—that you've never in your life felt anything like it.

Know what else?

Folks like the way this new kind of performance comes dressed in sleek and glamorous styling that's fresher than tomorrow's news.

They like the new ease of handling, the new steadiness of cornering, the way stops are always on the level no matter how quickly you use the brakes.

Fact is, folks like everything about the newest Buick yet—the car that's fast becoming the biggest hit of the new car year—and you will, too. Come on in and try it this week. We'll have the red carpet out for you.

*New Advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflow is the only Dynaflow Buick builds today. It is standard on Roadmaster, Super and Century—optional at modest extra cost on the Special.

SAFETY REMINDER
In fast-moving traffic on turnpikes, parkways and freeways, keep a good distance from the car in front—and a little more for good measure. That way you, and every driver behind you, get a bigger margin of safety for braking action.

Prominent Dairyman Killed in Collision Northeast of Holt

Arne Rantanen, 45, prominent Middle River dairyman and Brown Swiss breeder, died about 9 p.m. Friday in Northwestern hospital here, from injuries received in a school bus-truck collision at Ringbo corner four miles east and three miles north of Holt at the intersection of county aid roads 43 and 22.

Rantanen was the driver of a pickup truck headed south which was involved in a collision with a Newfolden school bus driven by Louis Farstad, who was going west toward Newfolden at the time the accident occurred.

According to Milan Sorenson, Marshall county sheriff's deputy, the truck was thrown into the ditch by the impact. The bus started to roll over on the roadway but finished its roll in the ditch on top of the Rantanen pickup.

Rose Skyberg, 16, one of two passengers on the bus, was also brought to Northwestern hospital suffering from chest injuries. The other passenger, Carol Davidson, 15, was not hospitalized and suffered only minor bruises and cuts.

The Warren sheriff's office reported no charges have been made against Farstad but investigation is still in progress and charges, if any, will follow on completion.

Arne Rantanen was born in Ironwood, Mich., the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Rantanen, Aug. 18, 1911. They moved to the Middle River vicinity when Arne was a year old and he has been a resident there all his life.

He is survived by Mrs. Rantanen, the former Elizabeth Kruger, whom he married in Warren, Minn., May 11, 1945; four daughters, Mary, Donna, June and Jane, and a son, Arne O. Rantanen.

He is also survived by five brothers and two sisters.

Funeral services have been arranged by the Carlson-Collins Funeral Home in Middle River and will be held Tuesday, Jan. 15 at 2 o'clock in Middle River, with the Rev. C. O. Hanson and Rev. Reinhard Pederson officiating.

He will be interred at the Finnish Lutheran cemetery in Middle River.

A woman and her teen-age daughter perished in a fire in Bagley early Sunday when they were trapped in a burning confectionery store.

The woman's husband survived the fire, but was hospitalized for shock after he was blown out of the front door of the building by an explosion.

Three businesses were destroyed by the blaze as volunteer firemen fought the flames in bitter cold. The temperature was 30 degrees below zero.

Day, 55, who suffered face burns, said he and his wife were awakened about 6 a.m. yesterday by the smell of smoke.

When he got into the store, there was an explosion which Day said "practically blew me out the front door."

Authorities believe the blast came when flames reached a hot water heater in the rear of the building.

Mrs. Day and Sharon apparently were trapped by the exploding heater.

Their bodies were discovered later in the rear of the burned out store. They were side by side near a door leading to the front of the building.

Day was taken to a neighbor's home for first aid and then hospitalized at Bagley. He has been in poor health for several years. His daughter was graduated from Bagley high school in 1956.

The fire destroyed a two-story tavern operated by Leonard Rognlien and a one-story building housing a drugstore owned by Frank Martin. All were wooden buildings.

Passenger Service From Twin Cities to Winnipeg Restored

As a result of the settlement of the Canadian Pacific Railway strike Friday, for the time being at least, schedules on the Soo Line are fast returning to normal, it was announced this morning by E. A. Hamerski, division superintendent here.

He stated that passenger trains Nos. 9 and 10 started operating all the way to Winnipeg Saturday night, instead of stopping at Noyes on the border. Freight schedules, he added, also will be back on a normal basis within the next day or two.

Canada's Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent announced the settlement—a temporary one—to the House of Commons. Railway and union chiefs began immediately getting crews and equipment back into operation.

A commission of three judges will report no later than next Oct. 1 on the issue of the use of firemen on diesels. It was the railway's plan to eliminate firemen helpers gradually from diesel locomotives that brought on the strike.

The announcement of the government sponsored settlement followed three days of meetings between St. Laurent and company and union officers.

The eventual settlement appeared to be closer to the union's views than to those of the railway which closed down its transcontinental operations when the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen took its 3,000 members off the job.

About 70,000 employes of the railway were left idle by the shutdown. Other thousands were laid off across the country in industries depending on Canadian Pacific for transportation.

The major issue was whether the three-judge commission's report should be binding. The company wanted the report to be binding. The union was opposed.

Parents Save Children from Blaze in Home

Mrs. Kenneth Ranum Hospitalized with Burns Early Friday

Mrs. Kenneth Ranum received treatment in Northwestern Hospital Friday for first and second degree burns on her back, sustained shortly after 6 o'clock that morning when she rescued her eight-months-old child from a fire that broke out in the Ranum apartment on the second floor at 201½ Tindolph av. S.

Awakened by smoke and heat from the blaze, Mrs. Ranum crawled on the floor thru the smoke and fire to a rear bedroom, where she rescued the baby, while her husband picked up their two-year-old child.

They took the children to the home of a neighbor, following which Ranum went back and roused the Wallace Heston family, living on the first floor. Mrs. Ranum was taken to the hospital for treatment, and she was reported as being in good condition Friday afternoon. She was released from the hospital Sunday.

The fire department was summoned to the scene of the blaze, and extinguished the flames after damage of several hundred dollars had been caused to the structure, owned by Mrs. Palmer Gordon of Kalispell, Montana.

The Ranums had no insurance on their household goods, and there is little salvage, according to Fire Chief Roy Langevin. The fire is believed to have originated from garments hanging near the stovepipe leading from the oil heater.

LaVerne Holmaas And James Bolin Wed December 15

Miss LaVerne Mae Holmaas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andy Hjelle of Holt, became the bride of James T. Bolin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bolin of Superior, Wis., Saturday evening, December 15 in Zion Lutheran church of this city. The double ring ceremony was performed by Pastor Walter M. Pedersen.

A prelude of nuptial organ music was played by the church organist. Miss Connie Dubbert of Grand Forks, friend of the bride, sang "Crown With Thy Benediction" preceding the ceremony and "The Lord's Prayer" while the couple knelt at the altar.

The bride, given in marriage by her step father, wore a floor-length gown of ivory taffeta featuring a sabrina neckline and short sleeves. Her veil was held in place by a crown of ivory pearls. She carried a bouquet of red and white carnations on a white Bible, and wore a double-strand pearl and rhinestone necklace, gift from the groom.

Miss Charlotte Thompson of Grand Forks, close friend of the bride, was maid of honor and wore a red taffeta gown styled identically to that of the bride. Bridesmaids were Miss Arlene Wenser of Grand Forks, a former roommate, and Miss Sandra Holmaas of this city, cousin of the bride. They wore identical green taffeta gowns. Junior bridesmaid was Carolyn Sannes of Holt. She also wore a green taffeta gown. They all carried red poinsettias with holly leaves, and wore pearl chokers and earrings, gifts of the bride.

PURDY'S THIEF RIVER FALLS

Nine Local Airmen at Grand Forks Meeting

A large delegation of Air Force reservists from the Thief River Falls area was in attendance at the first meeting held by Flight A, 9749th AFRes squadron in Grand Forks Friday.

Nine officers and airmen from the city drove to the meeting. This number represents approximately half those who belong to the Air Force reserve or are now being processed for membership in the reserve.

The Thief River Falls flight, when organization is complete, will consist mainly of younger airmen who have an obligation to serve a stated length of time in the reserve to satisfy their military service requirements, along with a smaller number of World War II reservists.

The roster, when complete, is not expected to be as topheavy with officers as are some units in larger cities.

Capt. Homer E. Sondreal, Flight A commander, Grand Forks, was very pleased with the turnout from Thief River Falls Friday and said a flight could probably begin conducting regularly scheduled meetings in Thief River Falls early in February, depending on the speed with which prospective members of the proposed flight are processed through the Air Force reserve center in Minneapolis.

Once this is completed and it is ascertained there are enough members to maintain attendance minimums, the local group will receive flight designation, a commander will be named and meetings will be scheduled.

In addition to conducting general training sessions, the new Thief River Falls flight will probably organize a group of airmen, holding Airman-first-class, rank, or better, into a special training course, for which trainees would receive one day's pay for each training period.

Enough qualified airmen have already joined the proposed new flight but furthur organization of such a group will be delayed until the organization of the general training unit is complete, later this year, Captain Sondreal said.

Although the new Thief River Falls flight will start with about 20 men regularly attending meetings, it is expected that more and more men will join the flight as they are discharged from the Air Force. Men who are discharged with a reserve obligation are required to participate in such reserve training, according to Captain Sondreal.

Creameries Growing Fewer and Bigger, 'U' Farm Economists Say

Minnesota butter-making plants are getting larger and fewer, according to a study by agricultural economists at the University of Minnesota.

In the current issue of "Minnesota Farm Business Notes," a University publication, Economists E. Fred Koller and Arvid C. Knudtson point out that the number of creameries declined from 874 in 1938 to 550 in 1955—a reduction of 37 percent.

During the same period, the average annual butterfat receipts of these plants increased 78 percent—from 307,000 pounds in 1938 to 545,000 last year.

While smaller creameries have been going out of business, the number of larger plants is on the increase. From 1938 55, the number of plants with annual receipts of a million pounds of butterfat or more increased from 28 to 58. Plants with annual receipts of less than 100,000 declined 64 percent.

Koller and Knudtson list several reasons for this shift.

Better roads and trucks have brought increased competition from larger and more efficient plants, leaving smaller creameries with a volume too small for profitable operation. Other small plants lost when farmers shifted from selling separated cream to whole milk.

In other areas, farmers shifted from dairying to cash crops and other livestock during and shortly after World War II. That left some creameries with receipts too small to continue operating. In some cases, small plants closed down because they couldn't afford modern equipment necessary to meet sanitary requirements. Other small creameries have consolidated.

The trend toward larger creameries has been encouraged by the fact that as volume goes up, cost per pound of butter produced goes down. In a recent University study, it cost 7.33 cents to produce a pound of butter in 6 butter plants with an annual average butter output of 165,000 pounds. On the other hand, plants producing 2 to 3 million pounds of butter every year had average production costs of 2½ to 3 cents per pound.

Scholarships Are Offered by Sister Kenny Foundation

Scholarships for additional post-graduate training in the techniques of total rehabilitation are again being made available by the Sister Elizabeth Kenny Foundation to qualified registered nurses and physical therapists, it was announced by Marvin L. Kline, National Executive Director.

Successful candidates for the course, beginning March 25 at Elizabeth Kenny International Training Center in Minneapolis, will be trained in the techniques of total rehabilitation not only for polio, but other neuromuscular and neuoskeltal disorders as well, and in management of polio from onset to maximum recovery, according to the techniques of the late Sister Kenny.

The course opens the way for nurses and physical therapists who seek new horizons and advancement in their professions, Mr. Kline said.

Crookston Seeks Branch of 'U' M.

Meeting Will Be Held at N. W. School Tuesday

The University of Minnesota board of regents Friday discussed a proposal to set up a new university branch at Crookston.

The suggestion was contained in a letter circulated by the Northwest Educational Improvement Assn. at Crookston. It urged 125 "key people" to attend a meeting Jan. 15 at the university's Northwest School of Agriculture, Crookston.

At this meeting a proposal will be discussed to set up a two-year arts college and vocational agriculture branch.

President J. L. Morrill of the university said, "The big question, if this crystallizes, will be: Do the regents wish to accept the idea of establishing junior college branches?"

Explorer Scouts Meet Wednesday

Boys 14 or Older Asked to Meeting in VFW Hall

Boys interested in joining a new explorer scout post will meet upstairs in the V. F. W. rooms Wednesday, Jan. 16, at 7:30. The boys interested in the different activities offered will form into crews, such as rifle teams, hot rods, archery, and the rest of the activities offered.

The boys must be at least 14 years of age and the registration fee is 50c. The success of this program will depend on the interest shown by the boys.

Explorer activities are mature and challenging, with adult responsibilities, with a preview of the youth's role in the world of tomorrow.

Exploring supplies rugged he man adventures on land, water and air and requires that boys be fully able to meet any emergency.

Man has one consolation—he can avoid a lot of fool taxes he has been imposing on himself.

Crookston Man Is Sentenced for Operating a Still

Three men, arrested on a rented farm near Crookston, were sentenced to prison Thursday for illegal possession of an unregistered still.

Judge Dennis F. Donovan, in St. Paul federal court, sentenced Maurice Chouinard, 21 Crookston, and James T. Vaughan, 27, Williamsburg, Va., to a year and a day imprisonment. Each was also fined $10.

William T. Douglas, 18, Williamsburg, was sentenced to 10 months in prison and was fined $10.

The three were arrested in a raid on the farm last Oct. 3. Officers said they found five barrels of mash and a 200-gallon still.

That devastating blonde, Marilyn Monroe, is back in town, as the center of interest in "Bus Stop," Twentieth Century-Fox's sparkling CinemaScope version of the famed Broadway comedy hit. Film opens next Sunday at the Falls Theatre.

Marshall Co. Board Headed by Roy Edman

Marshall county board of commissioners started off 1957 Tuesday with what was nearly a two-day session including election of officers, appointment of committees and transacting other business which necessarily comes before the initial meeting; the Warren Sheaf reports.

Due to flood conditions last year, four bridges in the county will have to be rebuilt at a cost of $10,500 in 1957. The board voted to ask the state of Minnesota for an allotment of $20,250 to assist in financing the project.

Two of the bridges to be rebuilt are over the Tamarac river on CAR 50 and CAR 31 southeast of Stephen, one is over the Middle river on CAR 40 northeast of Newfolden, and the other is over a drainage ditch on CAR 41 in New Solum township.

Roy Edman was elected chairman of the board for the 1957 term with John Rapacz named vice chairman. Mr. Edman, commissioner from the second district, succeeds Andrew Korgen of the fourth district as chairman.

The board voted to appropriate $150 for the Red River Development association for "advertising the agricultural resources of Marshall county."

Warren Sheaf was again named the official publication for the county on basis of bids received. E. L. Holmlund, publisher of the Marshall County Banner at Argyle, was awarded the second publication of the county financial statement. The statement will also appear in the Stephen and Middle River papers. Legal rates will be paid for various publications.

Wage scale for federal aid secondary highway projects was set at $1.50 per hour for skilled labor, $1.25 per hour for intermediate labor and $1.00 per hour for unskilled labor, the same as for 1956.

Archie Eisenrich of Donaldson was again named county weed and seed inspector for the county at a wage scale of $100 per month for a nine-month period.

Renamed to the Marshall county extension committee were Carl Adolphson of Argyle, district 3, Chester Larson of Excel township, district 5, and Sophus H. Bjertness, member of the county board.

Depositories for county funds were designated as the State Bank and People's State Bank of Warren, Farmers State Bank of Stephen, Argyle State Bank, Middle River State Bank, Marshall County State Bank of Holt and Midland National Bank of Minneapolis.

Dairy Day Group Meets January 24

Annual Session Set for 2 p. m. in C. of C. Room

The annual meeting of the Northwest Dairy Improvement association will be conducted in the Chamber of Commerce room in the basement of the municipal Auditorium Thursday afternoon, January 24, at 2 o'clock, Stuart McLeod, president, stated today.

Directors will be elected, and preliminary plans discussed for the annual Northwest Dairy Day in Thief River Falls next June, held under the sponsorship of the association.

Guest speaker is scheduled to be Lew Conlin of Minneapolis, manager of the Minnesota Dairy Industry committee and originator of Dairy Day here.

McLeod stated that all persons who contributed in any way to the success of past dairy days are invited to attend the annual meeting.

President Warns of Inflation Peril

Asks Public Cooperation in State of Union Address

President Eisenhower summoned the American people Thursday to stand "vigilant guard" against everthreatening inflation at home and the menace abroad of "armed imperialistic dictatorship."

Reporting to Congress and the country on the State of the Union at this moment in history, Eisenhower urged business and labor leaders to "think well on their responsibility to the American people" and go easy on price and wage boosts that could increase inflationary pressures.

"The national interest," he said, must take precedence over temporary advantages which may be secured by particular groups at the expense of all the people."

While the pursuit of human liberty, welfare and progress "has brought us to an unprecedented peak in our economic prosperity," the President said, the danger of inflation "is always present."

On the international scene, he said, the existence of a strongly armed imperialistic dictatorship is a continued threat to the security and peace of the free world and "thu to our own." America, he said, cannot stand "alone and isolated."

Family Life to Be Conference Topic Here January 23

A family life conference for members of the extension home program in Pennington county will be held on Wednesday, January 23. The conference is held each year to help homemakers to better understand their family relationships, County Home Agent Marge Olsen announced today.

"Developing Family Sharing and Planning" is the conference topic. Charlie Martin, extension family life specialist, will be guest speaker, and will also conduct a question and answer discussion.

Leaders from the county's homemaker groups as well as pastors, and professional people who work with families have been invited to attend.

Purebred Livestock Sale at Winter Shows Set for Feb. 28, Mar. 1

The Red River Valley Livestock association will hold its annual two-day sale of registered livestock on Thursday, February 28, and Friday, March 1, in connection with the Red River Valley Winter Shows, Crookston, February 25-March 1. The sale will be conducted in the Winter Shows sales pavilion.

According to D. Reimer, secretary of the livestock association, 196 animals have been consigned by Minnesota and North Dakota livestock breeders of the Red River Valley. In the beef cattle division, 58 head have been consigned. Herefords predominate this class with 18 bulls and 16 females; Shorthorns are next with 9 bulls and 10 females; and 3 bulls and 2 heifers represent the Aberdeen Angus breed. Twenty head of dairy cattle have been consigned, including 9 Holsteins, 7 Milking Shorthorns, 3 Brown Swiss and 1 Guernsey heifer.

Columbia sheep outnumber all other breeds in this division, with 17 ewes consigned; Hampshires follow with 12 ewes; Suffolks with 8; and the Shropshire breed is represented by 5 ewes. This makes a total of 42 ewes consigned to the open class sale.

In the hog division, 47 gilts will be offered for sale, consisting of 10 Yorkshires, 10 Duroc Jerseys, 9 Berkshires, 8 Chester Whites, 5 Hampshires, and 5 Minnesota No. 2 females.

4-H Club and F. F. A. members will be given an opportunity to purchase livestock at a Futurity sale held in conjunction with the open class sale described above. Livestock breeders will offer to these girls and boys a total of 29 head of beef and dairy heifers, ewes and gilts. Consignments to date are as follows: 6 beef heifers, 7 dairy heifers, 9 gilts, and 7 ewes. The Futurity sale is sponsored by the Red River Valley Livestock Association in an effort to assist young girls and boys to get started in the livestock industry. The only buyers eligible to purchase animals in the Futurity sale are active or potential members of a 4-H or F. F. A. organization.

Clover Festival Slated at Roseau

The annual Clover Festival will be held at Roseau on Friday and Saturday, February 1 and 2, according to Marshall County Agent Erling Weiberg. Reports on the legume research work done in 1956 will be reported on by University of Minnesota research workers at the city hall, starting at 10:00 a.m.

Centennial Group in Marshall Will Compile History

Three Marshall county district historians were named and County Historian Lloyd Melgard of Warren issued instructions and suggestions for the collection of historical material Monday night at Newfolden. The group met with the steering committee of the Marshall County Statehood Centennial committee at the Newfolden school.

The steering committee voted that the president appoint a committee to study and make recommendations of goals and achievements the group should work toward. Erling Weiberg, secretary of the committee, was named temporary publicity chairman until an appointment is made.

Elaborating on the duties of the district historians, Mr. Melgard stated that each district should be broken down possibly to a township level in an effort to blanket the county to secure interesting stories of early pioneers and their way of life.

A request for pictures was also made with Mr. Melgard asking that any pictures turned over to the historians be plainly marked on the back with the owners name and the identification of the picture.

He suggested securing humorous, educational, sad and informative incidents of early Marshall county to illustrate the ways our forefathers lived and of phases of life that are now obsolete. Histories of organizations should not be overlooked, he said.

Named as district historians so far are Henry Sands of Alvarado, second district; Alfred Olson of Argyle, third district; Mrs. Ed. Stennes of Strandquist, fourth district. First and fifth district historians remain to be named.

The part of the body some people talk with is generally too big for the part they think with.

4-H'er of the WEEK

ELINOR GUSTAFSON

A skill in sewing is a real gift, and when this skill is developed in the early teens, then this gift is even more valuable. During the teens, clothes are especially important, and when a girl sews for herself, she can dress exactly the way she wants to and save her family money as well.

Elinor Gustafson is a good example of a 4-H girl who is skilled at sewing. She is a member of the Wyanriver 4-H Club, and her folks are Mr. and Mrs. Gust Gustafson, who live just east of Hazel.

When you look through Elinor's clothes closet, you find a row of garments which Elinor has made for herself. She has developed an appreciation of fabric, and knows which type of fabric and material look best on her. She uses good sense in planning her garments so they will fit well into her wardrobe.

When Elinor joined the Rocksbury 4-H club in 1949, she did not take clothing, but did enroll in 1950. That year she made 8 garments and saved $11.05. This year Elinor made 15 new garments and remodeled 9 others, saving $31.04. This amount is probably a conservative figure, and could be much higher.

Of the Clothing Project, Elinor has written "Sewing is one thing you can always learn more about. This past year I helped four little girls get started sewing aprons and pot holders for the kitchen and that was a lot of fun. I also sewed a dress for my mother out of puckered nylon. It was a little harder to work with than ordinary materials, but it turned out to be a pretty dress."

Adult Leader
ORVILLE JENSEN

Mr. Jensen has been a leader in the Highlanding 4-H club for four years. When a youth, he was a member of a club in Norden Township for four years and carried the conservation, gardening, Jr. leadership, safety, and home beautification projects. He held the offices of President and Secretary in his club, and many trips and awards were presented to him. They included County Public Speaking Champion, Red River Valley Junior Leadership Award, and County Safety Demonstration Champion. He was also State Conservation Demonstration Champion.

Mr. Jensen was born on April 1, 1925, in Minneapolis. He is now employed as the Elementary Principal in the Goodridge School System. He has also taught in Roseau county and has spent three years in the service. He is an extension instructor from the Bemidji State Teachers College, a member of Delegate Assembly of the Minnesota Education Association, member of the Executive Board of Elementary Principals, Northern Division, MEA. An active man in the community, he is advisor for the Future Teachers of America Club, helps with folk dances and recreation in the community of Goodridge, and a member of the PTA.

In regard to his opinions of 4-H he says; 4-H offers unique opportunities in many areas. No other organization permits unlimited participation in vocational training, "helping the folks," recreation, dramatics, speaking, etiquette, etc. The sky is the limit and its yours for the doing!

"A 4-H meeting is a forecast of that community's future. The young people in attendance will be the parents in that community before too many years. If they learn to accomplish things together now, then that community has a health future. The young person who fails to find a challenge in 4-H probably have little to offer his community as an adult.

"I'm always proud to be associated with 4-H work; I wish schools would make more of an effort to correlate 4-H school learning situations."

Family Farm Getting Larger in Minnesota

The family farm isn't disappearing, it's really just getting larger, Farm and Home Week visitors at the University of Minnesota were told Wednesday.

Speaking at a noon convocation on the St. Paul campus, O. D. Jesness, head of the University's agricultural economics department, said that "farms today are more entitled to the designation 'family farms' than those of yesterday."

That, Jesness said, is because there is a modern trend toward fewer hired farm workers than ever. If corporate farming were taking over, there would be more—not fewer—hired workers on farms, he pointed out.

The trend to larger farms is apt to continue, Jesness said, because "many units today are too small for efficient use of modern machinery and technology. Many farms need to grow larger to replace wear and tear on human beings with labor saving machinery.

"Those who would restrict the size of farms by some arbitrary limit overlook the fact that farmers are not standardized. The best guide to desirable farm size is that the farm should fit the capacity and ability of its operator."

Jesness said there was a definite advantage in the recent farm-to-city migration. "Had the trend been halted in 1910 there would be 50 to 60 million people on farms to claim a share of smaller total income than that now divided among 22 million, he pointed out. "Without this migration, we couldn't have developed industries so highly, and automobiles would have been a rarity rather than a necessity."

In most cases, communities gain rather than lose from this migration, he said. "The smaller farm population with larger per capita incomes will provide expanded demand for many goods and services."

We need to develop more agricultural adjustment programs so that we don't have to rely on "warehouse-filling" price supports," Jesness said. "There has been entirely too much emphasis on trying to influence price by price supports," he declared. "We need to shift our efforts to bring agriculture into better adjustment with available markets.

"But that doesn't mean we should put all price supports in the ash can. Sudden removal of them would mean chaos in wheat and cotton markets with heavy carryovers in government hands.

"What we need to do is to bring output into balance with available markets so that we will not have to depend on price supports," Jesness added.

Marge Olsen

Mrs. I. J. Russell called me last week about finishing kitchen cupboards. It seems that this is a good time of the year to have inside work such as wood finishing for your husband to do, when the outside work isn't quite as heavy. I thought this would be a good time then to chat about finishing wood. I would suggest, too, that you pass the paper to your husband right now, so that he too might get real enthused about helping you with your wood finishing.

Three things are important in finishing woods:

1. To have a clean, smooth surface on which to build a finish.

2. To select a finish suitable for the particular wood surface being finished in order to: bring out the beauty of the wood, be easy to maintain, protect the surface of the wood.

3. To have a smooth and satiny finish.

Getting The Wood Ready

If you are finishing new wood, such as is found in unfinished furniture or in constructed furniture, follow these steps:

If nails have been used in the construction of the article you are finishing, countersink the nails and fill the holes with plastic wood, following instructions on the can. Let dry thoroughly before you begin sanding. Use sandpaper and steel wool to secure a clean, smooth surface. Start with number 1 or ½ sandpaper on rough wood, and 0/0 or 1/0 sandpaper on smooth wood. Continue through 2/0 and 3/0 sandpaper. Finish with fine steel wool.

Sand until wood is clean and very smooth.

Tips On Getting A Good Finish

Select the finish to give the qualities you need for the particular piece you are finishing. Some have durability under hard wear. Some are resistant to water, heat and acids. Some are not. Be sure you choose the one having the qualities you need. Use a good quality of finish. Be sure brushes are clean and free from dust before you begin.

Many thin coats build up a more even and smooth finish than a few thick ones. Thin shellac with alcohol and varnish with turpentine. Clean brushes used for each in the thinner. Be sure that the wood surface to which you are applying a finish is smooth and free from dust, lint and sanding. Apply finishes in a room free from dust.

To kill too high a gloss and give your piece of furniture a satiny smooth dull sheen give the last coat a final rub-down: Dip a wet cloth into some boiled linseed oil and then into powdered pumice. Rub with the grain the shine is replaced with a soft sheen. Wipe and polish the whole piece of furniture.

Paste wax may be applied to give finishes a protective coat. It is not necessary with an oil finish.

Getting Ready For The Finish

Before applying a finish you may wish to change the color of the wood by blonding. Use one of the blond stains found at the paint store. Follow directions on the can, or add turpentine to interior white paint in equal amounts. Brush the surface. Allow to stand 15 minutes, then wipe off excess, leaving enough to give the wood a frosted effect. Let dry thoroughly.

You can also change the color by using oil stains. You can get these stains in walnut, maple, oak and mahogany colors. Avoid stains labled "penetrating." Applying oil stain on until wood is color you want. Wipe off the excess stain and let furniture stand until dry.

You might want to use a wood filler to fill up the grain of wood. For oak, secure a paste filler and follow directions on can for applying. For walnut, pine, and mahogany, apply a coat of white shellac thinned 1/3 with denatured alcohol. Maple and birch will not need a filler.

If you wish information on different finishes to use around your home, I would be glad to help you. We have directions for five well-liked finishes; rubbed hot oil, shellac, oil and shellac, varnish, and sealers. Call at the Extension Office if you would like to have a copy of this bulletin.

• • •

If your wood finishing is going to center around the kitchen, you will want to attend our Kichen Tour on Wednesday, February 6. We'll talk about kitchen arrangements and planning.

See you next week!

Wonders Of The World

A recent popular movie introduced some of the spectacular "Wonders of the World." One need not travel the world over to find spectacular wonders-they lie just beyond our windows if only we will see them.

Children have a natural curiosity to unearth wonders and need only encouragement and occasional interpretation to open the door to fascinating experiences. As children look, listen, smell, taste, touch and manipulate they are learning, but they need a well-timed "push" to maintain curiosity and interest and to make their findings meaningful.

Recently several young boys spent an afternoon carefully observing the movements of a frog in a mud puddle. After many attempts, Tom captured the frog and became the envy of the gang. Thrilled with his accomplishment and with the antics of his "very own captive," he hurried home to share it with his mother. Before he could speak, his mother said, "Oh-ish-throw slimy frog away and wash your hands!"

What different attitudes and teaching could have been fostered, had she hidden her dismay and tried to enjoy watching the "frog kicks" and the other frog traits which her son was discovering for himself. Instead, only a downcast expression and regret were visible on Tom's face as his captive swam away with jerky efficiency.

Research, especially in music and art, suggests that early exposures to skills, facts, and appreciation have long-lasting effects upon later attitudes and performances. The young would-be scientists and artists among us are a precious resource; their wonder is a springboard from which may come many of the inventive dives into the unknown.

Both kinds of "wonder" matter. Once the child sees that all of the world's wonders are his for a lifetime; once his own wonder becomes a way of life, then he is well on his way to make his unique contributions and in turn to receive what wonders there are for all to share.

Federal Poultry Inspection Plan Proposed by Thye

Senator Edward J. Thye announced Wednesday that he has joined in introducing a poultry inspection bill in the Senate.

This bill would make mandatory inspection by the Department of Agriculture to prevent the shipping in interstate commerce of poultry products which have been found to be unwholesome, adulterated, or otherwise unfit for human food.

The proposed legislation would also require the stamping or labelling of poultry products which have been inspected and found to be fit for human consumption.

Senator Thye said, "The Minnesota state legislature provided for inspection of poultry processing plant in 1955. The provision for federal inspection of poultry products will complete the assurances that consumers can rely on the quality of poultry products whether they are processed in Minnesota or have been shipped to Minnesota from other states."

QUESTIONS answered for VETERANS

Additional information or assistance on veterans benefits may be obtained by writing or visiting the VA Contact Representatives at the Minot VA Hospital, or the Bismarck or Grand Forks VA offices.

Q—My husband was a World War II veteran who was injured on active duty in March, 1947. He later died of his injury. Would my daughter be eligible for War Orphans schooling?

A—Under the law she would not. The law requires that a World War II veteran's injury or disability must have occurred before December 31, 1946. Your husband incurred his injury after that date.

Q—The effective date of my GI insurance policy was December 31—I understand that my premiums are due on this same date each month. What about those months that don't have 31 days?

A—For the months that do not have 31 days, your preml um is due on the last day of the month.

A—No. This training is available only to disabled veterans who need it to overcome the handicap of their service-connected disabilities. However, those who don't need vocational rehabilitation training may be eligible for Korean GI Bill training.

Members of Fair Board Back from State Convention

O. M. Mattson of Warren Renamed Ninth District Director in Minneapolis

O. M. Mattson, president of the Marshall County Agricultural society and president of the Red River Valley fairs circuit, was reelected Ninth district director of the Minnesota Federation of County Fairs. The election was held at the annual meeting of the group at the Radisson hotel in Minneapolis last Monday.

The local fair board again signed a contract with Marlo Shows, Inc., to supply the grandstand entertainment at the 1957 fair next July, similar contracts having been entered into also by the Norman county and Kittson county fair boards.

Murray Jessen of St. Charles, farmer and member of the Winona county fair board, was elected president. Harold Pederson, extension marketing specialist at the University of Minnesota, resigned as secretary of the organization and was elected vice president.

Clyde E. Kelsey of Wadena was reelected treasurer and Hubert Ransom of St. James was appointed secretary to succeed Mr. Pederson. Ransom resigned as director from the second congressional district upon being appointed secretary and Jesse Olson of Windom was appointed to fill his unexpired term.

Tom Appleget of Coleraine, eighth district, was appointed a director to fill the unexpired term of the late Francis Mullins. Reelected directors were Merle O. Almo of Caledonia, district 1; M. W. Zipdy of Hopkins, district 3; George Berat of Minneapolis, district 5; Robert Wells of Clinton, district 7; and O. M. Mattson of Warren, district 9.

The increase in premiums for 4H and FFA exhibits is one of the most noticeable trends at county fairs the group was told. Minnesota's county fairs raised premium payments to $308,341 last year with $153,268 of this going to 4H and FFA exhibitors.

The 96 county expositions took in $1,581,251 and paid out $1,267,012 in 1956. This compared with income of $1,614,240 and expenses of $1,238,368 in 1955.

Prowler Quint Romps over Bagley 62 to 32; Go to Warren Friday

With lanky center Dave Hanson rolling in five field goals in the first period and adding three field goals and a free throw in the second, the Prowlers piled up a commanding 36 to 18 lead over the Bagley Flyers at the halftime intermission, and then went on to win by a 62 to 32 score in an inter-district game played on the local court.

On Friday night, Jan. 18th, the Prowlers will make the short hop to Warren for a district conference game against the Ponies. And on Saturday night, Jan. 19th, coach Lute Olson will bring his powerful Mahnomen quint here for a game. Mahnomen has been established as the 30th district's ranking team, and a favorite to win the district title.

Friday night's tilt on the local court found the Prowlers in "control" of the game from the opening tip-off. Keith Johnson's two free throws, at the 1:13 mark, chalked up the game's first points. Phil Hanson scored on a lay-up, and Dave Hanson shoved in a rebound and then followed with a tip-in. With 3:34 to play, Louis Holmquist hit on a jump shot to tally Bagley's first points.

The Prowlers moved ahead to a 19 to 6 lead at the end of the first period of play, and held a 30 to 8 advantage midway in the second period.

The Prowlers, with reserves playing much of the time, continued to hold a decided edge in the play in the second half. The Flyers could score but three field goals in the second half, while the Prowlers were racking up seven fielders.

The game's individual scoring honors were taken by the Prowlers' Dave Hanson, who connected for 11 field goals and a free throw. Bagley's Louis Holmquist led the Flyers, and was runner-up to Hanson, with 14 points.

Aliens Reminded to File Addresses During January

The United States Immigration and Naturalization Service reminded all aliens in Minnesota today that only two weeks remain in which non-citizens must file their annual address report as required by law.

Robert L. Woytych, district director at St. Paul, pointed out that address report forms are available at the nearest post office for the convenience of non-citizens required to report their address to the Government each January under a provision of the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952.

He explained that persons found guilty of a willful violation would be subject to a possible fine, jail sentence, and deportation.

Mercury Hits —25 Sunday Morning

Today is Fifth Day of Subzero Temperatures

Thief River Falls residents may get a very short respite from the season's longest cold spell today, according to the KTRF forecast. The break will be welcome, as northern Minnesota has been gripped by the most prolonged siege of extremely cold weather of the winter to date.

Since last Tuesday the thermometer has showed above zero readings on only two days — the high Thursday was 4 above and Friday's high was 3 above. The rest of the period from Thursday through Monday morning featured temperatures on the minus side of the goose egg.

Date	High	Low
Thurs., Jan. 10	4	—13
Fri., Jan. 11	3	—10
Sat., Jan. 12	—12	—19
Sun., Jan. 13	1	—25

The low Monday was a comparatively mild 11 below zero. No precipitation was registered during the period.

The forecast is for slightly moderating temperatures with cloudy skies becoming partly cloudy Monday night. Occasional snow flurries in northern Minnesota late Monday or Monday night. Tuesday will be partly cloudy and colder. Winds will be southwesterly, 15-20, switching to the north, 15-25 mph tonight. Highs will be 5-10 above and lows 0 to 10 below.

The North Central Airlines long-range forecast calls for below normal temperatures the next five days with about .10 inches of precipitation falling as snow.

Cochrane's Rink Defeats Oven's in Curling Tourney

Tom Cochrane's rink, composed of himself as skip, Van Borgen, Orville Engh and Bill Penning, took the measure of John Oven's rink in the main event of the first major bonspiel of the season, held at the fairgrounds ice sheet Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

In the second event Henry Thorson's rink handed down a defeat to the Ed De Lap aggregation. Those on Thorson's rink were Frank Sweet, George Pukari and Robert Benke.

Russ Embury, who reported the bonspiel results, said 18 rinks were entered in the event despite extremely cold weather which prevailed over the weekend.

Embury said there is plenty of room for curlers at the ice sheet in coming events. A comprehensive league curling schedule is published elsewhere in this issue of the Times. The week's activities run from Tuesday thru Friday according to Embury.

Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson

What Did You Think?

That was a fine exhibition of hockey, and skating, that the University of North Dakota freshman team, under the supervision of coach Barry Thorndycraft, provided the meager turnout of senior hockey fans at the Arena on Thursday night. The Sioux frosh, and they made it look easy, defeated a short-handed Thieves club, 9 to 4.

It's no wonder that the Sioux frosh came with such a skating club, for here's a list of the "home towns" of this squad: Bob Peters, goalie; Guy LaFrance, defense; and Ron King, wing, Fort Frances, Ont.; Ed Vidrik, defense and Tom [illegible], wing, Winnipeg, Man.; Al [illegible], defense, and [illegible] Merrifield, wing, Fort William, Ont.; Al [illegible], Edminton, Alb.; Reg Morelli, center, Hamilton, Ont.; Art Miller, wing, Moose Jaw, Sask.; Ed Tomlinson, center, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.; and George Gralton and Ude Bettiol, wings, from Schumacher, Ont. Ralph Lyndon, a defenseman from Winnipeg, was along with the squad, but he is not eligible for freshman play this season. Incidentally, Lyndon, who played hockey in England last season, is a son of Lorne "Windy" Lyndon, who has refereed here a number of times.

Let us have no illusions about it, hockey is a Canadian game. Or perhaps we should revise that statement by saying that with the Americans hockey is a game, but with the Canadians hockey is a business.

That North Dakota freshman team, Canadians all, will, if the mortality rate due to scholastic marks is kept at a minimum, produce a championship contender for the Sioux in a year or two. These boys, and they all appeared mature and experienced, all possessed that distinctive style of skating that earmarks a Canadian. Their mode of skating features a powerful thigh thrust, and this in turn generates great speed and drive. This style of skating contrasts greatly with the "sprinting" or choppy style of skating that is seen so often on American rinks. Joey Poole, the former Prowler all-stater, and now a center at North Dakota, has the Canadian approach to skating, being one of the few Americans that the native-born Canadians appreciate and acknowledge as a skater.

A Big Afternoon

Morris "the Mouse" [illegible], the popular and ever-young veteran of the senior hockey Thieves, had a big afternoon for himself on Sunday, as the locals defeated the Champlain Flyers of Winnipeg, 8 to 4, in an exhibition tilt.

Morris, playing at a defense position, drew a penalty, and it appeared that referee Jack McGill was anti-Mouse in making the call; threw a couple of checks, even hoisting a Flyer into the boarder and scored a goal. For a player who participated in the state's first high school hockey tournament, an invitational affair held at Roseau way back in 1942, that's remarkable.

In the preliminary game played on Sunday afternoon, Carl Wahlberg's defending state champion Roseau PeeWees defeated Paul Bedard's local PeeWees, 8 to 2. It's interesting to watch these PeeWee outfits perform, for that's where the high school teams of next season, and the next season, and the next are being developed. These hockey acorns will grow into sturdy oaks.

Weather Forecast

Indications are that we are due to have a moderate winter from here on in, now that Mack Draper has installed a head-bolt heater in his car. Seriously, though, it was perhaps a prudent and wise investment, for the long-range [illegible] the next month or six weeks' forecast is that below normal temperatures will prevail. This information comes from the New York Times, which gives the explanation that a "trough" has been developed whereby the polar air mass will be funneled down into the Upper Midwest.

If that's so, another trough will be made into the coal bin.

An Interesting Score

An important hockey game, important to Region Seven, and to the hockey fans of the state, too, was played at Eveleth on Saturday night. The game was between the International Falls Broncos and the Golden Bears of Eveleth, and the score was 4 to 2 for Eveleth.

We're not as confident as we were a couple of weeks ago when we picked the Broncos to win the state championship. And, apparently, neither is International Falls.

Of one thing we can be sure, and that is that the Region Seven hockey tournament championship finals, and it could be between the Broncos and the Bears, will be a titanic struggle. Better perhaps, than the state championship finals.

Times classified ads are a sound investment if you have anything to sell.

Cathedral Six Loses to Prowler Team 6-5

Coach John Matchefts' hockey Prowlers twice rallied to overcome two-goal deficits to defeat coach Bill Sullivan's Crookston Cathedral sextet, 6 to 5, in a well-played game at Crookston on Saturday night.

This evening, Monday, the Prowlers will travel to Grand Forks where, on the ice sheet of the Winter Sports Building on the University of North Dakota campus, they meet coach Sergio Gambucci's Grand Forks Central Redskins in a return game. In the previous tilt, a season-opener played here, Grand Forks defeated the locals, 4 to 3.

On Tuesday night, Jan. 15th, the ever-popular and ever-dangerous Williams high school team will meet the Prowlers on the Arena rink in a regional conference game.

Saturday night's game at Crookston found the Blue Wave gaining a 1 to 0 lead in the first period, and increasing that margin to 2 to 0 early in the second period. With Wes Halvorson and Jerry Jorgenson scoring for the Prowlers, the blue-and-gold evened the game at 2-all midway in the period.

With a couple of Prowlers serving penalty time, Crookston, on a pair of quick goals by Mark Laliberte and Dave Bank, moved ahead to a 4 to 2 lead. But before the period's close, Dale Wennberg and Jorgenson had racked up Prowler goals to knot the game at 4-all.

In the third period, Arlan Hjelle recovered a clearing pass and scored a goal to give the Prowlers a 5 to 4 lead; and when Wennberg notched his second goal of the evening, the locals held a 6 to 4 margin. The lead was pared to one goal when Crookston's Paul Charron tallied at the 7:40 mark.

Vocational Education

By Clarence W. Pope

A certain impetus was given to vocational education in Minnesota when the State Legislature passed the law in 1945 which provided for the establishment of area vocational-technical schools about the state. In the language of the act it was intended that it would "more nearly equalize the educational opportunities in certain phases of vocational-technical education to persons of the state who are of the age and maturity to profitably purse training for a specific purpose."

The eight area vocational-technical schools thus far authorized and established in Minnesota are at Mankato, St. Cloud, Winona, Thief River Falls, Duluth, Austin, St. Paul, and Minneapolis. It is thought that a few more schools may be established in certain geographic areas not yet being served.

The essential and prime purpose of all vocational education is to train for work in specific occupations. Since the ultimate and inescapable fact is that all must work to earn a living, vocational training seeks to aid in the process of getting individuals prepared for some particular or specific job by equipping each with the skills, habits, language, methods, and procedures peculiar to that vocation.

All youth should make a choice at the proper time and set up a plan for their training and eventual placement in some type of vocation or job, whether it be professional or vocation in nature. If the former, then he will prepare in high school for his college or university training, and if the latter, he will seek out his vocational choice, take subjects beneficial to his choice, and finally take training in the vocation selected.

The question occurs, who should take vocational training? A complete answer cannot be given but in general it can be said that those boys and girls who have a high interest and enough aptitude and ability for a specific vocational course, with a natural inclination toward the manipulative and practical, probably should enroll. Vocational guidance can help students to a determination of a choice through tests, records, consultations, and the other tools of guidance.

Students of a high mechanical intelligence are needed and wanted in the mechanical trades. Many vocations require a high order of social intelligence, and all require good over-all general intelligence and a willingness to work. And certainly our practical nurses, clerks, office secretaries, typists, stenographers, homemakers, mechanics, operators, agricultural workers, personal service workers, and others all need good mental equipment, tied to good training, to succeed in a competitive market.

The National average of high school graduates who go on to higher education is a regretable 20 percent, with about half of those entering college finally finishing or graduating. For the 80 percent who do not or can not attend college or university, vocational training can be of assistance in helping to make the transition from school to work and self-sufficiency. It is a comfortable position to be in for the high school graduate, when applying for a job and being asked the usual "what can you do?," to be able top roduce some evidence of vocational training — and make good!

Since 80 to 90 percent of high school graduates must eventually earn their living in business, in trades, and in occupations other than the professions, according to statistics, further justification is apparent for more vocational courses for those to whom it becomes terminal education.

In a study made in Minnesota for the decade 1940-1950, and based on the returns of the 1950 United States Census, the percentages of increases and decreases in employment in some of the major occupational classifications of the state show these significant trends:

Clerical and kindred workers	Increase	53.4%
Craftsmen, foremen, and kindred workers	Increase	60.8%
Machine operators and kindred workers	Increase	57.7%
Private household workers	Decrease	49.8%
Farmers and farm managers	Decrease	5.8%
Farm laborers and foremen	Decrease	30.1%

Vocational training must be sensitive to the wants and needs of people, and to the changing conditions of our home, industrial, business, manufacturing, and agricultural fields so that training is done in fields where there are jobs waiting. This leads to the conclusion that vocational education must be adaptive and capable of shifting it's emphasis to meet new and different problems of training necessited by the needs of people in moving to new jobs.

The vocational-technical school attempts to provide training opportunity for several catagories of students. There, first, the regular high school student who is 16 or a junior who has decided that he or she wants training in a vocation or trade. This student may elect to take one-half day of vocational training and one-half day in a program of high school subjects required for the high school diploma. His program will repeat the pattern in the senior year. This schedule will bring him to graduation with 1040 hours of vocational training. He will have earned two high school credits per year of a total of four credits in vocational education. His goal should be to take a post high school year of training in the same vocation, six hours per day, after which he will have accumulated 2160 hours which will make him eligible for the vocational certificate and classification as an advanced apprentice.

Two other groups which the vocational school directs itself toward are the high school graduate or post-graduate and the out-of-school student or drop-out. These people may enroll for training and will take a full day's program of six hours and complete the course in two years or one year, depending upon the course selected.

They also earn the vocational certificate upon completion. Attendance is essentially free for these people to the age of 21 years after which tuition would be charged. Non-residents from out of state also pay tuition charges. A system of school aids help defray the cost of the non-resident's education for those under 21 years. Those over 21 years may enroll for courses by paying the customary tuition charges of the school. This includes veteran's training under the G.I. Bill, the school being approved for this type of training.

Others served by vocational training courses are employed adults who wish to upgrade themselves in the vocation, trade, or business in which they earn their livelihood. These people benefit through evening courses in the fields of agriculture, business and distributive education, homemaking, and the trades. Short unit courses of 10 to 80 hours, generally held in the evening for a couple of hours each session, characterize this type of service. These people must be employed, or temporarily unemployed, in the trade for which they seek training to qualify for enrollment. These courses are announced each year and the offering varies.

Courses in day preparatory training, either now offered or being considered in the new vocational school are auto mechanics (2 yrs.) radio and electronics (2 yrds.), hair dressing and beauty culture (1 yr.) practical nursing (1 yr.), carpentry (2 yrs.), office training and business machines (1 yr), welding (2 yrs), farm shop (arr.) farm management (arr.) Other courses will doubtless be developed when the need and the demand appears.

Another service in education which the vocational school encourages and sponsors are one and two day mechanics clinics, short salesmanship schools, janitorial schools, dairy herd testing metings, itinerant teacher classes for special groups, as well as meetings of general educational interest in the vocations.

Advisory committees, composed of citizens of the community, meet from time to time in connection with vocational courses and programs to aid, advise, and assist in formulating direction to the respective programs. Presently there are advisory committees for the trades, for practical nursing, and for agriculture.

The contributions made to learners by vocational education might be summarized in these points:

1—It results in a higher standard of living through increased earning power.
2—It salvages human resources through the development of people to a higher level of skills and knowledge.
3—It creates and increases the number of self-sustaining and productive citizens with a consequent increase in the nation's wealth.
4—It makes for better all-around citizenship, both in the home and on the job, because of added technical knowledge and skills.
5—It creates right-thinking and self-satisfied individuals, with pride in their workmanship, through personal ability and accomplishment.
6—It contributes to the stability, safety, and defense of the nation through the pool of know-how and skills inherent in the minds and hands of the nation's workers in home, factory, business, farm, mine, defense unit, or other occupation.

As a nation, we are moving into a more and more complex day of tools, machines, electronics, procedures, methods, processes, and applications of inventive genius — all of which requires more training in using, making, servicing, selling, and consuming the end products.

It appears that the vocational schools of the country must provide training for technicians and workers where the requirements are for less than college level education, to supplement the short age of chemists, engineers, and other professional workers. This role they can accept and fill.

Also, the unskilled must be upgraded as the reservoir of jobs for them is about empty, and here, too, the vocational schools have a mission to accomplish.

JUNIOR COLLEGES

A group of Crookston citizens are asking the state to convert the Northwest School of Agriculture into a junior college, to be operated as a branch of the University of Minnesota. Such a change probably would be in the best interests of Crookston, and we have no quarrel with the good people of that community who seek a change that would be advantageous to them. But we are satisfied that the change would not be beneficial to the area that now is being well served by the school and we believe the area interest should have first consideration.

The Northwest School is a highly successful operation in its present form. Best evidence of this is the fact that it is operating at full capacity.

There may come a time when experience will prove that there no longer is a need for a school of this kind in the area. That definitely is not the situation now.

And the proposal that a junior college be operated as a branch of the University of Minnesota involves a question of policy that in itself is highly controversial. We are sure there would be opposition, and some very determined opposition, to the idea of extending University responsibility into the junior college field.

Besides its overall area interest in the work of the Northwest School of Agriculture as it is now functioning, Thief River Falls also has a special interest in the junior college problem.

At the present time there probably is not sufficient need for a junior college in northwestern Minnesota to justify the cost. There is no special need for a junior college at Crookston, which, according to surveys made by competant authorities on needs for higher education, is already being served by a university that is considered to be within reasonable commuting distance.

If the people of Crookston want a junior college they can of course establish one under present laws, as we are privileged to do here at Thief River Falls. Several surveys of northwestern Minnesota agree that Thief River Falls is the proper location for more adequate school facilities when more adequate school facilities are needed.

In the orderly development of such an expanded education program there will be no progress until the state recognizes the need by grants of special aid. And considering the many demands now being made on the state to increase appropriations for services already authorized, we are satisfied that now is not a proper time for the state to assume new obligations.

EQUALIZATION NEEDED

Hats off and a round of cheers to the members of the Minnesota Congress of Parents and Teachers for their recent contribution to enlightenment on the question of state aids for education in the form of a brochure on how public schools in Minnesota are being financed. Along with much other interesting material this pamphlet points up the fact that Minnesota's system of state aids for schools has failed to give due consideration to the need for equalization of educational opportunities.

Under pressure from educators, interested mainly in getting their own salaries raised, our state aids have been boosted pretty recklessly in recent flush years as a pork-barrel division of unexpectedly high returns from the inflation-period taxes. Appeals for the distribution of these aids with greater regard for the needs of equalization have been voices in the wilderness.

But while we are happy to pass along our thanks to the leaders of the state parents and teachers organization for their honesty in recognizing a need that has existed for many years, we know that this recognition in itself is not going to solve the problem. By those who make the decisions the facts have been known for a long time.

And our guess is that in the future, as in the past, the aids will be distributed mainly as a means of making possible another across-the-state salary boost for the educators.

It is quite likely that any increases in aids that are authorized by the legislature in its present session will be distributed largely as basic aids, and the districts that already are extravagant will be encouraged to be still more extravagant.

WISE WORDS BUT —

President Eisenhower pointed to the dangers of inflation in his "State of the Union" message to congress last week, and urged the leaders of industry and labor to recognize the futility of continuing rounds of wage and price increases. But he recommended a program of government spending that is in itself inflationary.

The President said there is a danger that:

> "—requires a firm resolution that the federal government shall utilize only a prudent share of the nation's resources, that it shall live within its means, carefully measured against need alternative proposals for expenditures."

These are brave yords and no one will question either their truth or their wisdom. But there is much room for questioning of some of the proposals that are included in the President's message as necessary expenditures.

It is becoming increasingly apparent that inflation is a problem for which the government will have to assume didrect responsibility. The brakes will not and probably cannot be applied effectively by either industry or labor without government direction, and they certainly will not be applied as long as the government itself has the full weight of its heavy foot on the accelerator.

REPORT from the GOVERNOR

Orville L. Freeman

This week I presented my budget message to the 1957 session of the Minnesota legislature. It contains my recommendations for the conduct of the state's business for the two-year period which will begin on July 1. It is a long message, and is accompanied by a budget document that is even longer. It is complicated—because the state's business is complicated. But I have tried to make it as clear as possible, because I believe that it is important for citizens of Minnesota to understand the business which they, in the last analysis, control.

The Budgeting Process

Months of work, by scores of people, have gone into the preparation of this budget. First of all, each department was asked to present an account of its needs for the coming biennium. In carrying out this assignment, each department head was asked to prepare his budget, not only on the basis of current needs, but in the light of conditions that we can expect in the next few years. Only in this way can we plan intelligently to meet the needs of the future.

Adding up Budget Requests

I know that each department head, in preparing his requests, constantly kept in mind the importance of keeping expenses down as much as possible. Yet when all the budget requests came in, and were added up, the total—as was expected—came to more than I believed could be asked of state revenue at this time. Next came a task that is very difficult for any chief executive. It was necessary for me to ask each department to go over its requests once again, and to cut from its budget a significant amount.

This task is difficult because we know that each request was made in a sincere desire to provide for the people services believed to be beneficial, and in many cases necessary. Yet in order to keep the cost of government as low as possible, every effort was made to request only those items that are essential to the welfare of Minnesota.

The Most Urgent Needs

Certain increases over the amounts in the previous budget are so urgent that they must be allowed. One of these, I believe, is the general increase in salaries of state employees. Studies show that the State of Minnesota is paying its employees less than is paid in this state by private business for comparable work. This situation cannot continue any longer without crippling state services. For if it were to continue, more of our best employees would leave the state service for better jobs, and we would be totally unable to recruit personnel with the training and ability that modern government so badly needs.

Increased state aid to education is another necessity. It is needed because of our constantly increasing numbers of children in school, because of the rising costs of education, and because that state should assume its fair share of the heavy burden now resting on local school districts. Expenditures for education really constitute a sound investment in the future.

I have referred in detail to many other urgent needs in the budget message itself.

Paying The Bill

The other side of the budget consists of a program for raising the revenue needed to pay for state services. Much will be said about this problem in the coming months. I believe that the recommendations presented, after months of study, by the Governor's Tax Study Committee offer us a remarkably good tax program for Minnesota—one that will produce revenue sufficient for our needs and that will at the same time be fair to all taxpayers and will promote a climate favorable to an expanding and more prosperous economy.

Our LAND

Appearing in newspapers of the Minnesota Editorial Association through the cooperation of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service and the University of Minnesota Institute of Agriculture.

Doubles Oat Yields—Oat yields on the Robert Leaf farm near Afton have been increased from 30 to 60 bushels per acre in three years, thanks to liberal fertilizing. Leaf applies fertilizer according to University of Minnesota soil tests. Last year, he contoured 30 acres of rolling permanent pasture. Corn on the contour strips averaged near 80 bushels per acre. Leaf says his increased crop production will help him achieve his goal of feeding 30 high-producing milk cows, reports Clifton Hasley, Washington County soil conservation agent.

Increase Production — Ralph Hackett, cooperator with the Benton county soil conservation district, started laying out contour strips in 1953. There are now 35 acres of contour strips on the farm, 20 acres of cross slop strips, 0.2 miles of diversion terrace and 92 acres of conservation crop rotation. Hackett is well pleased with the farm's production increase, and says the soil erosion problem has been mostly taken care of.

Soil Plan Improves Pasture—Contour strip cropping controlled erosion and kept up production for many years for James Peterson in Goodhue county, but it left him with a pasture shortage. He talked this problem over with Julius Kubler, soil conservationist and then decided to terrace 20 acres near the farmstead to provide gool rotation pasture for the dairy herd. Now, he has good pasture and very little erosion.

Boost Potato Yields — Heavy manuring, fertilizer, and irrigating can increase potato yields in northern Minnesota. Russet Burbank potatoes yielded 569 bushels per acre at planting time in University before planting, and 100 pounds of nitrogen per acre at planting time in University of Minnesota tests. These trials were conducted at the University's North Central School and Experiment Station, Grand Rapids, reports Charles Simkins, extension soils specialist.

70-YEAR SUBSCRIPTION MAY BE WORLD RECORD

Minnesota is a state of notable longevity in life, job tenure, and many other fields, including newspaper subscriptions. Many Minnesota readers have subscribed for the same hometown newspaper half a century or more. But the Tyler Journal reports what seems likely to be a world record: L. E. Blegen has taken years—an entire lifetime by common standards! . . There was a "run" of postal retirements, seems now like the railroads are losing all their personnel: Retiring at Sleepy Eye after 44 years on the C&NW is Engineer T. M. Lippert; at Waseca, same job on the same road, Fred M. Donahue, just short of 50 years; Two Harbors, after 50 years with DM&IR, Gregor Miller, trainmaster, Chris Hassett, assistant superintendent; at Slayton, Albert O. Erickson, after 51 years with the Omaha.

THE MINNESOTA STORY

Prepared by the

Minnesota Historical Society

FIRST LEGISLATURE

The first Minnesota legislature, which convened on September 3, 1849, assembled in a crude little log hotel in St. Paul.

When Minnesota Territory was organized in 1849, St. Paul was designated as the capital, but no building was provided in which the business of the new territory could be conducted. According to records preserved by the Minnesota Historical Society, the territorial capital consisted of "a dozen framed houses, not all completed, and some eight or ten small log buildings with bark roofs" when Alexander Ramsey arrived to take up his duties as territorial governor in May, 1849.

The most pretentious building in the frontier settlement, the Central House, was selected for the legislative session. It had been erected in 1844 as a log house. A number of additions were made to turn it into the hotel that privided both lodging and a place of assembly for Minnesota's first legislators. It was located on a site overlooking the Mississippi at the corner of Minnesota and Bench streets.

After both houses of the first legislature were organized, on the afternoon of September 4, the pioneer lawmakers gathered in joint session in the dining room of the Central House to listen to Governor Ramsey's message. The session was opened with a prayer by the Reverend Edward D. Neill.

During the legislative session the Council made use of the hotel parlor and the House met in the dining room. One writer on the early history of Minnesota reports that "about the hour of noon a waiter would thrust his head in among the solons and sing out—'Dinner!' and then there was a sudden adjournment and a general buzz."

HOME PRICES IN 1871

A house "large enough for a family of several persons" could be built for $208.80 in 1871, according to a pamphlet in the collections of the Minnesota Historical Society.

The booklet was issued by the Northern Pacific Railroad, in an effort to promote settlement along its right of way. It contains plans for a house 16 feet by 20 feet in size. On its first floor the house contained a living room 13 feet by 16 feet, a bedroom 7 feet by 12 feet, and a pantry 4 feet by 7 feet. Stairs led up to a half-story second floor, which could be divided into necessary sleeping quarters.

The railroad informed settlers that seasoned lumber could be purchased at Minneapolis, Brainerd, Detroit Lakes, Oak Lake, Glyndon, and Moorhead. "Where lumber can be obtained for sixteen or twenty dollars per thousand," the booklet suggested, "it will be much cheaper to build a board house than one of logs, as there will be great saving of time and labor." The writer estimated that a comfortable house of one room 14 feet by 15 feet in size could be built from 1500 feet of lumber at a cost of about $100.

It advised settlers that "the house should front toward the south or east. The prevailing winds in Minnesota," it added, "are from the west and southwest."

FORT SNELLING

If efforts now underway are successful, old Fort Snelling, one of the most important historic sites in Minnesota, will be pre*served as a state park.*

In order to solve the traffic problem in the area, the Minnesota highway department plans a new bridge over the Mississippi river at Fort Snelling, but the highway will pass through a tunnel under the old fort site, leaving the historic area undisturbed. The Minnesota division of state parks is trying to obtain the land from the federal government for park purposes.

Perhaps no other spot is so intimately associated with Minnesota's beginnings, for it was around Fort Snelling that the earliest settlers gathered. For many years after its founding in 1819, the fort was the northernmost military outpost of the United States.

Even before the Civil War, Fort Snelling was a popular tourist attraction, and many people have climbed up the bluff on which it is situated to enjoy its magnificent view of the Mississippi and Minnesota river valleys.

Although Fort Snelling has served as an important gathering and outfitting point for soldiers from the Northwest in every military emergency of the United States since the 1820s, its own historic walls were never attacked.

The story of Fort Snelling's development from a small frontier military post to a historic site of major significence is told by Russell W. Fridley in the winter issue of "Minnesota History."

NAMES FROM GERMANY

Minnesota has many places named that could also be found on a map of Germany. The state's German settlers named their homes in the New World, as did other national groups, for places with which they were familiar.

Among the towns in Minnesota named for German cities are New Ulm, Cologne, Gotha, and Hamburg. Potsdam in Olmsted county was named for a Prussian town which has since become well-known as the scene of an international conference held there in 1945. Fulda in Murray county is named for a German town noted for its ancient abbey, which was founded in 744.

Lutsen in Cook county is named for a small town in Prussian Saxony. The Prussian Lutsen was the scene of a great battle in 1632 in which Gustavus Adolphus, king of Sweden, was killed. Heidelburg in LeSueur county is named for the famous old German university town.

"THE FAMILY ANGLE" IN THE NEWS

First woman ever elected to the city council of Hancock, Minnesota, is Mrs. Norma Johnson, who has served well as village clerk; a former Elbow Lake newspaper woman, Mrs. Johnson will sit with a colleague, in the person of Jack West, publisher of the Handcock Record, also new on the village board. . . Four generations of the Utley family have lived on a farm two miles west of Preston that has been in the family since 1856—a little more than a century—Ulm, Germany, and its younger American namesake, New Ulm, Minnesota, have forged another international link: an English-speaking lass of Ulm, Liselotte Kunz, is now the bride of Robert Schmitz, New Ulm army veteran studying law at the University of Minnesota.

GROWING WITH YOUR CHILD

Institute of Child Welfare University of Minnesota

There Are Four Of Him

He is Bobby, and he is four. An outsider sees Bobby as a handsome blue-eyed blonde boy with a ready smile and boundless energy which he uses ingeniously to learn about his world and the people in it. That is fine. But Bobby's parents see four different sons, all wrapped up in one Bobby package:

They see the Bobby they hope they have; the Bobby they fear they have; the Bobby the experts say they should have; and the real Bobby. To play four roles simultaneously would be a challenge even for a Charles Laughton. Imagine what it is for Bobby.

The Bobby they hope they have is an "all-boy" type who suddenly becomes a perfect gentleman when company comes. A very bright Bobby, yet one who does not constantly ask questions; a Bobby who accepts each food the parents offer, yet does not want to taste everything in sight; a Bobby who loves his parents dearly, yet does not cling and cry when they want to get out at night.

The Bobby they fear they have is stubborn "like my mother-in-law." He has a big nose that will seem even bigger when he's grown up, "like Uncle Ben's." This Bobby jumps to conclusions "like his Daddy," or sulks "like his Mommy." He threatens to be left-handed and clumsy, or maybe even to stutter like Jimmy the street.

The experts say a four year old boy should be about 40 inches tall and weigh 36 pounds. Good grief! Look at Bobby-he's already 41 inches tall and weighs 41 pounds ("of course his father and grandfathers are big men, but. . ."). At four, boys and girls are supposed to be willing to share things, but Bobby won't let his new blocks out of his sight—even sleeps with the bag on his bed. They (the experts) also say four year olds should be developing a good sense of humor, but Bobby is still so very silly, driving everyone crazy with such nonsense as "Hello Peggy, Weggy, Leggy, Seggy" or "I'm gonna hit, bit, slit, git, mit you!"

The real Bobby is not always what his family hopes that he will be; he is ordinarily not half as bad as they fear he might be; he does not always fit exactly what the experts say he should be. He is just Bobby, a bundle of strengths and weaknesses like the rest of us.

Maintenance Staff Put on 44-hour Week; Act on Wages in April

The board of education of the Thief River Falls school district, No. 18, conferred Monday at its January session with union agents representing the maintenance staff of the local schools, and the board agreed to put the workers on a 44-hour week with time and one-half for overtime, effective February 1.

Under the arrangement, the workers will receive the same pay for the 44-hour week that they are now getting for a longer week.

The request of the union for pay increases was deferred until the April meeting of the board, when the matter will be taken up along with a consideration of teachers' salaries for the next school year.

Representing the union in the discussion Monday were Earl Arneson, secretary and business agent, and David Morris, organizer for local 664, affiliated with the Teamsters Union.

At the session the board also instructed Supt. J. A. Sater to investigate the desirability of calling for bids on the work of clearing trees and brush off the site of the grade school building to be built at a future date on the east side near Highway 59.

A communication from the city council was read, stating that the city was losing money on the annual rental of $500 currently being paid by the school district for the use of the sports arena during the winter months, asking that the payment be increased to $1,500 per year. The board agreed to pay the higher figure.

Elevator Poses Big Moving Job

Some people aren't fazed by anything, as this picture of the Osborne-McMillian elevator being moved here from Radium by Donald Jenson of Carrington, N. D. proves. Of course, it helps if the mover is equipped for such jobs, as Jenson is. The slow trek from Radium has taken about a week and many difficulties, including extremely cold weather, were encountered along the way. Shown here is the elevator as it was "parked" just east of the Joppru farm over the past week-end, almost at the end of its journey. Note the large jacks on either side to prevent the elevator from tipping in case of high winds.

Governor Asks Legislature for Big Funds

Asks for $30 Million More in School Aids and for Korean Bonus

Gov. Freeman Tuesday presented a two-year budget to the legislature calling for expenditure of $180,116,000 from the general fund, $208,956,000 for state school aids, teachers colleges and related purposes, and a 56 million dollar building program. He renewed his recommendation of two years ago for adoption of the withholding system for collecting income taxes, and called for a $5 increase in basic school aids, payment of a Korean bonus and state aid for junior colleges.

The general revenue budget—which covers operations of most state departments,—is about 33 million dollars larger than the appropriations for the current two year period. The governor recommended 190 million for present programs, $7,640,000 for new programs and then proposed shifting the $9,333,000 cost of the teachers college program from the general revenue to the income tax school fund.

The recommendation for school aids is about 30 million dollars larger than the current appropriation. Half that sum is required to pay aids at the present level because enrollments are rising steadily. The remainder would be used to raise the level of aids.

The building program the governor backed is the one proposed by the 10-member legislative interim committee to study state building needs.

To finance his budget, the governor adopted recommendations of the 18-member tax study committee, including the proposal for elimination of most personal property taxes.

The governor called for re-enactment of all present taxes, including the special taxes imposed to finance the World War II bonus and those enacted by the 1955 legislature on a two year basis. He called for repeal of the $5 "head tax" which was part of the bonus financing program.

In addition, he proposed certain adjustments in the income tax law, raising the tobacco products tax from 15 per cent to 20 per cent, enactment of a new one per cent surtax on corporation net income taxes, eliminating

3 Counties to Share in Farm Forum at TRF Armory on March 7th

Arrangements for a tri-county farm forum were made at a meeting held at the court house in this city Tuesday, January 15. Present at the meeting were representatives of farm organizations and business people from Pennington, Red Lake, and east Marshall counties.

The Farm Forum is scheduled to be held in the Thief River Falls Armory on Thursday, Mar. 7th. It will commence at 10:00 a. m. and run to 3:30 p. m. Door prizes will be given and a noon lunch provided.

The subject to be discussed is farm policies. It is one of the vital concerns to all of the farm people, as well as business men. How do flexible and rigid supports affect community income? What effect will the soil bank legislation have on farm income? How is farm size affecting the community? These and many more questions will be answered.

The Farmers Union, Farm Bureau, and Chamber of Commerce are sponsoring the event, and all Pennington county families are urged to plan to attend, said County Agent Paul Stelmaschuk.

Marked Traffic Rise at TRF Airport in '56

The year 1956 saw a marked increase in flight and other activities at the Thief River Falls municipal airport, according to Elwood Ehrenstrom, who is managing the field in the absence of Christ Kierk, who is away for the winter.

Ehrenstrom said accurate figures in the amount of increase are not available but that increased flying club activity and the greater number of local and transient flights in and out of the field accounts for much of the greater volume of traffic at the field.

Only one crash marred the airport's otherwise perfect safety record during the year. This occured in March last year, when the flying club Piper Cruiser crashed on takeoff. Reverend O'Toole, the Pilot was seriously injured in the crash and Jack Rosen, his passenger was badly shaken up. The plane was a total wreck and was replaced later in the spring with another Cruiser purchased from Bud Nagle of Grand Forks.

Ehrenstrom said about 10 per cent increase was shown in the flying clubs activities during the year, as shown by the club's flight logs. In addition, he said five new students started flight instructions late in 1956 and that several older members of the club have increased their activities.

Transient air traffic showed an approximate 20 per cent increase in 1956, but Ehrenstrom said an accurate figure is not available. Flights by planes based on the field, other than

Ole Kaupang, 59, Killed in Dynamite Explosion

A Winger farmer killed himself Wednesday by exploding six dynamite sticks in the cab of his pickup truck.

Glen Houske, Polk county deputy coroner, ruled the death of Ole Kaupang, 59, a suicide.

The explosion took place about three miles northeast of Winger where Kaupang, a bachelor, farmed with a brother.

Sheriff Carl N. Knutson said Kaupang set off at least six sticks of dynamite under his feet. Parts of the truck were blown 200 yards.

Knutson said Kaupang told his brother he was driving to town to buy a battery when he left yesterday morning. The brothers kept dynamite on the farm to blast stumps and rocks.

Council Gives Permit for St. John's Church

To Cost $100,000; Council Also Acts to Raise Garbage Fees

Included in a large grist of business disposed of by the city council at its lengthy regular January session Tuesday was the approval of a $100,000 permit covering the construction this year of the new St. John's Lutheran church edifice, to be located on a spacious site on East First st. at Pine av.

Also approved was a permit for the remodeling at a cost of $7,000 of the former Louis DeCremer building on Main av. N., now owned by Dr. W. P. Kaisler. The building will provide offices for Dr. Kaisler as well as quarters for the John Anderson jewelry store.

The council heard the first reading of a proposed ordinance designed to increase the fee for collecting garbage at local homes from 50 cents to $1 a month.

Given its second reading was an ordinance annexing to the city the Birch Lane property owned by Dr. Edward Bratrud, adjoining Red Lake River and East Third st. K. Russell Anderson, representing Dr. Bratrud, stated that the Birch Lane road would be widened on its curve at the suggestion of City Engineer Douglas Stewart.

Due to the absence from the meeting of City Attorney R. A. Wurst, who was ill, the council deferred a second reading of the proposed ordinance setting up a schedule of vacations and sick leave for city employes.

The Pennington county welfare board, which handled city relief cases in 1956, submitted an itemized bill for $2,731.18 covering outlays for the past year, totaling considerably less than when the city employed its own [illegible]

Office Manager Culkins Asks That Applications Be Filed by January 25

Farmers were reminded today that there are only about two weeks left before the deadline for taking out Commodity Credit Corporation loans or purchase agreements for most of the major grains and for some other important crops.

Minnesota crops to which the January 31 deadline applies are wheat, barley, oats, rye, soybeans and flaxseed.

Culkins also reminded Pennington county farm owners and operators that applications are now being accepted for participation in the Soil Bank program.

A Review—

Lion Quartet Displays Talents in Concert Here

By Bryant Ulseth

The talented Lions Quartet of Minneapolis presented a highly entertaining program to a captivated audience in the Lincoln high school auditorium on Monday evening. The program encompassed a range of music from novelty numbers to grand and light opera compositions.

The performance called on a wide but well-mashed diversity of talents. The extroverted and amazing basso, Donald Olsen, capitalized on a full and resonant tone. Diminutive Walter Anderson, who certainly puts his heart into his singing, displayed a nimble wit when necessary.

Solos by members of the quartet were accomplished with distinction. Particular mention should be made to the polished performance by Arthur Olson, baritone, of "Largo Al Factotum" from Rossini's "Barber of Seville." A great deal of satisfaction was gained from the piano solos of Harry Farstad and his unerring accompaniment. However, the Balance of the quartet was more evident in "I've been listnin," an unaccompanied Negro spiritual.

The stage appearance and spontaneous gestures added a great deal to the presentation. Altogether it was an enjoyable program, and should be repeated.

LIFE WITH A MECHANICAL 'LUNG'
One of every three uses mechanical aid every minute of every day
54% have had polio for two years or longer — they have needed this help since they were stricken.
Half are over 25 — polio in adults means parents away from families — the breadwinner unable to work — future uncertain
Each iron lung costs at least $1500 — it breathes 10,000,000 times a year... must be mechanically perfect at all times.

Student Council Convention Plans Made for Next Fall

State Meeting Expected to Draw 500 Students and 150 Faculty Advisors

At a meeting of the Minnesota Student Council executive committee the date for the annual state convention of student councils was set for Nov. 7-8-9, 1957. Thief River Falls had extended an invitation to the association to meet here at that time, and it was accepted.

The convention usually has five hundred students in attendance in addition to about one hundred fifty advisors. The plan for student housing is for the students of the host school to invite the members of the visiting schools into their homes for the two nights that they will stay.

This convention in Thief River next fall presents a fine opportunity to advertise not only the city, but also the capabilities and good citizenship of its youth. It also presents the opportunity for students here to meet the best of students and leaders from all sections of the state.

Other business of the meeting was a discussion of attendance at the national convention in June, setting up a safety committee within the state organization and the organization of the newly elected executive committee.

The group was responsible for developing an emblem for the state organization that will be copyrighted for further use.

Something new has been added this year, that of having the State Association present a plaque to the host of the convention both to commemorate the occasion and to show gratitude to the school that organized the convention.

State Bar Assn. Tells of Mechanic's Liens

Have you realized that when you buy land you may take subject to liens for unpaid bills? These bills might be for labor or for materials and services furnished by others in the improvement of the land of which no claim has been filed in the proper recording office. Did you know that when you sell land to another on contract for deed or lease it to another and either improves the same without paying the cost, your interests could be affected by those lien claims?

The Minnesota mechanic's lien statutes are designed to protect those who contribute to the improvement of land, according to the Minnesota State Bar association. The statutes provide them with the security of a lien upon that land of which no notice need be filed for 90 days following the doing of the last work or the furnishing of the last item of materials. If a lien statement is properly filed within that 90 day period an unpaid lien claim continues until one year has elapsed from the date the last item was furnished.

If these bills are not paid, the lien, while it exists, may be foreclosed much as a mortgage may be foreclosed and your property sold at public auction to satisfy the amount the lien secures. This is the final consequence to the owner of a failure to pay a mechanic's lien claim.

The 90 day lien period during which the lien statement need not be filed can prove troublesome to the unwary. You, as a buyer, could complete your purchase and then find a lien claim asserted against your land. Your choices are either to pay, or suffer a foreclosure sale for your interest in the land.

What recourse have you against the seller? Although available and financially able, the seller may have expressly excluded liability on lien claims made by the last occupant, his tenant.

The Minnesota State Bar suggests that you inspect thoroughly all land before purchasing and periodically check property leased or sold under contract.

The Times office is as close as your phone. Give us a ring if you have guests from out of town.

Shootin' the Breeze

BY Mack Draper

Just in case you missed this column in Monday's paper, let us hasten to explain that the reason it wasn't there was not the one implied in Huck Olson's column that day. . .

Wow, but we were busy Saturday! And that's all the explanation you're gonna get. . . We'll assure you it won't be habitual though.

Say, did you listen to the Minnesota-North Dakota hockey series over the past weekend? UND Coach Al Renfrew was about to pop a gusset at what he says was the worst officiating he's seen in over 2000 hockey games.

We don't care to take sides in the matter but it did sound to us as if the penalties called against the Sioux were most timely for the opposition, even though we didn't see the game and had to be content to hear the radio account of the set-to.

In case anyone wonders, tho, we're for Dear old Alma Mamma no matter who the U Soo are playing.

So much for hockey. That's Huck's department and we'll let him call 'em as he sees 'em.

It's quite a switch in the weather we're having this year as contrasted to last winter. No snow piles on the street corners. . . . no wondering how the roads are before we take a little drive out of town. . . but, snow or no, the furnaces labor on!

But, cheer up folks!

Feeding the furnace during our Minnesota winters is still cheaper than going to Florida. The cost of heating your home wouldn't much more than pay your way down there—and they say the cost of living down in that balmy, warm weather is simply outrageous! Now, who'd want to put up with all that? Just think of the money you're saving by staying home this winter!

Now, to add insult to injury we're going to say we don't think we've had a winter at all unless we have at least one regular old howler of a blizzard to tie things up good and improve the scenery.

Go ahead—say it. We really must have scattered our marbles somewhere!

An Alabaman who visited Minneapolis this winter said the women in that city dress so they look drab and shapeless. Well—maybe heavy wraps make our northern wimmen appear drab and shapeless in winter, but that just makes us men appreciate 'em that much more when we get a better view of 'em in the good old summer time!

Most everybody these days has some complaint to make about the new model automobiles. What's yours? The most common complaint it that they're so low folks bump their heads getting in and out. Another complaint is that there isn't enough ground clearance, while the perennial "they cost too much" is here, naturally.

The business of being low may be good for some folks tho. The most exercise some people get nowadays is getting in and out of their car. Now they'll have to do some deep knee bending to go along with it! You have to learn to keep the old noggin pulled in when you get into these new cars!

The average motorist is a strange mixture of contradictions. He wants gas mileage—yet he'll buy the "power-pack" for his new car almost every time. He wants a quiet, soft-riding, easy steering automobile—yet he'll neglect to lubricate the chassis regularly and will drive for months, even years, without aligning and balancing his front wheels.

He won't check his tire pressure regularly and more often than not doesn't keep the correct pressures to begin with. (Experts say 30 lbs. is the best pressure to maintain for long tire wear and better steerability, regardless of the car manufacturer's recommendations.)

Last, but not least, he'll neglect rotating his tires to get even wear. He'll make jackrabbit starts and slide around corners— and in spite of all this will scream his head off if his tires don't give him half again as much service as a tire is supposed to give, even under normal operating conditions.

This, they tell us, is a few of the reasons mechanics and service station men become grey prematurely.

Then, there are those people who always drive as though they always have the road to themselves, which makes a lot of other drivers' hair turn grey prematurely, too. So long!

Council Acts on Varied Projects Tuesday Evening

Four re-appointments were submitted by Mayor O. D. Belch, and all were confirmed. They include W. W. Prichard, renamed to the cemetery commission for a five-year term; and G. A. Frahm, Wallace Tunberg and Elmer Bratsch to the airport commission for three-year terms.

The Union State bank and Northern State bank were designated as official city depositories, and the Times was named official city newspaper.

The budget of the Carnegie library board for 1957, calling for an outlay by the city of $14,704, was approved, including provision for salary increases for staff members. A park board budget also was presented, and the council allowed $15,500 for park needs.

The Robert J. Lund agency was authorized to renew the workman's compensation policy covering city employes, and the usual sum of $300 was allocated to the mayor's contingent fund.

Action was deferred on two bids for a used gravel loading conveyor for the use of the street department, the low bid of $1,600 having been submitted by Clifford Hedeen.

It also was voted to call for bids on carbon dioxide gas equipment for the municipal water treatment plant, the bids to be opened February 19.

The council accepted the resignation, because of ill health, of Theodore Lee, veteran member of the fire department, and, on the department's recommendation, Clayton Rux was appointed to succeed him.

New Warm Air Mass Breaks Cold Snap

Warmer Weather Brings Little Additional Snow

The weatherman has cooked up some nicer weather for the upper Midwest recently and, according to the KTRF forecast, local residents will get a short respite from the below-zero weather had here in the past week.

The weather for the week featured lows of 21 and 22 below Tuesday and Wednesday and the highest temperature of the period was Monday's 6 above. Today's low was a comparatively mild 4 above.

Some precipitation fell since Monday, a small amount coming Wednesday and again that night and early Thursday. The exact amount was not measured but is estimated at less than an inch of new snow.

The forecast calls for partly cloudy weather with scattered snow flurries through Friday. Warmer weather will prevail today, otherwise there will be little temperature change. Highs will be 15 to 20—ABOVE ZERO—and lows from 0 to 5—ALSO ABOVE ZERO!

Northwesterly winds will prevail, 20 to 30 m.p.h., diminishing Thursday night. Little change is expected Saturday.

Money for school aids, teachers colleges and related purposes would come from these principal sources:

Estimated balance in income tax school fund on July 1, 1957, $1,013,000; yield from individual and corporation income taxes, million dollars; yield from iron ore taxes made available through adoption of Amendment No. 3, $27,700,000 iron ore occupation tax surtaxes, $4,600,000; improve collections, by withholding, seven million dollars; use of federal returns and audits to improve collections, one million dollars; requiring husband and wife to file joint returns, seven million dollars; eliminate rule under which persons who work in the state fewer than 150 days a year pay no state income tax, 1½ million dollars; make state law conform to federal income tax law on medical deductions, two million dollars dollars; speed up corporation tax payments, 4½ million dollars. Thieves Sextet to Play Fargo Comets Here Next Sunday

Locals Lose 9 to 4 to N. Dakota 'U' Freshmen, Defeat Winnipeg Team

The senior hockey Thieves, who have been playing an entertaining brand of hockey for the fans in the three games that have been played on the Arena rink to date, will meet the Fargo Comets of Fargo, North Dakota, here on Sunday afternoon. Face-off time will be at 2:30 p.m.

For a number of years, Fargo has been one of the "centers" of hockey interest in North Dakota, and the Comets will be bringing a club up here that has a fine record and a fine tradition.

In a pair of well-played games this past week, the Thieves registered a win and a loss. Against the high-powered North Dakota freshman squad, in a game played last Thursday night, the locals dropped a 9 to 4 decision. Playing on the Arena ice on Sunday afternoon, the Thieves defeated the Champlain Flyers of Winnipeg, 8 to 4.

Expected to be in the Thieves lineup as they face-off against the Comets on Sunday afternoon will be Rod Collins, Paul Bedard, Mouse Efteland, Chip Strand, Chick Overson, DelRay and Cal Offerdahl, Glen Carlson, Dick Lane, Al Steenerson, Sid Vraa, and Gordy Bjerken.

those owned by the flying club, are not recorded, Ehrenstrom said, and any increase in such flights could not be stated. He emphasized that there was a very substantial increase in such flights, however.

At present 18 airplanes are based on the field, Ehrenstrom said some of these planes are owned by out-of-town pilots, however, and are no accurate criterion of the number of planes owned in the immediate area. Many out-of-town pilots hanger their planes here in winter, thus the city hangers are filled to capacity, with several other planes tied outside.

Martin Rantanen, locally-based agricultural sprayer, said his air spraying operation show about 40 per cent increase in 1956 over the previous year. He is also the local CAA certified flight instructor and hopes to have his CAA examiners rating within a week or two. He will take the test as soon as an appointment with the CAA agent in Fargo can be made.

North Central Airlines passenber traffic showed a large increase over the 1955 figure. Boardings here in 1956 were 875, compared with 730 the year before, 344 in 1954 (the drop here was caused by improvements on the airport in 1954 which caused temporary suspension of North Central operations) and 428 in 1953.

Installation of the TVOR navigational aid at the Thief River Falls airport has been delayed because of a manufacturers' parts shortage. The delay is temporary and installation will proceed as soon as delivery of the equipment is made. The installation site has been chosen and other arrangements made for installation, Ehrenstrom said.

Another feature which draws many out-of-town planes and pilots to the field is the presence of a CAA-licensed mechanic. Ehrenstrom operates a small shop on the field and hopes to expand his operation considerably in the near future, he said. He emphasized that the demand for adequate maintenance, repair and inspection facilities makes expansion not only worthwhile but almost a dire necessity, to serve area flyers.

Seven persons derive their livlihood from the airport, Ehrenstrom said, and the field brings considerable business to the city that would otherwise go to Grand Forks or other cities with good landing, service and repair facilities.

Last, but not least, he said, the Thief River Falls municipal airport ranks among the top 10 in Minnesota cities of comparable size, as regards neatness, facilities, clear approaches and other important factors used in grading airports the look on its face!

Wouldn't you say that most of the '57 cars look good from 50 feet away, but what about from 50 inches away?

What does a close-up of the grille tell you, for example? Is it solidly made like the new Chevrolet grille? Or, in comparison does it look less rich in design—feel less strong and solid? Compare the quality and construction of the bumpers and headlights, the fit of the chrome trim.

The more closely you look all around the car, the more clearly you'll see that Chevrolet has the edge in the way it's put together. You'll find, for instance, that Chevrolet is the only car in its field with a lacquer finish . . . that only Chevrolet Bel Air models give you foam rubber cushions in front and rear seats as standard equipment. These are just a few of the advantages of Body by Fisher. And Chevrolet, you know, is the only low-priced car that has a Fisher Body.

We'll be glad to give you a close-up, comparative look at this new Chevy any time you care to come in. This week, maybe?

In Memoriam

In loving memory of J. S. Leiran, who passed away, Jan. 18, 1956.

Not now, but in the coming years, it may be in a better land. We'll read the meaning of our tears, and there, sometime we'll understand. God knows the way, He holds the key, He guides us with un-erring hand; Sometime with tearless eyes we'll see; yes, there, up there, we'll understand. Sadly missed by Mrs. J. S. Leiran and Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Bothman. 1t5p

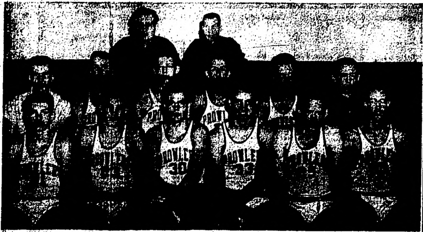
Prowler Basketball Team to Play Doubleheader This Week-end



Coach Al Adams' basketball Prowlers will be carrying a season's record of five wins and four losses as they enter this week-end's doubleheader. On Friday night, in a district conference tilt, the locals play the Warren Ponies at Warren; and on Saturday night, on the local court, the Prowlers will meet the Mahnomen Indians of District 30.

Prowler Six Drops 2: Roseau Here Friday

Larry Robberstad's goal at 2:42 in the "sudden death" overtime period following a face-off in the Prowler zone, gave the Williams Wolves a 4 to 3 win over the locals in an eighth regional conference hockey game played on the Arena ice on Tuesday night.

In a nip-and-tuck game played at Grand Forks on Monday night, the Prowlers, for the second time this season, dropped a one-goal decision to coach Sergio Gambucci's Redskins, losing by a 2 to 1 score.

On Friday night, Jan. 18th, coach Oscar Almquist will bring his Roseau Rams here for an important conference game against the Prowlers; and on Saturday night, Jan. 19th, coach John Matchefts will take his local squad to Williams for a return game with the Wolves.

Tuesday night's conference "thriller" here found the Prowlers, on goals by Jimmy Hall and Jerry Jorgenson, taking a 2 to 0 first period lead. The Wolves, with veteran center Larry Beadle tallying both goals, evened the score at 2-all in the second period.

Beadle, in the opening minutes of the third period, and on a face-off in the Prowler zone, beat Ken Sauve with a quick shot to give the Wolves a 3 to 0 lead, and a "hat trick" for the center. Jerry Jorgenson, scoring his second goal of the game, sent the fray into overtime play by beating goalie Ben Beadle at the 7:50 mark of the third period. Robberstad then snuffed out the Prowlers' hopes for victory by flipping the disc into the net after a couple of minutes of play in the overtime stanza.

Playing at Grand Forks on Monday, the Prowlers made a valiant bid to defeat the Redskins. After a scoreless first period, Grand Forks Central, on goals by Dick Anderson and Jerry Wentz, moved into a 2 to 0 lead in the second period. The Skins held that lead until the 5:55 mark of the third period when Wes Halvorson, recently brought up from coach Gene Sack's Prowler 'B' team, scored on an assist from Jerry Jorgenson.

The Roseau Rams

Oscar Almquist's Roseau Rams, the heirs-apparent to the Prowlers' eighth regional hockey title, will be in town on Friday night and, on the Arena ice, they'll show their prowess when they meet the Prowlers in a regional conference game.

Comparative scores can mean everything and, contrarily, they can mean nothing, but the Rams, although losing by 7 to 1 and 12 to 3 scores to the International Falls Broncos, did play the Eveleth Golden Bears to a 5-all tie. And the Bears last week, bested the Broncos, 4 to 2.

On Tuesday night, in a game played on the spacious ice sheet at Roseau, the Rams manhandled a well-rated Hallock club, winning by a 9 to 0 score.

The Rams are plentifully supplied with man-power, having skaters and skaters and skaters. According conversations held with Roseau hockey "experts", the Rams are one year ahead of their "time-schedule". The program, which had its founding about four years ago, that has been bring this hockey talent up from the PeeWee ranks is expected to "yield the harvest" next season. This year's successful season will be just so much "alfalfa", and a pleasant surprise.

It's not hard to find the secret to the Rams hockey potential. It stems from the well-coordinated Midget and PeeWee hockey program, and the individual mostly responsible, at least for the past four years, has been Carl Wahlberg.

Carl comes by his hockey enthusiasm quite naturally, for he's an uncle to Warroad's Rich Roberts, the former Warroad Warrior and Minnesota Gopher star.

The Roseau PeeWee hockey program supports eight teams of eight players each, and these youngsters are from the sixth grade and lower. The Junior program, for the seventh, eighth, and ninth graders, is organized on a six-team basis. As Carl said, "We can see our high school teams coming up through the kid ranks."

Warroad, realizing that the Rams have a successful formula for developing high school teams, has instituted a "kid" program this season, with Bob Johnson and Ken Johannson directing the training. Their results, though, won't be apparent for several years, for hockey players need seasoning and experience. It's a slow process.

Big Art

While we have been watching with interest the play of such former Prowler hockey luminaries as Lyle Guttu, Joey Poole, Marv Jorde, and Bobby Helgeland, we've also been giving considerable attention to the progress of big Art Johnson in his basketball career at Concordia college.

Art, a six-foot, five-inch center, is in his junior year at Concordia, and he's one of the mainstays of a Cobber quint that has developed into one of the powers of the Minnesota College Conference. Art has been shoving points into the Cobber basket at a better than 21-points per game average.

During his high school career as a Prowler, Art, playing in 1952-53-54, racked up a total of 1012 points, for a school scoring record. In 1954, Art's senior year, he tolled in 482 Prowler points, setting a school scoring record for one year's play.

Of all the basketball Prowlers that have been processed through the local system the past several years, Art is perhaps the only player who could have made a Big Ten team. Art, very rangy at six-foot five-inches, and powerful, weighing about 230-pounds, has the physique for the rugged play that is the trade-mark of Big Ten basketball. The Minnesota Gophers expressed an interest in Art, and they hoped that he would enroll at the U; but Concordia's Jack Christianson proved a better salesman.

Calling All Girls; Curlers, that is

The Thief River Falls Curling Club has extended an invitation to the ladies of the community to inspect the curling rinks at the Fair Grounds, and avail themselves of the opportunity to "cast" a few stones, on Sunday.

The "open house" is slated for 2:00 p.m., and the club's officers hope that a number of the girls will accept this invitation. If enough interest is exhibited in curling, it's probable that a ladies' curling league will be formed. That's the hope, and the motive behind Sunday's invitation.

Wanted: Basketball Fans

Say, the Prowler cagers are deserving of larger crowds than have been in attendance at the recent games. That's a pretty fair blue-and-gold squad that coach Al Adams puts on the floor these nights, and as of now they must be rated with the Region's "top ten". Excepting the Bemidji Lumberjacks, and possibly the Kennedy Rockets, the Prowlers would be just about an even choice to beat any team in the region.

Being predominantly a junior team, the Prowlers are troubled somewhat by a lack of consistency in their play. They have the tools, having plenty of size, enough speed, fair shooting ability, but there are times when their play becomes erratic. They show, at times, a failing in that they try to play a "fast break" with a fast-breaking team. In their previous game against the Lumberjacks, the Prowlers, after playing Bemidji on near-even terms in the first half, tried to "run" with the Jacks. That's an impossibility. If Bemidji is to be beaten, and it's doubtful, it will be by a "ball control" club.

On Friday night the Prowlers play the Warren Ponies at Warren; and on Saturday night, on the local court, they face coach Lute Olson's Mahnomen's club. This Mahnomen team is a veteran outfit, and they have, with reason, been installed as the District 30 favorite.

Everyone Needs Polio Immunization

For maximum protection, everyone should be vaccinated against this dread disease. The highest incidence of polio occurs among children, expectant mothers, and adults up to age forty. These groups definitely should be immunized. Even people who have recovered from the disease should receive the vaccine, since an attack gives protection against only one of the three known types. Immunization stimulates resistance to all three. Don't wait for an epidemic. Contact your family physician.

Diet Is Important in Child's Dental Health

This is the second in a series of articles on dental health being presented by the Times, in cooperation with the Pennington Co. Dental Society, in observance of National Children's Dental Health Week, Feb. 3-9.

• • •

If there is one point on which members of the dental profession are agreed, it is the damage done to the teeth of young children by well-meaning but heedless parents.

The mother or father who repeatedly gives a child candy and other sticky sweets between meals can set off a chain reaction that may permanently impair the child's dental health.

These parents unwittingly are giving their child a strong nudge on the road to joining the vast army of dental cripples who require artificial dentures by the time they are adults.

While the cause-and-effect relationship may seem far fetched, the fact is that the preservation of a child's first teeth is essential to the proper alignment of healthy permanent teeth.

And early loss or damage to a child's so-called baby teeth from excessive consumption of sweets, or for any other reason, can start the progression toward malformed jaws and unsound teeth.

Dental scientists estimate that we Americans eat 10 times as much sugar as our great grandfathers did. They are concerned with this fact because of its impact upon dental health.

It is a matter of record that dental conditions have become worse as civilization has developed, and the sweet and sticky foods of today are singled out as the No. 1 enemies of dental health.

When such foods as candies, syrups, jams and jellies, sweetened beverages, pies, cakes and cookies are eaten between meals, bacteria act on the sweet foods, all in a matter of minutes, to produce acid that can dissolve tooth enamel.

Toothbrushing immediately after eating will help to offset the effects of sugar consumption. That is why members of the dental profession strongly advise that all children be taught to brush their teeth after meals.

However, when sweet snacks are taken between meals, and especially if these snacks are repeated frequently, the destructive acid buildup is free to do its damage.

It may be that dental research someday will find or develop a sugar which will not promote decay of the teeth. Until that day, however, parents will do well to be cautious about excess sugar consumption for their children. The stakes are too high for over-indulgence.

Must Now Display 1957 License Tabs on Cars

Monday was the last day that Minnesota motorists may operate their cars on public highways without having the 1957 license tabs affixed showing that registration has been made for the current year.

Beginning Tuesday, January 15, the Minnesota highway patrol will be enforcing the state regulation which requires the number plates or tabs to be "duly displayed upon the vehicle." Violation of the regulation is a misdemeanor.

The announcement was made by Paul R. Martz, highway patrol chief, who said he had been informed by Joseph L. Donovan, secretary of state, that all applications mailed to the motor vehicle division prior to January 1 had been processed by Friday, January 11, and tabs and plates issued.

Those few owners whose registrations have not been completed have been notified, showing the reasons for not having had their applications processed.

Bjornson to Talk to Minnesota GOP

To Address Committee in Minneapolis Jan. 25

State Treasurer Val Bjornson, recently sworn into office by Chief Justice Roger Dell, will deliver a major speech at the upcoming meeting of the Republican State Central committee in Minneapolis, Jan. 25 and 26 at the Radisson Hotel.

The Republican official is expected to tell the group that Minnesota's "progressive Republican tradition can be applied to its present and future problems"—and will sketch a blueprint of action for the future.

A former state weekly newspaper editor, Val Bjornson's career has taken him to a high post in journalism — Associate Editor of the St. Paul Pioneer Press, and he has also won distinction as a radio news commentator. In 1950 he was elected Minnesota's state treasurer, and he was returned to office in 1952.

Drivers License Examiners Get New Uniforms

Minnesota driver license examiners frequently have been mistaken for members of the Minnesota highway patrol, and vice versa, because heretofore both units have worn maroon uniforms.

This occasionally has led indignant citizens to berate examiners for not arresting a motorist violating a traffic law, or for not taking over traffic direction at a congested point—all to the embarrassment of the examiners, according to G. A. Hatfield, director of the drivers license division of the state highway department.

But no more need there be confusion because of the similar uniforms. The examiners, of whom there are 55 located throughout the state, now have new distinctive uniforms. They are gray with black trim stripes and have an identifying shoulder patch and a chrome name plate over the left breast. The new uniforms have suit coats instead of the former Eisenhower jackets.

"WITHHOLDING" AGAIN

Governor Freeman has revived the withholding plan that was rejected by the legislature two years ago. Our guess is that, without a forgiveness clause, such a bill now has less chance of receiving favorable action than it did at that time.

The proposal is bad because it would impose a tax penalty on one segment of taxpayers. The payroll deduction provision would apply only to people on a payroll and they would be forced to pay three years' taxes in two. It would cost them an estimated 25 million more tax dollars.

Governor Freeman attempts to justify this change as a means of bearing down on tax dodgers but the tax dodgers are not the people on payrolls. They are already subjected to the federal income tax withholding. Federal tax information is available to state tax officials and failure by wage earners to make proper returns are easily detected.

But a trick tax of this kind is bad mainly because the additional revenue it brings in provides only temporary relief for the problem of paying costs. It is dangerous because it postpones the pain of increased spending. The $25 million windfall would make it easy to raise the level of spending for the next two years. Then, with the higher spending level established, we would have to find a new source of tax revenue to maintain permanently the expanded program.

It is much easier to be thrifty when getting the dollars is a painful procedure. The governor wants to buy his package of goodies on the no-down-payment plan and then keep paying forever.

CHAOS IN THE "MILK SHED"

There is chaos in the milk industry serving St. Paul and Minneapolis, and the reason for the chaos probably is too much monopolistic organization. There seem to be too many unenforceable rules and regulations, most of them self-imposed.

Twin City area dairymen complain bitterly about the arbitrary restrictions that prevent Minnesota milk from being sold in the big city markets of the East. Perhaps it would be well if they got out in the country a few more miles and take a look at some of their own milk shed operations that probably are slightly un-American.

From our observation the Twin City operators are hardly in a position to complain about the selfishness or the shortsightedness of their eastern cousins.

One way to reduce the number of bomb scares in the large cities probably would be to quit scaring the public about bomb scares with screaming headlines about bomb scares.

All governors no doubt want to be great governors, although they seek to establish their greatness in different ways. We are sure Governor Freeman is no exception to this natural desire to excel. Freeman seems to be seeking to establish his greatness as a great spender. While he has some impressive records to beat it appears that he is well on the way to make his mark as the greatest spender of all of Minnesota's chief executives.

Minneapolis and St. Paul have ordinances limiting construction operations to firms that have municipal licenses. Minneapolis has eleven of these barriers and St. Paul only two, according to Carl Langland, reporting on this situation in his St. Paul Pioneer Press column. He says that pressure from small town contractors is causing both cities to blush and that "they at last are making serious efforts to wipe out the restrictions." We have yet to hear an admission of error from St. Paul's blushing neighbor to the west.

GIVE THE BOYS A CHANCE

(New Prague Times)

A growing boy needs useful occupation and healthful recreation through which to expend that surplus of energy which is part and parcel of every red-bloded youth. ..

In our approach to the problem of so-called juvenile delinquency, perhaps we may have placed too much emphasis on recreation to the exclusion of the occupation angle.

"Minnesota law provides that no boy under 16 may work "around" machinery, no one under 18 may work "with it" except in a few favored industries. But Minnesota law provides that a boy or girl who is 15 may take a 150 horsepower automobile on the highway and risk his own and a half dozen other lives if he is inclined to be careless. This writer has no quarrel with the motor vehicle law. It is the comparison with rules governing industry that makes one or the other seem ridiculous. Boys who would like to learn a trade while growing up are prevented from working with machinery no more dangerous than a door which would smash their finger if closed carelessly."

Of a certainty, no right-minded person favors child labor or a return to the abuses of the past where conscienceless employers exploited child labor at starvation wages in factory production lines.

Yet, there remains the problem of providing employment in the mechanized trades for the 15-year-old or 16-year-old who wants part time employment or who financially needs a job.

Federal and state laws are stringent and the only answer to such a boy at present is "no."

In the dim, distant past, many men who attained success in the business world, in the printing trades, in the professions, and in the military services received their first job training and employment experience washing presses, sweeping floors and doing simple tasks at The Times. But that opportunity is no longer open to the boy of today.

Limiting the number to one for each employer or one to every dozen or ten employees with every conceivable safeguard against exploitation might provide a solution to the problem.

The Legislature

By Orlin Folwick

Minnesota's legislators began buckling down to work this week on a confusing array of problems involving appropriations, taxes, greater activity in public welfare, labor relations, reapportionment, party designation, constitutional revisions, reorganization of the state government and many others.

Although the legislature will make its own decisions on all these subjects, Governor Freeman's program will be the spark plug for most of the activity. It is his job to propose legislative activity, and the legislature's job is to dispose of it.

To a great many legislators, this 1957 session—the last in the first century of the state's history will be a decisive one.

It already has two major proposals before it, the governor's inaugural message and the report of his interim tax study commission. The governor has said he will ask an appropriation of $190,000,000 for the next two years—$25,000,000 more than the appropriations of the 1955 legislature.

Legislative decisions on taxes will have a distinct effect on business and industrial development in Minnesota for years to come. Many legislators feel that the diminishing number of small farms in Minnesota, with fewer citizens engaged in farming, calls for valiant effort to bring in new industries to soak up this manpower.

It is particularly important to them to get industries into the smaller cities of the state to ease the adjustments necessary for the people leaving the farms to take up industrial employment. Lack of attention by legislatures for years back has brought this question to the front now for solution. Minnesota's tax climate for years has been the stumbling block in bringing in the industries now needed.

Some legislative reactions are that the state should start thinking of a limit on spending, leaving more of its citizens' personal problems to their own solution.

But Governor Freeman told the legislators quite bluntly that there must be greater activity in the public welfare field—more for treatment of mentally disturbed children, greater attention for the handicapped, greater personnel in the mental health program, more clinics in the population centers, higher old age assistance payments, more vocational rehabilitation.

He said he will ask for an increase in state aid payments to Minnesota schools, with additional aids for school construction in distressed districts. He proposed salary increases for teachers and more facilities for higher education.

Both proposals pose difficult problems of legislators.

They recognize a public interest in the public welfare question. State participation in financing education is a long-established principle. What disturbs them is the limit to which the state government can go, increasing population increases the number of persons needing welfare assistance. The requester appropriation for this field, $99,400,000, is the largest in the departmental budget. Increased activity can mean more activity and still greater expenditures in the future.

There is no argument against providing every child in Minnesota with the best education possible. Yet, legislators look at the increasing number of school children, already jumping the financial needs for state aids by some $2,000,000 a year, and shudder when they think of appropriations for this activity in the future.

Findings of the interim tax study commissions cause further perplexities. It suggests lower or complete elimination of levies on industrial and business personal property, farm equipment and livestock and household goods. A tax "break" for industry, the commission said, would be an inducement for new industries, with new payrolls and jobs and a broader field for the other taxes to be levied. Its proposed changes in income tax collections, however, would mean highter income tax payments for many taxpayers, including business and industry. The commission estimated the net result of its proposal would be an approximate $11,000,000 loss in revenues to the state, to be made up in other ways.

In his inaugural message, the governor said he wants a reapportionment of the legislature, but many legislators feel that the state has passed the point where the geographic or population factor is of much importance. Rather than regard questions from a purely sectional or district standpoint, they consider problems from the statewide standpoint.

The governor also asked for party designation for legislators, but such a move now would mean many incumbent legislators would lose their jobs because of party labels. A common argument against party designation is that independent legislators can do a better job than a party adherent. Constitutional revision has its adherents and opponents, in and out of the legislature.

No wonder legislators' say a 90-day session isn't long enough!

Use your telephone to help get things done in a hurry, and if you have party-line service, please remember to leave some time between calls—so someone else can call you, so others on your line can use the phone, too. Some other tips for good party-line telephone service: replace the receiver carefully, give up the line for emergency calls, hang up quickly and quietly when you find the line in use. Farm Program Needs Change, Says FU Head

THIEF RIVER FALLS TIMES
Volume Forty-six | Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota | Thursday, January 17, 1957 | Number Five
FOOD SECTION
Pages 1 thru 6

Farmers will face an increasingly severe cost-price squeeze in 1957 unless Congress acts to rally farm price and income levels, a state farm leader said this week.

Edwin Christianson, president of the Minnesota Farmers Union, speaking at Plummer at a Farmers Union local officers conference for this area, noted that farm prices may not hold their own even at the present level while government officials have predicted that there will be an upturn in the cost of farming.

"With farm prices in Minnesota averaging only 67% of parity in December, it is simple to see that farm income and purchasing power is likely to shrink again," he said.

Christianson declared that while the soil-bank is important as a soil conservation measure, it will not be effective in raising farm price levels unless it is used in conjunction with a price support program at 90 to 100% of parity.

"Although some 12 million acres were placed in the soil-bank in 1956, there was no reduction in production because the flexible price supports in effect nullified the effect of the soil-bank.

"The new Congress should take early recognition of this situation," Christianson said. "Several improvements need to be made in the soil-bank particularly the inclusion of feed grains and other major field crops in the acreage reserve and the raising of payments and shortening of term of contracts in the conservation reserve.

"However, the most important action for Congress to take is to raise the price support levels and to provide price protection either through production payments or incentive payments on the perishables such as hogs, beef, poultry and eggs which are so important to the farmers of our state," Christianson said.

Minnesota Centennial Float

Throughout the next two years Minnesota residents will view this float at various community celebrations and parades.

Here, Miss Minnesota, Marie Miller, Winona, Minn., has her tiara straightened by Tom H. Swain, executive director of the Minnesota Statehood Centennial commission.

Sergeant Ward Gardner (rear standing), Minneapolis recruiting station, will direct the Army escort which will move the float to communities and pull it in parades.

Purpose of the 28 foot float is to publicize the up-coming Minnesota Centennial in 1958. The four-foot emblem on front is maroon and gold, the eagle has a six-foot wingspan. The four-foot scale model capitol on a pedestal at the rear is backed by an arch holding three American and two Minnesota flags. On the arch is superimposed a map of Minnesota.

Illumination for night parades is by 150 lights using over 3,000 watts. The float will be seen publicly for the first time in St. Paul Winter Carnival parades.

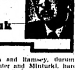
FARMING TODAY

by your County Agent

Paul Steinmuschuk



Crop Varieties

Farmers generally ask, "What is the best crop for my farm?" Lets look today at the recommended crop varieties for 1957.

Recommended varieties have been proved superior to other varieties in carefully conducted comparative tests. Trial plots are grown at the Central Station, at the branch experiment stations, in individual farmer's fields, and in cooperation with county organizations in southwestern and in extreme north central Minnesota.

In addition, the varieties are tested for disease resistance in the greenhouse and special disease nurseries at St. Paul. Varieties of wheat, barley, flax and soybeans are tested also in the laboratory for acceptability for industrial use.

Except in unusual circumstances, a variety must have been tested in Minnesota for a minimum of 3 years before it is considered for recommendation. New varieties that were developed in other states or in Canada may be brought into the state for seed production and for use on farms before the 3 years of tests can be completed. Such varieties are listed as "not adequately tested."

How List Is Selected

The list of recommended varieties is determined at a conference which this year included Chairman T. H. Fenske, Associate Dean of the Institute of Agriculture; staff members of the departments of Agronomy and Plant Genetics, Plant pathology and botany, and Agricultural Biochemistry; the superintendents and agronomists of the branch experiment stations at Waseca, Morris, Crookston, Grand Rapids, Duluth, and Rosemount; and representatives of the Minnesota Crop Improvement Association.

WHEAT—Varieties on the recommended list for 1957 are Lee and Selkirk, hard red springs Langdon and Ramsey, durum; and Minter and Minturki, hard red winter. Sentry was removed because it is susceptible to 15B stem rust, a race that has caused serious loss to the durum crop in recent years.

OATS — Recommended varieties are: Andrew and Mindand, early; Ajax, medium early; and Branch, Improved Garry, Rodney, and Sauk, late maturing. Mo. 0-205 was dropped because it is discounted on the market for its dark color and because it has not been outstanding in yeild.

BARLEY — Recommended varieties are: Kindred (K) and Montcalm, for malting; Peatland and Vantage for feed; and Fox and Traill. The malting qualities of the last two varieties has not been established.

FLAX — Recommended varieties are: Marine, early; B5128 and Redwood, late. Raja was placed in the "not recommended" list because of relatively poor yield.

SOYBEANS — Recommended varieties are Acme and Flambeau, very early, and Norchief was re-zoned and put into the zone south of us due to its later maturity.

SUNFLOWERS— Advance is a hybrid variety, medium in maturity, suitable for both feed and oil. Arrowhead is early in maturity and suitable only for feed. Both are recommended.

FIELD PEAS — The recommended varieties are Chancellor and Dashaway; both being medium in maturity. Multiplier was dropped from the list because of its lateness and comparatively low yield.

ALFALFA— The recommended varieties are Ladak, Ranger, and Verna for the longer rotations and Narragansett for rotations that include alfalfa for two-crop years or less.

Biennial Sweet clover: Madrid is a yellow-flowered variety of medium maturity, while evergreen is a white-blossomed variety very late in maturity. No others are recommended.

OTHER CROPS — Bromegrass: The recommended varieties are Achenbach, Fischer, and Lincoln. Birdsfoot Trefoil: At the present time, Empire is the only variety recommended for Minn. Sudangrass: Piper is the only variety recommended. Timothy: The recommended varieties are Itasca and Lorain. Kentucky Bluegrass: Park is the only variety recommended.

THEY'RE GOING TO STICK A NEEDLE IN ME

Yes, Sonny, we do it all the time! Mommie holds you in her lap. And that nice, friendly doctor gets the needle ready. Then . . . OUCH! And there's one less disease for you to worry about.

If only it were that easy to protect you from some of the other diseases that infest the world . . . the plagues that eat away man's moral and spiritual fibre.

So it requires wise parents, and Christian homes, and worshipping families, and vigorous churches to get you ready for a noble, happy life.

Better take it up Sunday with your folks: ISN'T IT TIME FOR ALL OF US TO GO TO CHURCH?

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Rev. Marvin O. Carlson in his pastoral report stated that with the addition of 131 new members the past year the membership of the congregation is now 621. He also stated that during the past year the congregation started having two Sunday morning worship services to accommodate those who wished to attend. Also because of the increase in the number of Sunday School students, classes are held at two separate hours in the parish house. During the past year the parsonage had been remodeled for use as a congregational parish house.

It was noted that the congregation, for the first time in history, is now a one-parish church. With the Calvary Lutheran Church of Strathcona, Minn. joining the Gustaf Adolph Lutheran Church of the same village, it now leaves First Lutheran as a one-church parish.

The congregation voted to authorize the board of trustees to make a study of the advisability of buying or building a new parsonage. The trustees are asked to report their finding to the congregation at an adjourned meeting Sunday evening, April 7.

The church treasury and all organizations noted a financial balance at the end of the year in spite of the numerous improvements achieved during the past year. A budget of $14,800.00 was adopted for this year.

Elected to serve as deacons for three years were Eugo Swanson and Shirley Lang. Reelected trustees were Floyd Lilstrom and Vernon Scholin. Mrs. W. G. Maves was elected for a one year term as Sunday School Supt. Dr. Myron Shervheim was elected secretary of the congregation.

The Rebecca circle served lunch following the meeting.

National Chamber Promotes Waage

Don L. Waage, assistant in the taxation and finance department of the United States Chamber of Commerce, Washington, D. C., today was appointed secretary of the finance committee of the national organization.

Waage formerly was public relations director of the Minnesota Bankers association, Minneapolis prior to joining the national Chamber last May. The appointment was announced by Arch N. Booth, executive vice president of the organization.

A native of Thief River Falls, Waage attended Washington school and Lincoln high school. He is the son of Mrs. Amanda Waage, Minneapolis, former resident of this city.

Unanimous support of a proposal to bring a two-year branch of the University of Minnesota to the Northwest School of Agriculture in Crookston was expressed at a meeting of "key" area residents in Crookston Tuesday night.

Although only about 40 of the 125 leading personalities invited from northwestern Minnesota were able to attend to express their views, six counties were Roseau, Norman, Marshall, Clearwater and Pennington. Keen interest was shown and general approval of the plan respective areas.

Among those at the meeting were Herman F. Skyberg, Fisher, a member of the University of Minnesota board of regents; and Theo. H. Fenske, associate dean of the University's Institute of Agriculture, and B. E. Youngquist, superintendent of the Northwest School.

Wholehearted support of the group which includes many who are graduates of the Northwest School and who now have children attending the institution.

At the same session the Northwest Educational Improvement Assn., which was formed Dec. 12 on a temporary basis with the idea of bringing a two-year University branch to Crookston, was made a permanent organization.

Officers are Tom Hagen, Crookston, who served previously as temporary chairman of the association, president; Alvin Erickson, Roseau, first vice president; Morris Grove, McIntosh, second vice president; Mrs. A. O. Hamnes, Stephen, Minn., third vice president; and Robert Larkin, Crookston, secretary-treasurer.

Hagen, who presided at the meeting, presented the case for the association before asking for the views of those assembled, asserting that the addition of a two-year college level curriculum was wise, proper, valuable to the region and economical to the University."

He said that the Northwest School was the logical place for such a step, and that it "would lend itself admirably to such an expansion program."

Less investment per student than in other places was another point brought out by Hagen during his opening address. He expressed the view that relatively little cash would be needed to to get the idea underway, and that no change, but rather a revaluation of the University's budget would be necessary to carry out the plan.

However, Dean Fenske, attending the meeting to gather information for a report to President J. L. Morrill of the University, felt that much more than a revaluation of the budget would be needed to establish a two-year college at Crookston.

He pleaded with those present to keep in mind the problems of the University as Pres. Morrill goes before the state legislature's appropriations committees to ask for needed funds.

He pointed to the $17 million that would be needed by the University next year, and the projected $18 million that would be needed the year after, and asked that the group take a sympathetic view of problems facing the school as the legislature begins making appropriations.

He also observed that a total of $702,000 over and above the operating budget is being asked for the Northwest School for rehabilitation and repair of present facilities and for new buildings.

However, he urged the group to continue with their idea if they have the backing of the people in the area.

Also asked to speak during the meeting was Supt. Youngquist, who took a neutral view of the proposal. "I am your servant," he said, "but I must be in a position to protect and defend the interests of the present institution."

He said that there is need for expansion "without question," but asked that the group to take enough time to hear all sides of the question and to see that the proposal is presented to proper authorities.

His views were supported by many of those present who said they were in favor of the plan only if the present institution would remain.

Solons Debate Gov. Freeman's Tax Proposals

Liberals Charge Conservatives With Hampering Program

Rep. John A. Hartle of Owatonna, Republican state party chairman, Thursday night replied to charges by two liberal legislative leaders that he resorted to "political maneuvering" in opposing Gov. Freeman's tax program.

House Speaker A. I. Johnson of Benson and Majority Leader Fred A. Cina of Aurora changed it was "unethical" for Hartle to propose a legislative program on behalf of the Republicans on the eve of Gov. Freeman's inaugural message.

"I welcome the opposition of the liberal House speaker and the majority leader, who have the task of trying to smother opposition to the Freeman tax plan, the most penalizing tax program ever advocated in the history of Minnesota," Hartle said.

Hartle was House speaker when the conservatives were in control at previous sessions. He claimed that Johnson and Cina were "carrying out recrimination on all legislators, both conservative and liberal, who are willing to stand up in opposition to the Freeman withholding tax, which would force a 50 per cent tax raise for Minnesota's working men."

Cina and Johnson said at a news conference that "there is nothing to be gained by either side, the conservatives or the liberals in the legislature, by trying to outmaneuver the other side for political advantages on this serious tax question."

"Raising revenue to meet the needs of the state for sevices and state obligations today," Cina and Johnson said, "is serious business and should not be subjected to political manipulations or maneuvers."

Stressing that the legislature is a forum for debate on important issues affecting all Minnesotans, Hartle said:

"When discussion is thwarted by men, who call themselves 'liberal,' when they band together in a press conference to hurl accusations at any one who advances honest criticism of their ideas, their very tactics cast doubt on the program they advocate."

"Many legislators were astounded at the huge spending program unveiled by the governor. They have a right to voice their objections."

Cina and Johnson charged that Hartle had announced the Republicans' legislative program without governor's program and without prior study or consideration.

Hartle emphasized that the Republican legislative program calls for an across-the-board percentage of the federal income tax to provide economy for the state and that it would "simplify the taxpaying procedure for our people."

Mr. and Mrs. Cleo Engelstad and Karen, and Al Engelstad of Minneapolis arrived Saturday to visit at the Mons Engelstad and Walter Evenson homes. They returned to Minneapolis Monday.

County Residents Invest $250,354 in U. S. Bonds in '56

Pennington county residents invested $250,354 in series E and H savings bonds in 1956, compared to $272,977 in 1955, J. M. Roche, chairman of the county U. S. Savings bond committee, reported today. He stated that throughout Minnesota purchases of these bonds amounted to $86.4 million in 1956, down about 11 per cent from the 1955 high of $97.1 million.

Marshall county residents invested $340,220 in the bonds last year, and $319,223 in 1955; while Red Lake county bought $54,112 worth in 1956 and $66,019 the previous year.

"Although total sales were down, the purchases of the small-size E bonds in the popular 'savers' denominations ($25-$100) continued to increase in comparison to previous years, and, "he went on to say, "we should remaind everyone that 'a part of every American's savings belongs in U. S. Savings Bonds".

In the eleven year period since the close of World War II, purchases of U. S. Savings bonds by residents of Minnesota have exceeded one billion dollars.

Across the nation the cash value of Series E and H bonds now outstanding reached $41,396 million on December 31, 1956, the all-time record.

Machine Cut Lenses to Shape

Glasses are ordered in a wide variety of shapes these days and each lens must be rough-cut before it can be smoothed and fitted into a frame. The machine shown here is almost automatic. The already-ground lens is marked to shape, a template conforming to the intended shape of the lens is put on the cutter and the machine does the rest, practically without help. Here Benson Optical Co. Thief River Falls Manager William Rants looks on as John Gullingsrud goes through the process of cutting a lens to the shape ordered.

Don L. Olson Takes Over Presidency of Chamber at Banquet

Addressing 200 members of the Chamber of Commerce and their ladies at the group's annual dinner meeting Thursday evening in the Trinity church dining hall, York Langton, regional chairman of the Association for the United Nations, declared that while the United States still has some hard-shell isolationists, a recent Gallup Poll showed that the great majority of citizens support the United Nations setup.

He emphasized that everyone should be concerned about the state of the world, and thus be interested in the UN. We should, he said, try to bring our thinking up to date in respect to international problems, in keeping with this atomic age.

Don L. Olson, newly elected president of the C. of C., had charge of the program. He introduced out-of-town guests, and called on Janet Torgerson, Lincoln high school student, for two vocal solos, accompanied by Jeanne Dahlen.

Copies of the 1956 report on activities and finances of the Chamber were distributed, and President Olson solicited the cooperation of the membership during the coming year.

Don M. Olson, manager of the local Coast to Coast store, introduced Mr. Langton, who is also trade extension of Coast to Coast Stores central organization in Minneapolis.

Langton discussed various phases of UN activities in the fields of peacetime use of atomic power, colonialism, trusteeships, disarmament, technical aid and the World Health Organization.

He also called attention to the role played by the UN in helping to solve problems arising in recent years in Pakistan, Indonesia, Korea, Palestine and Suez.

A statistical report of the Sunnyrest Sanatorium at Crookston for the year 1956, the second year of combined operation of Sunnyrest and the former Oakland Park Sanatorium, was released this week by Dr. L. H. Flancher, superintendent.

The total cost of operation for this year was $109,142.53 as compared to $111,516.90 in 1955. The cost per day per patient in 1956 was $8.01 compared to $8.10 in 1955. The total number of patients this year was practically the same as in 1955; that is 38.

There has been a slight decrease in the operational cost this year due to the fact that after March 1, 1956, there was only one full-time doctor employed as Dr. Baldwin Borreson, the superintendent & medical director, resigned as of February 1, 1956 due to ill health. However, the work is being carried on the same as previously by the present Superintendent, Dr. L. H. Flancher, together with the aid of a full-time nurse, Mrs. Mary Vattendahl who was employed as of April 1, 1956. The cost of the out-patient department in 1955 was $10,453.09 as compared to $4,615.96 in 1956.

The wisdom of the merger of the two sanatoria has again been proved by lowered cost to all of the counties for a larger number of patients than previously, and also in increased tuberculosis work for all of the counties.

County	1956	1954
Polk	$25,420.01	$30,503.73
Norman	9,182.04	15,289.03
Marshall	11,302.05	18,775.12
Roseau	10,595.65	17,003.43
Pennington	9,182.94	15,254.85
Red Lake	4,941.02	7,225.97

A full time out-patient department with a field nurse, Mrs. Mary Vattendahl in charge, assisted by the superintendent, shows the work that has been done in this department. Besides Mantoux testing in the schools, the discharged patients are kept under supervision under the following regulations: For the first year after discharge, they have an x-ray and interview with the medical director every three months. During the second year this is carried out every six months, and thereafter once a year. This insures that at the end of three years they have not again become active, and the medical director has a chance to direct their activities during this period.

Copies of all x-ray reports are always sent to the family physician when any clinic patient comes in for an x-ray. In this way the family physician is always aware of the chest condition of his patients.

The field nurse makes regular calls on ex-patients and contacts who have failed their appointments for x-ray. She also contacts active cases of tuberculosis that have been diagnosed, either by the family physician or in the out-patient department, to encourage them to come in to the sanatorium. Also the parents of the positive reactors in the schools, especially in the kindergarten, and the 1st and 4the grades after the program is completed in the counties, are x-rayed as soon thereafter as possible. This is to find out if possible where the student has received his infection and if the source of the infection can be located, bring them into the institution.

The all-day clover institute will be held Friday, Februray 1, in the Roseau auditorium where those attending will hear all about the latest findings in legume research. Experts from the University of Minnesota will be on hand to illustrate their findings and talk with interested persons.

A legume seed contest is being sponsored for the institute, with classes in alsike, red and sweet clover; alfalfa and timothy, and bluegrass. Prizes are to be awarded winning samples.

A travelogue, "Motorambling" will be presented by Carol Lane, New York Times staff member, who will tell about latest traveling techniques. Ten pieces of luggage will be given away by the Roseau Civic and Commerce Association at the show being held in the Roso Theatre.

Friday night Roseau high school hockey Rams play St. Paul Johnson, and although it is not a scheduled portion of the program, will be an excellent feature attraction.

Saturday there will be a local talent ice show and the Cloverleafs are attempting to line up a Winnipeg team for an exhibition hockey game.

Free coffee will be served those attending the Legume Institute on Friday as well as those attending the travelogue.

Family Life to Be Conference Topic Here February 23

Leaders in Homemakers' Groups, Other Interested People Invited to Attend

"Developing Family Sharing and Planning" is the topic of the annual Family Life Conference to be held in the court house meeting room on Wednesday, February 23 at 1 p.m. The conference is included in the Pennington county extension home program, Home Agent Marge Olsen announced today.

Families want to learn how they can develop better attitudes toward each other, how they can plan to do more together as family members, and how they can work together to reach the most satisfaction for all members of the family. At the conference, ways of enriching family living will be discussed by those present. Often just the chance to get together to talk over problems is the most important part of developing the sharing and planning for the future that families need, said Miss Olsen.

Guest speaker will be Charlie Martin, the extension specialist with the University of Minnesota.

Leaders from the county's homemakers groups and interested workers in the family relations field have been invited to attend.

66,108 Farm Jobs Filled by State Job Offices in '56

Minnesota farmers used the state employment service to find people to fill 66,108 agricultural jobs in 1956, according to a report issued Thursday by the office of Commissioner Frank T. Starkey of the department of employment security.

Last year's farm placement figure is approximately 1% higher than in 1955, and is 22% more than the 54,300 farm jobs filled in 1953, the year in which the activities performed by its employment service representatives began to be an important factor in the state setup.

"ES Reps" are volunteer businessmen, who assist the department in serving communities in which there had been no full time or part time service available. Last year there were approximately 375 such representatives whose operations accounted for 42,300 of the "rep's" farm placement activities, as well as about 5,500 non farm placements. The goal of the employment service is to so utilize the ES Rep activity that an official point of contact with the Department is available, either by commuting or over the phone, to the State's entire agricultural community.

Elks Lodges Warn Against Moscow 'Youth Festival'

U. S. Elks lodges have alerted the public against communist attempts to recuit young people to attend a so-called "youth festival" in Moscow next summer.

Philip Prichard, exalted ruler of Thief River Falls Elks lodge, said that warnings had gone to school officials, youth groups, civic organizations, and members of the clergy, advising that the "Sixth Annual Festival of Youth and Students" despite its avowed high-sounding objectives, is a communist scheme to subvert unsuspecting youth and promote communist world conquest. Prichard pointed out that the "World Federation of Democratic Youth", which is sponsoring the "festival", is a Soviet propaganda front, set up shortly after World War II.

"We are confident that no youngster or parent, having the facts, could be duped by this communist maneuver," he said. "Our purpose in issuing this warning is to make certain that those facts are known."

First Blizzard Hits Area Monday Morning

The winter's first storm to approach blizzard proportions resulted in many school closings, made highway travel very difficult and reduced visibility sharply in the northern Minnesota area early Monday.

The storm, part of a widespread precipitation band which covered the upper midwest, brought heavy snows to some areas and northwest Minnesota area has been warned of heavy snow and blowing snow for Monday.

The highway patrol reports driving conditions to be very difficult and hazardous and warned motorists to avoid travel, if possible. Many northern Minnesota and northeastern North Dakota schools were closed because of the storm.

No estimate on the amount of snow that had fallen in the Thief River Falls area is available but Crookston had 3 inches up to 7 a.m. this morning. Up to 11 a.m. Monday the city had received no unusually heavy snowfall, however.

Temperatures have been on the rise preceding the storm. The low for the period starting Thursday was a -14 Thursday morning. The high was Saturday's 34 above. The Monday low was 5 above zero.

The forecast calls for heavy snow and blowing snow in northwest Minnesota and a warning has been issued by the weather bureau to that effect. There will be no important temperature change Monday. Snow will continue through Tuesday in varying amounts with little temperature change tonight. Tuesday, snow and colder is predicted.

Winds will be northeasterly, 20 to 40 m.p.h., diminishing Monday night and Tuesday. Highs today will be 15 above, the low tonight around zero.

The Wednesday outlook is for clearing skies and below normal temperatures, following in the wake of the storm.

The key to safety is you.

Kitchen Tour to 3 County Homes Set Wednesday, Feb. 6

Group to Visit Kitcens in Cloverleaf, Goodridge and Kratka Townships

Miss Dora Hochhalter, extension home improvement specialist at the University of Minnesota, will be in Penington county for a kitchen tour Wednesday, February 6, County Home Agent Marge Olsen anounced today.

Many families in the county are planning to either rearrange or remodel their kitchens. This can be done by the family, but often the suggestions of an expert or ideas from families who have remodelled can be really worthwhile, said Miss Olsen.

On the kitchen tour, those attending will have a chance to ask the home owners themselves just how they planned their kitchen. Miss Mochhalter will be available for answering questions.

Three farm homes will be visited: Those of Kermit Maidments in Cloverleaf Township, the Edwin Koglins in Kratka and the Ed Gevings in Goodridge.

In addition, the Ernest Swanson home in Highlanding township will be included. The Swansons have not yet remodelled their kitchen but would like to do so in the future. Miss Hochhalter will give suggestions about rearranging and remodeling right in the Swanson kitchen, and interested people are invited to come over and sit in on the "suggestion session."

A schedule for the tour will be publicized next week, Miss Olsen added.

Repair shops deep in the ground at underground coal mines are so well lighted and equipped that they resemble large city garages.

Benson Optical Co. Is Busy Industry in TRF

A highly important but little-known concern operating in this city is Benson Optical Company, a firm which grinds eyeglass lenses to suit the visual needs of thousands of people in the area around Thief River Falls.

The local branch, one of 25 scattered through the upper Midwest, serves an area east to Bemidji, north to the Canadian border, west into northeastern North Dakota and south as far as Mahnomen. William Ranta, formerly of Duluth, is the local branch manager.

The Benson Optical Co. has its headquarters in Minneapolis. Other branches in the upper Midwest area are at Duluth and Brainerd, Minnesota, and Bismarck and Williston in North Dakota so one can easily grasp the idea of how large a territory the local branch serves in its day to day operations here.

A lens such as Benson Optical Co. grinds goes through many procedures before it is finally put into a pair of frames with another lens, for delivery to the person who needs it. Nor is any one lens necessarily the same as its fellow in the frames as each eye is corrected to its individual needs.

For this reason there are hundreds of grinding forms on the shelves in the polishing room at the optical concern's shop. When an order comes in from an optometrist there are figures on the order which correspond to certain curvatures necessary to do the job of correcting the eyes of the person who will wear the finished glasses.

When Ray Johnson, at Benson's gets the order he takes a pair of blanks from the large stock kept at Bensons, making sure, of course, they are the kind of blanks called for whether bifocal, trifoval or other kind. (The blanks arrive here with the bi-or-trifocal lens already fused into them by the glass makers.)

Johnson then marks the prescription called for on the lenses before attaching the blank to an attachment which fits on the cuter. This is a machine which rough cuts the prescription curvature, whether cylindrical or spheroid, with diamond-set cutters.

Then each rough-cut blank is put on another machine which works on the principal of the human arm in grinding the lenses on a suitable form, with fine carborundum used as an abrasive in the form to further shape the curvature of the lens.

After this second step each lens is transferred two more times to machines which do the finer grinding process and at last it is polished on a felt-covered form saturated with a special polishing solution, refined from rare earths obtainable only in India.

The forms which are used to shape the necessary correction curves in the lenses, incidentally, must be "trued up" on a machine made especially for this purpose. The forms are made of metal and the abrasives used in grinding the lenses cuts the forms out just as fast. A form can be used on approximately two grindings before truing.

To assure acurracy the truing machine uses highly accurate templates to return the prescription form to its exact shape. The process is almost automatic once the template and form to be trued are put in place and the machine is started. The planing blade follows the template contours accurately.

Once the lens is completed as far as prescription grinding is concerned, it goes through a process of being cut to fit the frames ordered by the customer. The machine which does this also works off a template, which guides the edge cutter.

Before installation in frames, the edges must be smoothed and rounded. This completed, the frames, themselves, are heated to pliability in hot salt (hot water would discolor the plastic frames) and the lenses are inserted while frames still soft, then cooled suddenly. Presto—the frames contract and the lenses snap into a tight fit in the frames.

Five persons are employed by the Benson Optical Co. here and a sixth will join the firm soon, Manager Ranta said last week. In addition to himself and Johnson, the local branch personnel includes John Gullingsrud and Darlene Udstrand, both Thief River Falls natives, and Donald Magnell, formerly of Oklee. All except Miss Udstrand are opticians, having served 5-year apprenticeships prior to attaining that classification.

Machines Work Magic on Lenses

Here are a few of the machines that put the necessary corrections into eyeglass lenses and the many fittings required to grind them. The Benson Optical Co. optician here is Raymond L. Johnson. The articles on the shelves are the forms used in grinding prescription lenses and each form is shaped to correspond to a certain type of eye condition correction prescription. The form is fastened to the machine, abrasive is brushed on, and the lens is fastened to the vibrator arm, which works the lens over the form until the desired curve is achieved. The lenses come to the optical company as rough blanks and the firm grinds them to suit the individual needs of the customer.

Finishes Lenses

Donald Magnell puts the finishing touches to a lens at the Benson Optical Co. here, preparatory to mounting it in the frame. Magnell, a native of Oklee, works in the finishing department where lenses, once ground, are cut and fitted in frames before delivery to the optometrist who placed the order. Before lenses are fitted in frames, however, the rough edges left by the shaper must be ground off and this is what Magnell is doing.

The firm started operations here three years ago in 1954. Manager of the firm then was Raymond Ranta, no relation to William Ranta, the present manager, who came here in August, 1956.

What Happens After Christmas?

Besides paying the bill, the weeks after Christmas bring other responsibilities. Parents know what a "let-down" follows the excitement of the holiday season. New possessions, extra-good food, gay decorations all lend a festive air. We spent too much. We ate too much. We have worn the new off of toys and clothes. We are tired and edgy. The pre-holiday cleaning no longer gives the house that best-look-forward look. Where do we go from here? Now is the time to sit down and take stock to get the effect of an intellectual and emotional vitamin pill from a deliberately planned course of action.

First of all, get the children reoriented and then the rest comes easier. The chief problem may well be the mountains of possessions lying around. Children are over-stimulated by disorder and too many toys. The best plan is to mix old favorites with new toys and then to put away at least half out of sight and reach. Then "sweeten-up" theremainder with inexpensive additions like a new box of crayons; a gold fish in a bowl; some beans, grass seed, or grapefruit seeds planted in flower pots.

While sorting it is easy, too, to fill one box with toys for a sick-a-bed day, another for a rainy day, and perhaps a choice few in a grocery sack for that emergency when callers come unexpectedly or a trip requires quiet amusements. Besides helping in the playroom, this sorting and storing also provides for future special needs much more effecteively than last minute catch-as-catch-can.

Parents, too, need "something" after the holidays. It may be nothing more than a tasty dish contrasting with holiday fare; a movie for mother and dad; a one-meal "treat" prepared by the children. Or perhaps a gift piece of furniture calls for changing the living room arrangement. This can be a "fun" family afair, complete with popcorn, apples, and hot chocolate.

Marshall County Risk Firm Retains Present Officers

All officers of the Marshall County Skandinaviske Mutual Fire Insurance company were reelected at the annual organizational meeting of the board held at the company offices in Newfolden on January 8 through 11.

Heading the organization is Carl A. Johnson of Warren as president; Ole E. Hjelle, Newfolden, vice president; A. C. Gudim, Newfolden, secretary; and Ben Fisher, Newfolden, treasurer. Melvin Torgerson, Thief River Falls, is a member of the board of directors.

The company had $28,036,941 of insurance in force on December 31, an increase of approximately $200,000 over the previous year, Mr. Johnson reported. Losses paid during 1956 totaled $10,940.28. The company has assets over liabilities totaling $163,672.71.

In February, the detailed annual report of the year's operation will be published as an official publication in the Sheaf.

Four juveniles from Thief River Falls were apprehended in Red Lake Falls Friday night, January 11 by Henry Thode, police chief, for stealing tires and wheels from used car lots, says the RLF Gazette.

The boys, one of them a former Red Wing inmate, had jimmied open a trunk of a car on the Pahlen auto lot and taken a wheel and tire. While Thode was following them a short ways east of town, they threw one wheel and tire into the ditch but claimed it was their own. It was found to have come from a car on the Thibert used car lot.

Hearing before a juvenile judge is to be held later, according to Sheriff Carl Kankel of Red Lake county.

Nearly $750 property damage was sustained to vehicles of city and area drivers in six accidents which happened within the city limits since Thursday, according to city police. No deaths or injuries were reported, however. Charges were filed against drivers in at least one case, police said.

Thursday, Ole Fladeland, driving a cab south in the 500 block of LaBree av. was struck in the rear by a woman, not named by police. The cab had only slight damage but the front of the woman's car was damaged to the extent of $100.

Friday, about 8:30 a.m. Francis J. Cloutier reported he was struck, just after stopping in front of St. Bernard's church, by Mrs. Waldo Field, who was driving in the same direction in which Cloutier had been going. Damage to both cars totalled about $100.

Another Friday accident, of a total of five that day, occurred when Orris C. Johnson, in making right turn onto E. 8th st. from Dewey av. was involved in a collision with Jerome J. Wirt, who was making a right turn onto Dewey av. from E. 8th st. Slight damages, totalling about $75 resulted. The collision happened about 1:50 p.m.

At 3:35 Friday Gerhard E. Quam, who was going south in the alley behind the post office, started to turn into the city parking lot and collided with a pickup truck driven by Roy Robert Lee, rt. 1, St. Hilaire, who was pulling out of the lot. No damage was done to the truck but Quam's car sustained about $110 damage.

At 8:30 Friday, Ross B. Sloan, city, was driving away from the gas pumps at Fred's Mobil Service when he became involved in a collision with Vern Dondoneau, rt. 5, Red Lake Falls, who was approaching the gas pumps. Sloan had about $45 damage and Dondoneau $35.

About 11 p.m. Friday a car stolen from the Tunberg Motor Co. used car lot at 3rd st. and Main av. N. hit a tree at the intersection of Knight av. and Zeh st., resulting in about $200 damage to the car. Police Chief Elton Cummings said the driver fled the scene after the accident and that police are still investigating.

The most damaging single accident since Thursday occurred Saturday when the car driven by Jerome K. Henning, headed north on Main av. hit a large pickup truck driven by Richard Kiesow, Goodridge, who was going west on 8th st. Damages amounting to $200 were sustained to the Henning car while the Kiesow pickup truck had only $25 damage.

BY Mack Draper

To hear the promoters all over the country talk you'd think there never was a big boom in industry, road-building, home-building etc., before. You hear terms that were unheard of 10 years ago and everything has to make way for progress. If you aren't for "progress" you're a "reactionary."

But—wait a minute! Before we start bragging about "progress", hadn't we better wait 50 years and see if what we're doing now will show up as real progress in the light of all the mistakes made as we go along?

We're burning up a lot of resources and spending a lot of money in making our "progress." It might be well to check our position before we get an awful belly-ache in years ahead from all this so-called "progress."

Even the cigarette ads are saying "Live modern." Everything has to be "new" or "different" and everybody tries to outdo everybody else in the name of progress. Some squirrel-heads even change their beliefs from time to time just to be "progressive." Progress has become a fetish.

Which leads up to the simple conclusion that it is probably better the life span of humanity is only three-score and ten years or so. That way we manage to escape the penalty of living with all the mistakes we made in the past.

Progress? Heck yes—we've got it, along with the most trouble this old world has ever had!

We hear that two of the newly elected governors aren't happy with the living quarters provided them. The governor of Missouri absolutely refuses to live in the governor's "mansion" in the capitol city of the state and the situation in our neighbor state to the west isn't a great deal better, so the rumor goes.

The only thing we know of that can go faster than some of our new jet planes is a dollar bill.

How come? The government pays farmers to take some land out of production—yet foots the bill for irrigation projects that will result in higher crop production than ever before! Doesn't make much sense to a city slicker. Those Washington bureaucrats should compare notes sometime and avoid such crossed wires.

A Parallel to the above is the highway builders and the Air Force always seem to want the choicest land they can find on which to locate their projects. Perhaps this country was better off when the Indians had it, after all!

Crookston is agitating to have a branch of the University of Minnesota located there. Well, they'd have to try awfully hard to find a more illogical place for a university branch, in our humble opinion! (What's wrong with good old Thief River Falls?)

Excellent progress (pardon the word!) is being made in the organization of an Air Force reserve flight here in Thief River Falls. The reserve offers a lot to those who participate and we'd encourage those who have reserve obligations to get in on this as quickly as possible. If you don't you may be sorry you didn't one of these days because of the benefits lost.

That's it for now. We're fresh out of gab so—So Long!

Booklet Tells of State Finances

Prepared by Minnesota Taxpayers Association

"Fiscal Facts for Minnesotans" is the title of a 40-page booklet which includes a wealth of pertinent information about the state government, together with comparisons, in many instances, with other states. It was prepared by the Minnesota Taxpayers association and is being distributed to public officials, newspapers, members of the Legislature, schools and colleges and others who need a compendium of factual information about the state, according to Norman A. Borgen, executive secretary of the association.

"This booklet for example," Mr. Borgen said, "points out that the United States government collected $1,149,252,569 in Minnesota during the fiscal year of 1956 and quotes the district director of internal revenue as the source."

"It shows total revenue receipts of the state government as $363,402,000, including $259,724,000 in tax revenue, for the fiscal year of 1956. The booklet shows a $1,918,516,930 total value of real and personal property in Minnesota in 1955 on which property taxes of $303,962,469 were levied. Incidentally, property assessments increased 14 per cent during the period 1951 to 1955, while the total taxes levied on property increased 31.9 percent."

Mr. Borgen explained that the booklet is invaluable as an accurate source of information for thousands of persons who determine policies at both governmental and business levels.

Information sources include The Tax Foundation, the state auditor, the Internal Revenue Service, the census bureau, the Minnesota department of health, the department of commerce, and others.

CIVIL DEFENSE 'KEYPOINT' for Los Angeles is typical of some 200 such communication centers throughout the nation maintained by local civil defense. In less populous areas, "keypoints" are often police or fire stations, where someone is always on duty. They depend on the Federal Civil Defense Administration's 14,100-mile warning net (inset) to link them to Air Force air defense division control centers. Keypoints notify, in turn some 3,300 "sub-keypoints" which set off sirens and call out civil defense personnel.

4-H'er of the WEEK

Margaret Myrum

Self-confidence is valuable to all of us, at the age of seven or seventy. 4-H'ers learn to develop self-confidence by successfully completing their project work, giving demonstrations and talks, and by taking part in many different activities.

Margaret Myrum of the Deer Park 4-H club says, "I have really enjoyed the five years I have been in 4-H and I'm looking forward to another enjoyable year. I like 4-H because I have met so many nice people, and for its activities and friendly competition. Junior leadership has taught me how to become a better citizen and a better leader. More than anything else 4-H has given me self-confidence. I used to think "I can't," or "Someone else could do it better." Now, if I'm called upon to do something, I am brave enough to try, and try to do the best I can."

Since she has served as president of her club for 2 years, and secretary for 3 years, Margaret has learned how to take part in meetings, which adds to her self-confidence, too. She has been active in Luther League, and choir in her church, and has been a Sunday School teacher as well. In school, she is head typist of the Lincoln Log and is on the business staff of the paper, Margaret sings in the girls' glee club and is assistant librarian for the Library Club.

Her future plans include college. She would like to be a teacher, majoring in elementary teaching with a minor in home economics.

Raymond Nelson

Raymond is a native of St. Paul, Minnesota, and has been a member of 4-H for 8 years. He has served as reporter for his club and has been the recipient of many awards for his club work. He has taken part in the 4-H plays for two years and was chosen an outstanding actor in 1956. He has given a dairy demonstration at the Crookston Winter Shows and the County Fair for which he received a State Fair trip. In 1956 he was on the 4-H dairy judging team, taking part in the Crookston Winter Shows and the State Fair. He is an enthusiastic participator in Dairy Day, and has been given the 7th year exhibitor award. Raymond has been given 7 dairy achievement awards, for his work in that project, and 4 state fair trips. He attended 4-H camp in 1956.

He is also active in the community by serving as treasurer of his Luther League at the present time. He has also held the office of President of the League and Secretary of the Brotherhood. He is a member of the Silver Creek Church and the Luther League.

This summer Raymond plans to enlist in the U. S. Air Force and to finish his High School in there and to go to an Electronic Technical School. Following his enlistment, he may go back to civilian life and start farming.

When asked how 4-H has helped him, Raymond answers: "Through 4-H I have learned many things, one of these is the importance of cooperation in my home, church, and community. I have realized the importance of sportsmanship. We should be good losers as well as good winners. Boys and girls enrolled in 4-H learn skills for their future at a much younger age. When a 4-H'er has won an award he should never feel that it is the best he can do.

Trainer Shows Students How to Avert Car Crashes

Whether an impending highway crash turns into another disaster or a near miss may depend on a driver's behind-the-wheel prowess the instant after the emergency develops.

While thousands of youths are taught to drive in the nation's high schools, they get precious little instruction in meeting highway emergencies.

Limited surveys of driver education programs show that trained drivers have far fewer accidents than those with no training. Good as this record is, many safety educators—like Dr. Herbert J. Stack of the Center for Safety Education at New York University—believe it would be even better if drivers were taught what to do in highway emergencies.

Staging crash situations with real cars to give student drivers practice in meeting emergencies on the highway would give any driver education instructor nightmares. Obviously, such a program was out of the question.

Now, however, many student drivers are receiving this vital training, thanks to a revolutionary classroom training device called the Ætna Drivotrainer, which is being used in an increasing number of high schools throughout the country.

No Risk in Drivotrainer

But with the Drivotrainer, special movies that show a driver's eye view of the road ahead bring the highways into the classroom where beginning drivers—without risk to themselves or others—can learn how to avert a crash.

In the Drivotrainer, which was developed by the Ætna Casualty and Surety Company, students take their behind-the-wheel training in small model cars which they learn to "drive" on highways shown on a huge movie screen the same as they would appear through the windshield of a real car.

While the Drivotrainer course covers everything from basic skills like steering and shifting to more complex techniques like parallel parking and making U and Y turns, one of the 19 special training films is devoted wholly to emergency training.

In this part of the course, students experience a nerve-tingling series of potential accident situations on the Drivotrainer's movie highways and are drilled in the behind-the-wheel maneuvers that will avoid a crash.

By doing what cannot be done with conventional training methods, the Drivotrainer will help future motorists to do spontaneously the thing that will avert an accident when they're on real highways.

First used in the New York City schools, the Drivotrainer has since been introduced in Los Angeles, Oak Park, Ill., Oklahoma City, Dearborn and Lansing, Mich., Springfield, Mo., Fort Collins, Colo., Waterloo and Mason City, Ia., Freeport and East Meadow, N.Y.

The WORLD OUTDOORS

NOVELISTS and short story writers have long taken advantage of the broad appeal of the words, "The Great Outdoors." It makes a wonderful-sounding phrase for the jacket of any book that devotes a chapter or two to a camping trip in the Adirondacks or a chase of the robbers through the Everglades.

The reasons behind the appeal of "The Great Outdoors" are borne out in the fact that approximately 30 million Americans are hunters and fishermen, and an untold additional number are bird watchers, butterfly chasers and just plain nature-lovers; altogether representing a sizable hunk of our national population. And, according to the records, this is a nice segment of the population to do business with. Figures for a recent year showed hunting and fishing alone to be a six billion dollar business — which made it 80% greater than the annual sales of all drug stores and 136% greater than the sales of household appliances, radio and TV sets combined.

At the above rate, the average fisherman spent $310 and the average hunter $306 and according to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service figures for the same year, this meant that the average angler spent $4 for his trout while Joe Nimrod spent $1.25 for his rabbit and as high as $300 for a moose. Would you pay so much if these items sold at the corner store?

You wouldn't spend half the amount — but neither would the true sportsman. He wouldn't spend one-third the amount. Not at the corner store. He buys the thrill of the chase and the challenge of pitting his wits against the wiley ways of his quarry. He pays for the privilege of getting "outside."

Prepared by the Minnesota Historical Society

INDIAN SOLDIERS

Although there were no white settlers in Minnesota during the American Revolution, the area was an important potential source of manpower eagerly sought after by both sides.

In the spring of 1778 Lieutenant Charles Gautier visited the Sioux and Winnebago tribes on behalf of the British and recruited Indian warriors to go down the Great Lakes and help the British attack the northern American colonies. This move aroused particularly great resentment against the British on the part of outlying American settlers in Ohio, Indiana, and upper New York state.

After Spain made an alliance with France against the English, agents were sent from the Spanish garrison at St. Louis to win away the tribes from their allegiance to the English. In 1781 one of these agents, Pierre Dorion, spent six months on the upper Mississippi, working mainly among the Sioux. On his return to St. Louis he was accompanied by a Sioux chief and several members of his tribe. Dorion reported that all the Sioux had promised to be friendly to Spain except Chief Wabasha who, a year earlier, had been commissioned a general in the British army and had led his tribesmen in an unsuccessful attack on the Spanish garrison at St. Louis.

JAILS IN THE 1880s

The first state-wide investigation of conditions in Minnesota's jails was begun in 1883 by the State Board of Corrections and Charities. The board's findings, which were published in its first biennial report in 1884, presented a harrowing picture.

According to the report, the jails in most cases were maintained by the county sheriff on a specified allowance, and the condition of the jail depended upon the sheriff's honesty or his attitude toward penology. The sheriff of Stearns county received special commendation from the board for his humane treatment of prisoners and for his success in rehabilitating them.

Most of the county jails in the state were described as dark, cold, damp, and infested with vermin, and some of the prisoners did not receive adequate food. In many places there were no separate cells for women, nor were facilities available to segregate prisoners by age or by the seriousness of their crimes.

Jails constructed of wood were both insecure and dangerous in case of fire. Frequent escapes were reported, and fires had occurred in jails located in Becker, Pine, and Wilkin counties killing a total of four prisoners.

Various types of patented ready-made cells were being tried, and new jails were being built. Of the LeSueur county jail, built in 1881 at a cost of $14,000, the investigators said that the county "did not get its money's worth" and had paid "$4,000 too much."

Though conditions in jails were generally bad, the report reveals that Minnesotans were concerned about the problem and were eager to improve conditions.

WINTER FOOD SHORTAGES

During the winter in Minnesota's early territorial days, pioneers often experience severe food shortages. Fresh vegetables, fruits, meats, and dairy products were especially scarce, and by 1849, when Minnesota became a territory, there was a scarcity of wild game near the larger towns.

Mrs. John North, wife of the man who later became the founder of Northfield, was living in St. Anthony, now a part of Minneapolis, during the winter of 1849. In letters to her parents in New York state, she wished for apples and said that she had had no milk, eggs, or cream since her arrival in St. Anthony that fall. A sketch of North's Minnesota career appears in the September, 1950, issue of "Minnesota History."

The reminiscences of Mrs. Joseph Ullman, wife of a pioneer St. Paul fur broker, are in the collections of the Minnesota Historical Society. Mrs. Ullman writes that a St. Paul neighbor told her in the fall of 1855, as she faced her first winter in Minnesota, that "Fresh meat is not to be had here for either love or money before the first of May." She reports that fresh beef was put away in the fall in salt and sawdust for consumption during the winter.

As long as the infant Minnesota settlements were dependent upon the Mississippi River as their avenue for supplies, they were forced to preserve as much food as possible for use during the winter and to live on a fare that was, at best, plain and unvaried.

NEWEST COUNTY

Lake of the Woods was the last of Minnesota's eighty-seven counties to be organized. It was created from the northern part of Beltrami county in 1922, and includes the Northwest Angle, northernmost part of the United States.

If Warren Upham, author of "Minnesota Geographic Names," had had his way, the county would have been named for La Verendrye, a famous French explorer and fur trader who established Fort St. Charles on Lake of the Woods in the eighteenth century. Upham's plan was unsuccessful, however, perhaps because people felt that the French name would be difficult to pronounce and spell.

The petition to establish the new county was carried by 507 votes in the Beltrami county election on November 7, 1922, and Lake of the Woods county was proclaimed by Governor J. A. O. Preus on November 22, 1922. Baudette was named the county seat. The county's first representative in the Minnesota legislature was W. T. Noonan, editor of the "Baudette Region," and a man widely known as the "Sage of Baudette."

Lincoln Quint Takes Warren, But Lose to Mahnomen; EGF Next

Coach Lute Olson's undefeated Mahnomen Indians scalped the basketball Prowlers here Saturday night, but just barely as they defeated the locals, 59 to 58, in an overtime tilt.

On Friday night, playing at Warren, the Prowlers engaged in a district conference game against the Ponies, and with rangy Dave Hanson stuffing 32 points in the basket, coach Al Adams' blue-and-gold squad turned in a 52 to 47 win.

This Friday night, on the local court, the Prowlers will continue in district conference play as they meet the Little Green Wave of East Grand Forks. Tip-off time for the varsity game will be at 8:00 p. m.

The highlights of the past week's play was undoubtedly that overtime affair here on Saturday night, with Mahnomen edging out a one-point win.

The Prowlers had control of the game for three periods, holding a lead of two points, 11 to 9, at the end of the first period, a seven-point bulge at the intermission, 30 to 23. With Dave Hanson tossing in field goals on hook shots, rebounds, and lay-ups, the Prowlers spurted to a commanding 48 to 33 lead at the third period.

The Indians, with Al Kjos notching points from the free throw line and Al Santwire hitting from out on the court, pared that Prowler lead to five points, 55 to 50, with 2:15 to play. Santwire scored on a jump shot with 1:45 to play, and Darrel Mack looped in a pair of free throws, and when Santwire added a point on a free throw with 1:10 to play, the game was in a 55-all tie. Neither team scored in the remaining seconds of regulation time, and the game was forced into overtime.

With 1:58 to play in the overtime, Santwire, on a drive-in shot, scored a field goal into the west basket. Dave Hanson tallied a point for the Prowlers from the gift shot line, but Kjos, showing calmness and accuracy, dropped in a pair of free throws. Dave Hanson, just as the game-ending buzzer sounded, dunked in a Prowler field goal.

Friday night's game at Warren was hotly contested, and it was largely through the efforts of Dave Hanson, who scored seven field goals and three free throws in the second period, that the Prowlers were able to build up their game-winning margin. Hanson, the game's high-point man, totaled 32 points for the night, having thirteen field goals and six free throws. Warren's Curt Bystul racked up seventeen points for runner-up honors.

In preliminary game play on Friday and Saturday night, coach Joe Mrkonich's Prowler 'B' team marked up a pair of victories. With Gerry Landdowski scoring seventeen points, the Prowler 'B' team defeated the Warren 'B' team, 56 to 31. On Saturday night the local B's, with Mickey Hanson hitting on some spectacular jump shots to tally thirteen points, defeated the Mahnomen B team, 43 to 28.

Thieves Defeat Fargo Comets 13-5

Former Prowler Players Spearhead Local Attack

The senior hockey Thieves, with the "production line" of Al Steenerson, Chip Strand, and Glen Carlson, all former Prowlers, spearheading the attack, easily defeated the Fargo Comets, 13 to 5, at the Arena on Sunday afternoon.

The Comets, an aggregation consisting of former Fargo high school and Shanley high school hockey players, were no match for the local skaters.

The Thieves registered period leads of 5 to 0, 9 to 1, and won by a 13 to 5 score.

While the Thieves' forwards were causing the Fargo defense, and goalie, all kinds of trouble, the local blue-line contingent of Paul Bedard, Mouse Efteland, Sid Vraa, Dick Lane, and Brad Teal, was very effective in breaking up the Fargo offensive rushes.

From all the street-corner comments, and the interest that has been generated, it's probable that the "Standing Room Only" signs will greet the fans who are planning to attend the Minnesota Gophers vs. North Dakota Sioux two-game hockey series at Grand Forks this week-end.

Coach Al Renfrew of the Sioux and coach Johnny Mariucci of the Gophers aren't doing themselves, or North Dakota or Minnesota, or the game or hockey, any benefit by their wordy comments on the officiating, or its lack, in the two games played in Minneapolis last week. In that two-game series, the Sioux defeated the Gophers, 3 to 2, in the opener, and lost the second game, 4 to 3.

It's not necessary to "fire up" the Grand Forks fans, or the Minnesota fans, either, for this upcoming series, so that can't be a reason for the two coaches exchanging these verbal blasts.

Say, wouldn't it be quite an idea to "suit up" the coaches, Renfrew and Mariucci, and have the referees, Pete Ullman and Jack McKnee, playing in the goal, and have these two-man teams play the series on Friday and Saturday? And to make it a real interesting affair, we would advise that the games be played under "Hudson Bay Rules."

But isn't it, to get back to the serious business of hockey, quite petty for these two coaches to "belabor" the refrees? From personal observation, we are in agreement that the Twin City hockey officials aren't the world's best, but neither are they the worst. And from personal observation, too, the Grand Forks fans aren't too qualified to judge the merits or demerits of hockey officials. They are the most biased fans we've ever seen, and they wear their bias openly.

Elmer Poole, whose sweet-skating son Joey is a member of the Sioux varsity, and a valued member, too, was in attendance at the games last weekend. Elmer was in agreement with most of the fans about the officiating, stating that Bill McGlone and Red Kalries didn't "whistle" a good game. But Elmer added that the Sioux were guilty of "chippy" hockey, and that they merited most of the penalties that they received. And these penalties were so unnecessary, for the Sioux were outskating and outplaying the Gophers, and it was needless to play such "chippy" hockey.

As to the outcome of the Friday and Saturday series? A slight edge to the Sioux, who will be playing before the home fans and who are a pretty solid hockey team.

One For The Book

And speaking of Elmer Poole. Did you know that he had four sons playing hockey on Saturday night? On four different teams, in four different localities?

Joey Poole was a member of the North Dakota Sioux playing Denver U at Grand Forks; Jackie Poole played with the Rochester Mustangs against the Culbertson's at Rochester; Mike Poole played with the Prowlers against the Wolves at Williams; and Larry Poole was a member of the Thief River Falls PeeWees that played the Roseau PeeWees at Roseau.

And where was Elmer? He was at Grand Forks watching Joey and the Sioux defeat Denver, 7 to 1. Joey scored a couple of goals for coach Al Renfrew's club.

A Cliff-Hanger

That's the term that can be applied, and aptly, to the basketball thriller played here Saturday night between coach Al Adams' Prowlers and coach Lute Olson's Mahnomen Indians, and which found the Indians gaining a 59 to 58 win, in overtime.

But it was the manner in which the Indians won, and they kept their season's record clear of losses, too, that surprised the palpitating fans. The Indians, rated as the top favorite in District 30, trailed at the period stops, 11 to 9, 30 to 23, and 48 to 33. That they could overcome a 15-point deficit in eight minutes of play, as they did in the fourth period, verges on a "believe it or not". It speaks well for the poise of the players, and the confidence that they have in their ability.

Until that fourth period, the Prowlers held a marked advantage in play, and Dave Hanson, with his right and left hand hook shots, being especially effective in the third period, nearly broke the back of the Indians.

If the Prowlers had been particulary "victory hungry" they could have resorted to semi-stall tactics in the fourth period, forcing the Indians to "come out" of their zone defense in the 4th period and abandon their double-teaming of Dave Hanson. But the Prowlers brought the play to the Indians, and the Indians, with their exceptional jump-shot artist, Al Santwire, rallied for 22 points in the fourth period, knotting the game at 55-all. In the three-minute overtime, Mahnomen tallied four points and the Prowlers marked up three, which gave the Indians their 59 to 58 win.

The Indians are a veteran club and very sturdy, and they get remarkable scoring from Santwire, rebound scoring from Darrel Mack, and some steady play from guard Al Kjos. But in spite of all these assets, the Indians are not the ball team that could cope with the Bemidji Lumberjacks.

Drowning Deaths Hit Low of 87 in Minnesota in '56

Deaths by drowning during 1956 were considerably less than the 110 for 1955 and the 10-year average of 119 for in 1956, 87 people lost their lives in water.

Most of the reduction in deaths resulted from the cooler weather which discouraged people from swimming. There were only 19 deaths while swimming compared with the ten year average of 38. There were fewer fishing accidents also, but deaths while using boats, canoes and rafts, and the deaths of little people at child play were about the same as the annual average.

The 1956 toll of deaths is the lowest recorded, the next lowest being 100 in 1946. The highest was 146 in 1953 and 137 in 1947.

Hot and humid weather forces people to seek relief at the beach, and an open, warm winter encourages ice fishing and skating. Both extremes usually result in some drowning deaths.

Bids for the new Warren Hospital will be opened on Friday, March 1 at 2 p.m. at Hotel Warren, Dr. C. H. Holmstrom, member of the board of charities of the Red River Valley Conference of the Augustana Lutheran church, announced today.

Construction plans for the $600,000 building are now nearing completion by the architects and engineers and will be available to contractors soon. Residents of the Warren community subscribed more than $100,000 towards the costs of the hospital with the remainder being financed jointly by the Lutheran conference and federal government Hill-Burton aid.

Prowler Sextet Bows to Roseau & Williams: Warroad Here Jan. 22

The hockey Prowlers, losing to Roseau and Williams, extended their losing streak to four games, but the youngsters will attempt to get back into the win column on Tuesday night, Jan. 2nd, when they meet coach Ken Johannson's Warroad Warriors in a regional conference game on the Arena ice.

On Friday, Jan. 25th, the Prowlers will play a return game with the Rams at Roseau; and on Saturday, Jan. 26th, the locals will make the long jaunt for a 3:00 p. m. game against the Baudette Burbots.

The Prowlers of coach Johnny Matchefts turned in their finest performance of the season on Thursday night as they held Oscar Almquist's power-packed Roseau Rams to a 4 to 2 win over the Arena rink.

After a scoreless first period, the Rams, on goals by Jim Stordahl and Dave Wensloff, moved into a 2 to 0 lead in the second period.

In the third period, Jim Hall, with high hard shot from the east sideboards, fired a goal into the south net at the 1:05 mark; and when Mike Poole, at the 5:51 mark, with Hall on the assist, scored from close in, the game was in a 2-all knot.

Roseau regained the lead at the 6:46 mark when Wensloff, recovering a rebound by Neal Johnson, beat goalie Ken Sauve; and at the 14:36 mark, Johnson circled the net and slipped an "around-the-post" shot into the cage, giving the Rams their deserved 4 to 2 triumph.

In a preliminary game, the Roseau 'B' team tallied a decisive 12 to 1 win over the Prowler 'B' team.

In a regional conference game played at Williams on Saturday night, the Prowlers, with a lacklustre exhibition, dropped a 4 to 1 decision to the Williams Wolves. Bob Oseid scored a couple of goals for the Wolves, with Jerry Krohn and Larry Robberstad adding singletons. The lone Prowler goal was scored by freshman Dale Wennberg.

Legislature to Get Milk House Measure

Backed by a number of leading dairy groups, a compromise milk house bill to apply to all whole milk, but excluding those selling separate cream, will be introduced in the Legislature soon.

Rep. Everett Battles of Warroad said the bill now is being examined by Atty. Gen. Lord's office.

The measure is aimed at raising the quality of Minnesota butter and other factory dairy products for more effective competition with those from Wisconsin and other states having such laws.

The proposal would give farmers not now having milk houses three years in which to install facilities for clean handling and rapid refrigeration of milk.

Omission of dairy farmers selling separate cream was agreed to after objections from some creameries buying cream only.

Herman Olson, secetary of the Minnesota Creameries Assn., said enactment of the bill would mean a big forward step toward raising the quality of dairy products.

The Minnesota Creamery Operators and Managers Assn. also is supporting the measure, according to Floyd Thompson, St. Paul, excutive secretary.

The bill authorizes the state commissioner of agriculture to establish standards and specifications for milk house construction.

Money to finance such construction can be borrowed on a new, intermediate term credit plan through the Farmers Production Credit Assn., through commercial banks or from the Farmers Home Administration.

Milk houses already are required of all farmers producing Grade A milk for drinking.

Easing of Truck Limits Is Sought

Industry to Ask More Liberal Regulations

Minnesota's trucking industry announced today that it will request that the 1957 state legislature enact two laws permitting 50-foot trucks and increasing the maximum tandem axel-load weight to conform with national standards.

Bills covering such legislation now are being prepared for early introduction, it was reported by O. Z. Remsberg, general manager of the Minnesota Motor Transport Association.

Present laws set the maximum length of trucks in Minnesota at 45 feet and the tandem axle weight at 28,000 pounds. Minnesota, said Mr. Remsberg, is one of 11 states still retaining the 45-foot limit.

The association, in outlining its legislative program, cited statements from farm organizations and shipping groups endorsing both moves as of vital importance if Minnesota is to compete equally in the nation's markets.

Mr. Remsberg said Minnesota now is an island surrounded by states which have permitted 50-foot truck lengths, and that this constitutes a trade barrier which is detrimental to a progressive Minnesota.

M & O Paper Co. Adds Huge Boiler, Turbine to Plant

Climaxing a year and a half of building, a new multimillion dollar high pressure boiler and topping turbine were put into operation during the first half of January at the Minnesota and Ontario Paper Company's specialty paper and Institute fiber board mill at International Falls according to W. H. Schlafge, general manager of the mill.

The new facilities, as high as a 10-story building, use 300 tons of coal and 775,000 gallons of water daily. They are part of Mando's continuing capital improvement program, which in the 10 year period since 1946, has resulted in expenditures in excess of $66 million at all plant locations.

Manufacturing steam at the rate of 240,000 pounds an hour, the new boiler supplies a General Electric 6,200 K W topping turbine which generates enough electricity to power a city of 15,000.

Built to keep pace with the mills continuing production expansions, the new boiler and turbine supplies process steam and electrical power. It will also supply power to the city of International Falls.

The Downtown Classrooms

By Miss Mary C. McNellis

In a sense, you visit school nearly every time you shop in the stores of Thief River Falls or enjoy an evening movie. For, you see, all learning at Lincoln high school isn't confined to the usual classrooms. Vocational education extends its far-reaching benefits into a number of downtown classrooms, in which this year twenty-one teen agers are sharing an opportunity to prepare for the occupational world.

In addition to their regular work, these boys and girls have part-time jobs under the supervision of the part-time occupational training program of Lincoln high. Through purposeful work experience they acquire skills, attitudes and habits which may be essential to a happy and satisfying future.

Employers on Main Street, as well as in the large cities, are remarkably unanimous in saying that customer contact is one of the most valuable experiences a young graduate can bring to his first full-time job. Some of the ways in which customer contacts are made through retailing experience can be seen through a quick glimpse into each of our downtown classrooms.

At the Fashion Shop, two girls from the part-time occupational training program explore the field of fashion merchandise. They are Thelma Nelson and Charlotte Scott who learn how to combine colors into an attractive ensemble. Growth in poise, manners, tolerance and understanding of people accompanies their learning experience. Andy Williamson of the shoe department comments that sales experience in womens shoes is a valuable asset anywhere on the labor market; he recalls that one of their former high school employees gained sufficient experience in shoe sales for a part-time job later in a college town while furthering her education.

Mrs. Orvis Olen of the ladies ready-to-wear department recently received a telephone call from a ladies apparel shop in a distant city requesting recommendation of a former trainee, now married and living in that city. A recommendation, based on this girl's high school training at the Fashion Shop, gave her the necessary advantage in securing the position she sought.

John Norbeck prepares for a more specific future in his pursuits at the Coast-To-Coast Store. This senior found use at the store for his mechanical aptitude during the past summer in the servicing of lawn mowers and outboard motors and now gains knowledge in modern merchandise display methods and good salesmanship. John aspires to a career in Coast-To Coast store management.

Vivian Kees familiarizes herself with counter layout in the toy department of the Ben Franklin Store. She learns the importance of the relationship between stock on display and the reserve stock in the stockroom. Vivian's employer, Mrs. E. F. Wright, too, is emphatic in saying that customer contact is especially important in a graduate's background when seeking full-time employment.

Bjorkman's Clothing store this year employs David Stokke as their part-time trainee. Dennis Quam works at Lieberman's along with two former program trainees who are now full-time employees. A boy working in a mens clothing store finds a challenge to cultivate a taste in clothes, improve his personal appearance and attain a wealth of merchandise information, while learning the finest selling techniques.

Narverud Cleaners employs two part-time trainees. Trade experience is afforded to Lee Gustafson in the pressing room. Of his job, Keith Johnson says, "The thing I like most is coming in contact with so many different types of people."

The group forming part of the staff at the Avalon and Falls Theatres performs a unique service in that they do not sell something to "take along home." They, instead, assist you to an evening's entertainment and relaxation. And, if you are a moviegoer, you know an evening can be enhanced by courteous, efficient and friendly theatre employees. Jerry Alby and Arlen Booren serve as ushers. Their numerous duties include considerable responsibility—plus the all-important customer contact. Beverly Haugen and Carol Lull are responsible for the money they handle in their cashiering duties. They also keep accurate records, answer the phone courteously, sit correctly in the box office and greet the public. Sandra Holmes and Ramona Solem handle popcorn and candy sales. Although the items and amounts of such sales are small, considerable stock work and bookkeeping is involved.

MARY C. MCNELLIS

Miss Mary C. McNellis, Coordinator of the Part-Time Occupational Training Program at Lincoln High School was born at Detroit Lakes and graduated from school there. She received B. S. degree in Business Education from the College of St. Scholastica, Duluth, Minnesota. In addition to having done graduate work at Colorado A & M College, Fort Collins, Colorado, she has had retailing experience with the Herbst Department Store, Fargo, North Dakota.

Since joining the Lincoln High School faculty, Miss McNellis has directed efforts to the organization and continuous development of the training program. She also teaches beginning and advanced shorthand and serves as co-adviser of the senior class.

Jim Winjum of Hartz Supermarket believes 90 per cent of the operation of a grocery store is having merchandise on display and correctly priced. The duties of Pat Poole, stock boy at Hartz, are more important than casual observation would indicate. Pat's learning experience includes acquiring knowledge of numerous can sizes and their proper place in the store, stock room piling, filling shelves, bagging groceries for checkers and counter-to-car service. Later he will learn to check freight bills and invoices against merchandise received.

One newcomer among the group of merchants cooperating in the program this year is Phil Hess of the Jewel Box. Under his guidance Shirley Johnson acquires the information and training necessary to satisfy customer needs and desires in watches, clocks, rings, bracelets and costume jewelry.

Donna Cloutier considers enrolling in a school for beauticians following her graduation. Through her job at the J & B Drug, she learns about the cosmetic line by selling with a full-time employee.

Included with the personnel at the S & L Store are four school trainees. Dan Sandum gets the first glimpse of incoming merchandise. His duties include checking freight, unpacking boxes, making tickets and seeing to it that all merchandise is delivered to its proper department. Each of the three girls are assigned to a different department. Joy Goulet gains selling experience in the ladies sportswear department, as does Wenda Czeh in the boys department and Ellen Swenson in the lingerie department. C. R. Walters, store manager, once remarked, "These kids usually come to the store with no previous experience, and when they leave they have acquired the maturity of several years in thinking and actions."

Heart Fund Drive Set for February

Association Warns of Too-strenuous Exercise

The Minnesota Heart Association, making preparations to ask the public for $475,000 in 1957 Heart Fund contributions during February, this week offered winter bound Minnesotans a "design for living" during the ice and snow months.

"This is the peak of the heart attack season," reminded Dr. James Cosgriff, Olivia, past president of the Association. "Let's all practice common sense this winter and be on hand to enjoy next summer's promise."

He urged moderation during the weeks of cold weather ahead. Whenever possible, he said, avoid the following:

1. Walking directly into strong winds.
2. Shoveling snow.
3. Pushing stalled automobiles.
4. Strenuous outdoor exercise.
5. Overindulgence in rich, fatty foods at mealtime.
6. Worrying over emotional or mental problems.

Six positive ways to help your heart, said Dr. Cosgriff, are:

1. Ask your doctor if in doubt about "symptoms."
2. Control your weight.
3. Get enough rest.
4. Keep physical fit with regular, moderate exercise.
5. Ease up and relax-forget tension, worries.
6. Help fight heart disease with a contribution to the Heart Fund.

A gift to the local Heart Fund drive next month, said Dr. Cosgriff, will support research, education, and community heart programs benefiting all.

In Ohio and Pennsylvania more than 20 million tons of bituminous coal per year are produced at surface mines in each state.

There are more than twice as many surface coal miners in operation in the U. S. today as there were 10 years ago.

THE SECOND TERM

President Eisenhower starts his second four-year term today and his second inauguration is of course occasion for a comparison of the present Ike with the Ike of four years ago. By general agreement the President is now far less conservative in his approach to our economic problems than he was at the start of his first term.

Four years ago he evidenced much concern about the huge spending program which he inherited, a total of $74.3 billion a year. In succeeding years he championed spending cuts that reduced the annual expenditures of the federal government by nearly $10 billion —and brought unprecedented peace-time prosperity.

He now seems to be changing his course however and is moving in the direction of what four years ago he pointed toward as inevitable disaster. His budget recommendations for the coming year add up to a total nearly as great as the high figure he inherited from his predecessor, and his long-range recommendations would involve us in a program that would boost future costs much higher than any ever before contemplated.

The President has properly pointed to the danger of inflation, and has called upon all good citizens to hold the line against any further shrinkage in the value of the dollar. His own proposals however are the most dangerous factors for inflation at the present time.

Under these circumstances we may expect some interseting realignments in our party organizations during the next four years. During his first term Mr. Eisenhower had the support of conservative Democrats, and much of the success of his administration can be credited to his good relations with the leaders of that party, most of them Southerners.

The more liberal Mr. Eisenhower probably will lose much of that support, and it is not likely that he will gain support from the liberals of that party who are thinking in terms of their own organization. While they might welcome Ike's more liberal policies, they are not going to help make an opposition party stronger.

Our guess therefore is that the second term of President Eisenhower's administration is going to be marked by much more confusion over domestic problems than we had during his first term. Maybe out of the confusion will come a more realistic party alignment of conservatives and liberals. Such a realignment is long overdue, and while the period of transition may not be pleasant, the change should be generally beneficial.

EXPENSIVE AND SHAMEFUL

A recent survey conducted in 44 states reveals the discoutnging fact that the cost of picking up litter tossed out of cars on the highways ranges up to fifty dollars a mile. That money would improve many miles of roads.

Several states have reported good results by providing more severe penalties for this offense. We would have more confidence in stricter enforcement of present laws, and education, as effective weapons in curbing this expensive and shameful practice.

Convenient receptacles at service stations for the depositing of refuse might be helpful as practical reminders to motorists that their cooperation will make more money available for road improvements. Making such receptacles available to service stations might be a good investment for the highway department.

EMPHASIS ON QUALITY

Dr. William Warren, dean of Columbia university's law school, has added his voice to the steadily increasing chorus of criticism of our schools. "The inability of college graduates to read and write," he says, "is a malady of epidemic proportions."

And such criticism cannot be laughed off as irresponsible drivel. There no doubt is exaggeration in some of the charges that are being made but there is sufficient truth to justify the serious concern of many emiment authorities on education, a large number of whom do not express their views publicly.

Under the circumstances it probably would be prudent to place greater emphasis on making our schools better rather than larger. There is reason to believe that much of the inferior quality of the finished product can be attributed to our mass production methods.

Here in Minnesota, as elsewhere, we have deliberately lowered the standards of our schools in order that we may boast that all are educated, and by that concession to inferiority we actually have been guilty of a disservice to all.

By establishing reasonable admission standards and eliminating the snap courses that serve only to continue the schooling of incompetants and those unwilling to measure up to reasonable study standards, we probably would find that we already have far more capacity in our institutions for higher education than we have need for.

Moderation is always commendable, and that is what we like about the weather we have had this winter — to date. But not all northern areas have enjoyed moderation. There have been extremes. In eastern states there has been extreme cold. Some northern areas have been extremely warm. At one point 250 miles north of the Arctic Circle last week, according to the Winnipeg Tribune, there was a January thaw with the thermometer reaching a high of forty above. Maybe extremes are better than moderation, when they are extremely good.

In two months spring will be officially here and from now on the days will become noticeably longer. Today we have a half hour more of sunshine than we had a month ago, and during the next month we will gain one full hour. Practically all of the gain so far has come in the form of longer afternoons, the sun having shown little inclination to rise earlier in the morning. And we are not in a position to scold him for having been such a sleepy head.

TOO MUCH GOVERNMENT

By Carl L. Weicht in The Northfield News.

It is old-fashioned to talk about state's rights and home rule in these days of concentration of government and regulation in Washington with its seemingly unlimited financial resources, but many who are not unmindful of social needs of the present or economic blunders of the past, see a real danger in growing centralization of control in the national capital.

For a long time now the federal bureaucracy has grown out of all proportions to the needs of sound development, and the outwardly benevolent system of federal aid has been carried to extremes beyond the wildest dreams of pre-New Deal days. The trend has been halted, it is true, but real demobilization of the federal bureaucracy is yet to come, if it ever does.

It is well to remember that America has grown great partly because of the freedom for local development and experimentation. Indeed, the idea that the government of this vast nation, stretching across a continent and composed of many diverse types of people, cannot be successfully controlled in Washington is not all theory or out-moded tradition.

Close your mouth and open your eyes and you'll need nothing to make you wise.

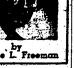
REPORT from the GOVERNOR



by Orville L. Freeman

Last week, in a brief description of the nature of the budget of the State of Minnesota, I noted that, while long and complicated, the budget consists essentially of two parts:—one that plans the spending of money, and the other providing the money to be spent. These parts obviously must go together, and the second part must provide enough money to meet the demands of the first. In other words, the budget should be a balanced one.

Two Sides of a Budget

In a state budget,—as in that of a family or an individual,—it is the raising of the money that presents the most difficulty. But the state faces a psychological handicap that does not affect individual or family budgeting. For at the time an individual buys something he not only pays out his money, but he knows specifically what he gets for that money.

An individual may have saved diligently, he may even have given up other desired purchases, in order to buy that new car. But after he has paid for the car, or for a part of it, he has a beautiful new possession. He and his family can ride in it and enjoy its comfort and convenience, and they know it is better than the old one they had before.

State Services Taken for Granted

On the other hand, the state must raise money to pay for services that continue all the time, and that we take so thoroughly for granted that we hardly notice they are being provided. In fact, the tendency of the public is to notice such services only when they are not good enough, rather than when they are satisfactory. And I know that very few of even our most public-spirited citizens could list all of the services and benefits that they receive in return for the taxes they pay.

Look at Both Sides

We would all agree that it would be foolish for any individual to consider and evaluate the price he pays for a new car without considering,—at the same time,—the automobile he is getting in return. It is just as foolish for us as citizens to consider any tax program without considering,—at the same time,—the services and benefits that the program is intended to pay for. In fact, it is even more foolish, because the services provided by state government in health, education, welfare, roads, protection of life and property, and many others, are even more important to our prosperity and happiness than are new cars.

The Task of the Legislature

The Minnesota Legislature now has before it both sides of the proposed budget. They must consider it as a whole, and they must also consider its many parts. They will consider many changes that will be proposed. In these considerations our representatives will constantly take into account the attitude of the people they represent. A sound fiscal program for the state, and the course of our future development, will depend on the extent to which we can constantly look at both sides of the budget.

The Responsibility of the People

And as citizens read the papers, and listen to the arguments, they can fulfil their responsibility for public opinion and public policy by exercising the same wise principle that they use in meeting their personal budget problems,—they can keep in mind both sides of the budget. As they consider services and benefits they want, they must consider how such services shall be paid for. And as they consider any proposed tax program, they must consider the services and benefits that will be provided by the revenue that program will produce.

PUBLIC OPINION

Editor the Times

I recently attended a two-day institute at the Center for Continuation Study of the University of Minnesota which was intended to encourage planning for community and wartime disasters on the part of hospitals in this state. I was really shocked by some of the things I heard there, especially by statements made by Max Van Sandt, M.D., Director of Medical Personnel, Health Office, Federal Civil Defense Administration, Battle Creek, Michigan. These were matters not too commonly carried in the public press. I thought I would take this means of conveying them to you, and through you—if you feel it wise—to the people of the Thief River Falls Area.

I do this particularly since Grand Forks with its jet-plane base only some 60 miles to the west is regarded by Civil Defense people as one of the three possible points of enemy attack in nuclear warfare in his area.

Dr. Van Sandt pointed out that with the invention of new atomic weapons the complex problems of Civil Defense have become more difficult and subject to great change.

Shortly after the first atomic bomb was dropped studies of its effects were begun. It was found that this 20 KT bomb destroyed all things within a ½ mile diameter, nearly everything within the next ½ mile, and did great but decreasing damage as far as 8 miles out. Next came the 29 megaton bomb with total destruction within the first 5 mile diameter, large destruction thru the next 5 mile diameter, and further damage as far as 20 miles out. Like the atom bmomb, the megaton bomb was of the air burst type with no "fall-out." "Fall-out" is defined as the descent to earth of radioactive particles following a nuclear explosion. A weapon later than the megaton bomb is now said to create "fall-out' upwind for 20 miles beyond the actual destruction area.

This last weapon has created a necessity to radically revamp earlier plans of the Civil Defense Administration requiring a repositioning of hospitals to a distance of almost 50 miles from the site of the ground burst.

Dr. Van Sundt said that, in the event of a concerted enemy attack using the newest type of atomic weapon, almost 1900 of the largest city hospitals with 530,00 beds might be destroyed leaving possibly 3460 smaller rural hospitals with only 147,000 beds.

The Civil Defense Administration has estimated that in the event of an all out enemy atomic attack casualties may be expected in numbers of from 16 to 25 million persons, some 19 million of whom may die within 60 days. Such an attack would also result in the displacement of some 30 million persons through enforced evacuation.

This vast problem would be further complicated by the possibility that 45% of the hospitals of the country would be destroyed, 60% of its doctors and trained medical personnel would be no longer available, and 80 to 85% of critical medical care items would have been destroyed.

For these reasons, the Civil Defense Administration is now stock-piling equipment in packets sufficient to set up temporary 200-bed hospitals at many strategic points. It has been estimated that the country might need about 6000 (six thousand) temporary 200-bed hospitals to care for casualties in the event of an all out attack.

In explanation, it should be mentioned that it is planned to use the 200-bed hospital packets, if needed, in schoolhouses and other buildings which might be arranged to hold that many casualties. As a sidelight, it has been mentioned that the University of Minnesota Hospitals would be expected to man and set up some 30 200-bed hospitals.

It is being stressed by the Joint Commission On The Accreditation Of Hospitals and by the American Hospital Association that all hospitals, large, and small, must make the step of planning for at least natural disasters as soon as possible.

The Minnesota Hospital Association is now preparing a Model Disaster Plan which can be adapted to conditions in every Minnesota Hospital in order to speed up this movement in the State of Minnesota. It is felt that such a plan for taking care of people in such natural disasters as tornado, fires, floods, train and bus wrecks, is a first step in the direction of a coordinated plan for dealing with wartime disasters on an almost infinitely larger scale.

Northwestern Hospital of Thief River Falls is in he foreground of this movement along with other progressive hospitals in the state.

Sincerely yours,
Harold W. Peterson

Winter Pictures

Winter picture taking can result in beautiful and unusual pictures if the amateur photographer takes a few necessary precautions.

Here are some things to keep in mind about using a camera in the winter from Gerald McKay, extension specialist in visual education at the University of Minnesota.

Cold weather makes the shutter operate more slowly. It is safest not to use the new fast types of film unless the camera has adjustable lens and shutter. Check the camera without film and listen for the shutter speed. Keep the camera as warm as possible.

Moisture may form on the lens and view finder. Be sure to look at the camera before using it, and be careful in wiping off the moisture. It is best to allow the mosture to dry by itself.

Reflection from the snow increases the light. Here again, slower film may be necessary. Smaller lens opening, faster shutter speed and a filter will all help compensate for the extra light and produce better pictures.

Buy Men's Shirts

If you are planning to buy some men's shirts in the in look for good quality and a flattering style of shirt collar to the man. Sharp-pointed collars with little spread lengthen face, and figure, while spread collars with short round points help fill out a thin face. Long collar points on low-set collars are best for the man with a short, thick neck, and higher collars flatter a man with a thin neck and face.

Many details of quality can be seen only when a shirt is unfolded. Look for fine, precisely adjusted stiching on the collar, cuffs and fronts. Flat felled seams, with one row of stitching showing on one side and two rows on the other, help preserve the shape of shirts of most fabrics. In shirts of synthetic fibers, plain seams finished with overhand machine sewing look best after laundering.

Long-sleeved shirts should be made with long, securely stitched sleeve plackets that will allow the cuffs to open flat for ironing. For good service and shouler fit, the yoke should have a double thickness of fabric.

When selecting a man's shirt, consider his other clothes, his coloring and the occasions on which he'll wear the shirt. These factors determine how often and how long he will wear the shirt.

It pays Times readers well to read the grocery and other advertisements in each issue. They will save you money.

From Red River Oxcarts to RIBBONS OF CONCRETE

In the beginning there were the Red River oxcarts, carrying piles of furs down the old, rut-streaked trails into St. Anthony and St. Paul. And they seldom left for the return trip without goodly supplies of beer, carried in big barrels, aged in the caves that nature carved into the cliffsides along the meandering rivers of the state.

The best skills of the day were called upon then to produce these beers.

And from deep wells those early brewmasters brought up the crystal clear, cold water that is essential to good beer. Off the early farms, tilled by the pioneers, was harvested the golden grain.

And Minnesota's Breweries have adopted the most modern scientific equipment and laboratory technicians to test and control the brewing of beer.

But the same skills, born of pioneer tradition; the same good water; the fields of waving grain—these still combine with 20th century techniques to brew good Minnesota beer.

And Minnesotans have benefited.

Active Duty Term of Guardsmen Revised

The upper age limit for men to enter the six months active-duty-for-training program of the National Guard has been raised from age 18½ to age 26, National Guard officials announced today. Under this program young men may join National Guard units and discharge their military obligations by undergoing six months of active duty training, and then returning to their Guard unit to serve the balance of their period of obligated service.

The raising of the age limit coincides with a recent regulation issued by the director of selective service whereunder, any man who completes six months of active duty for training will have his induction postponed so long as he continues to serve satisfactorily in his Guard unit.

Prior to this time the opportunity to perform military service in this manner was limited to men between the ages of 17 and 18½. Under the Reserve Forces Act of 1955 men in this group were deferred by law as long as they continued their Guard service. Their status is not changed by the new regulation.

The difference between the "deferment" offered men between 17 and 18½ and 26 is a technical matter. The net effect, so far as the individual is concerned, is the same in either case.

The total period of service under the program is 8 years, of which 6 months are in an active duty status and the remaining 7½ years are in a National Guard training status. News releases emanating from Washington indicate that the 7½-year requirement is being reduced to 5½ years; however, Guard officials have not yet received official confirmation of this reduction.

Men who enter this program through the National Guard will undergo the basic phase of 8 weeks of training at Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri. Following the basic phase they will go into the advanced phase of training, usually at another training camp. The next group to enter training at Fort Leonard Wood will report February 3. Thereafter, a new increment will report every two weeks.

Men who desire to enter this program should contact the National Guard units in their home communities, Major General J. E. Nelson, Minnesota Adjutant General, said. Instructions regarding the program have been sent to all Guard units, and interested young men can get full particulars at the local National Guard Armory.

Establishes Wildlife Area — The squak of a rooster pheasant and the sight of a cotton tail bounding away through the brush are pleasant experiences for Bill Braun, Le Sueur, Minnesota. A farmer in the Le Sueur county soil conservation district, Braun established a wildlife area in 1952 as part of a basic conservation plan. He had a sandy, gravelly, three-acre knoll that he planted to several rows of trees and shrubs — plum, honeysuckle, ash, cottonwood and jack pine. Before, nothing would grow on that knoll. Now, it raises a good "crop" of wildlife.

Pasture-A-Day System — Three acres of pasture were enough for two weeks of eating for 27 dairy cattle on the Ben Roth farm in Houston county last summer, reports Harlie Larson, Houston county soils agent. Roth gave his cattle fresh pasture twice each day and kept production up to top level. From the middle of August until the end of the pasture season, he only gave the herd .2 acre daily. That way, he reduced bloat danger and the cows wasted less feed.

"Soils Inventory" Aids — Glen Milst, St. James farmer, believes in fitting the farm enterprise to the land. A cooperator in the Watonwan county soil conservation district, he started with a soils inventory map. His soil needed protection and a general fertility build-up. He correctly reasoned it would take roughage-consuming animals—such as dairy cows—to fit his land. Helped by Pat Kennedy, SCS conservationist, he laid out 100 acres for wind strip-cropping, with 12 alternate strips of corn, grain and hay.

• • •

Chelates Increase Iron — Compounds called "Chelates" (key'-lates) may be a big help to iron-deficient soybean and flax fields in Minnesota. According to J. M. MacGregor, University of Minnesota soils scientist, soybean and flax yields were increased when test fields last summer were treated with iron mixed with chelate compounds.

Beef Cattle Feed Trials Under Way at N. W. School

Four Lots of Six Steers Each Being Fed Different Ration During Winter

The 1956-57 beef cattle feeding trial at the Northwest School and Experiment Station, Crookston, got under way on November 14, 1956. Four lots of six steers each, weighing an average of 726 pounds, will be fed out to about 1050 lbs. Weight on four different rations.

The two major aspects of cattle feeding that are being emphasized this year are: the pelleting of grain versus ground grain, and the value of feeding stilbestrol with pelleted grain.

This experimental trail is, in part, a repeat of last year's beef feeding work at the Northwest Experiment Station. The results last year indicated very definite advantages in favor of pelleting the grain mixture and including stilbestrol in the ration.

Lot I (Control Group): Alfalfa hay and ground grain free choice. One pound of soybean meal per steer daily.

Lot II: Alfalfa hay and ground free choice. One pound of soybean meal with 11 mgms. Stilbestrol per steer daily.

Lot III: Alfalfa hay and pelleted grain free choice. One pound of soybean meal per steer daily.

Lot IV: Alfalfa hay and pelleted grain free choice. One pound of soybean meal with 11 mgms. stilbestrol per steer daily.

The grain ration for all four lots is composed of 70 per cent barley and 30 per cent oats. Stilbestrol was incorporated into the protein concentrate at the rate of 11 milligrams per pound of soybean meal. It is expected that the trial will run for about 140 days.

Students at N.W. School Get Home Project Awards

Marwood Hunstad, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jens Hunstad of Argle, and Judy Piker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Piker of Angus, won championship awards for 1956 Northwest School student summer home project work. They were awarded championship ribbons and their names will be engraved on the championship bronze plaque at the school. Recognition was given to all winners in 1956 summer home project work at the awards assembly held at the Northwest School of Agriculture, Crookston, on January 16.

Walter Fehr of East Grand Forks and Jean McWilliam of Winger were named reserve champions in boys' and girls' summer home project work, respectively.

Q—I pay my GI insurance premiums on a yearly basis. What if something should happen to me shortly after I make my yearly payment? Wouldn't my beneficiaries be entitled to a refund of the advance payment?

A—Yes. The money not yet applied to your insurance coverage would be refunded to your beneficiaries at the time VA settled the insurance claim.

Q—I am a disabled Korea veteran receiving vocational rehabilitation training. Am I entitled to VA medical care while I am in training?

Chest Drive Is Wound up with $11,500 Raised

Campaign Brings in All But $300 of Funds Required, Says Ihle

The Pennington county Community Chest wound up its annual drive this week with what is probably the largest amount of money ever contributed to the organization, according to Les Ihle, county drive chairman.

Although the $11,500 raised for the Community Chest is about $300 shy of the necessary funds to take care of expenses and budgeted agencies, it is far closer to the year's goal than it has been in the past several years, Ihle said.

He said the Community Chest board, of which Rev. Walter Pedersen is president will, under the circumstances, be able to fulfill the budget requests of the various organizations.

The 1956 drive was broken down into five individual drives within the county, Ihle said the breakdown of percentages received under the various drives is as follows: Residential, 11.80 per cent; rural, 11.18 per cent; government, 8.75 per cent; industrial, 13.02 per cent, and business, 55.25 per cent.

A tally of the few donations received for which a preference was stated in favor of a certain organization benefiting from the drive showed the results as follows: 1. Sister Kenny 2. Salvation Army 3. Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation 4. Heart Fund, and 5. Northwest Association for the Mentally Retarded.

The other five organizations receiving funds contributed to the Pennington Community Chest were favored by a smaller percentage of contributors in stating their preference, Ihle said.

The county drive committee headed by Ihle expressed sincere appreciation for the fine cooperation received from everyone while the drive was in progress.

Reverend Pedersen, Community Chest board president also expressed his appreciation to those who participated in the drive and the people in the city and county who contributed so generously.

Roy Lee of Lee Plumbing and Heating was elected president of the Thief River Falls Builders Exchange at a business meeting of the exchange Wednesday evening, preceding the organization's annual banquet at the Elks clubrooms.

John Peterson, manager of Robertson Lumber Co. here, was elected vice-president, and Clarence Dicken, Falls Decorators, was elected to serve as a director. Holdover directors are Leroy Owen, and Stanton Dahlen.

About 80 persons attended the banquet and business meeting, all of whom are in some way allied with the building trades.

Thief River Falls School Superintendent J. A. Sater was toastmaster of the program which followed the banquet and introduced the speakers. The first speaker was outgoing president, S. J. La Porte of Falls Concrete, who after a short address, introduced guests present at the banquet.

Following LaPorte's talk, Sater introduced a male quartet which he dubbed the "Thief River Falls Lion's Club Quartet," and composed of Dr. Joseph Norquist, Herb Dill, Bryant Ulseth and Wendell Olson. The quartet rendered several selections in the barber shop quartet style, much to the delight of those present.

Hubert Swanson of Swanson and Wegleitner, Minneapolis, architects who drew plans for both new Thief River Falls schools now under construction, was introduced by Sater. Swanson's topic is concerned getting the most classroom space for the money available and also dealt with new materials being made available to builders.

Swanson said school authorities are faced with spending more money on less space thru using best materials available with the subsequent saving on maintenance costs, or, using cheaper materials, to get somewhat more classroom space at the cost of higher maintenance in the future.

He commended local school authorities for choosing the former course, saying the materials used here not only resulted in a more beautiful building but also a much more durable structure that will be easy to maintain throughout its useful life.

He emphasized that the alternatives to quality construction is extremely high maintenance cost and that quality construction is far cheaper in the long run.

Legislature Gets Proposed Amendments

One Would Lengthen the Terms of State Officers to 4 Years

A batch of proposed constitutional amendments and a librarians' obscenity control bill were offered to the Minnesota senate today.

These are the amendments, which must pass each house by two-thirds majorities before they can be submitted to the voters in 1958:

Governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, treasurer and attorney general would be elected for four-year terms instead of the present two years.

The governor shall appoint a 10-member commission—(five from each political party) to reapportion the legislature after each federal census, beginning in 1961—if the legislature refuses to do the job itself.

Five bills would clear out obsolete provisions which never have been legally removed from the state constitution.

The constitution still says women and Indians cannot vote except under certain conditions, that the legislature must elect United States senators, that the state must take a decennial census and that the state cannot go into debt for more than $250,000.

Opponents of a constitutional convention maintain this dead wood can be removed by referendum without calling a convention. Senate authors, both conservatives, are Robert Dunlap, Plainview, and Charles W. Root, Minneapolis.

A bill to ask the voters if they want a constitutional convention was introduced Wednesday in the house by Rep. Joseph Karth, St. Paul.

If adopted, it would put "teeth" in the constitutional provision which is variously interpreted as saying the legislature may, or must, redistrict every 10 years. It has not been done since 1913.

Three conservative senators are sponsors of the four-year term bill: Albert Quie, Dennison; Donald Sinclair, Stephen, and W. J. Franz, Mountain Lake. It would be effective, if approved by the voters, in the 1960 election.

Sen. Fraser and Sen. Gordon Rosenmeier, Little Falls, influential liberal and conservative, respectively, have another bill ready to accomplish the same end.

It would not be effective until 1962. This, the authors felt, would nullify any partisan criticism that it was intended to favor the current DFL administration.

Sponsors of the so-called "librarians' bill" or "McClure bill" are Fraser, Rosenmeier and a second conservative, Sen. Elmer A. Andersen, St. Paul.

The legislation backed by the Minnesota Council for Freedom to Read, was offered two years ago as the "librarians'" alternative to a more stringent bill which would prosecute distributors of "obscene literature."

This one would leave decision upon "obscenity" to the district courts. It is endorsed by the Minnesota Federation of Women's clubs, the Minnesota Library association, the legislative committee of the Minnesota Council of Churches, the Minnesota Federation of Labor and the Twin City Book Round Table.

The week day period, Morning Devotions, the first religious program over KTRF, was begun over the local station, January 30, 1947.

He has caused to be published four special numbers in the interest of the radio work. Last summer he helped write and edit the church's historical booklet, "Fifty Years in Thief River Falls."

Two Men Killed in Truck-train Crash Near Crookston

Willow River Men Killed When Truck Rams Diesel on G. N. Freight Monday

They were identified as Carl Novak, 43, Willow River, the driver, and Clyde J. Flanagan, 29, also of Willow River.

Their truck struck a Great Northern Railway diesel engine about 12:30 p.m. Monday at a crossing on Highway 2 a mile north of Crookston.

John Mullin, Grand Forks, head brakeman of the 30-car freight, said it was apparent the truck driver tried to stop by jackknifing the big vehicle, but it hit the engine broadside.

Officers said that signal lights were blinking at the crossing when they arrived at the scene, but that visibility was bad because of drifting snow. The road was not especially slippery, they reported.

The train was traveling approximately 25 miles per hour, while Great Northern personnel in the train estimated the speed of the truck at about 50 miles per hour.

Novak was thrown from the truck, and Flanagan was crushed in the cab. Officers believed death to be instantaneous in both cases.

The cab was so badly battered a wrecker had to be used to pry it open before Flanagan's body could be removed.

The truck was en route from East Grand Forks, after hauling freight to Grand Forks from St. Cloud.

K. Eastman Tells Knox PTA Unit of Educational Aims

Elementary Education Director Was Speaker at Meeting Monday Night

Neal Fox presided at a well-attended meeting of the Knox PTA held Monday evening in the school auditorium. The audience enjoyed the rendition of two instrumental selections by a clarinet trio composed of Jeanne Dahlen, Shirley LaPorte and Carol Anderson, who are members of the Lincoln High School Band directed by John Moum.

Following the business meeting, Kermit Eastman, director of elementary education in Thief River Falls, gave an informative talk on "Newer Methods of Teaching and The Curriculum in Elementary School." Eastman stated that "The biggest changes have come about because of our understanding of children. Most changes have occured in the language-arts program, which is related to mental, emotional, social and physical developments. High correlation between measure of language skills and mental ability, our knowledge of child growth and development, has made us aware of the importance of readiness in learning."

"The philosophy of an elementary school should be that children learn best by doing (not doing what they please). The schools would prefer not to have parents teach their children to do manuscript (printing) writing before they enter school. It is more difficult to change a child's writing from that which is incorrect to that which is correct, than it is to teach correctly from the beginning."

Eastman also commented, "The social studies program has shown much improvement; however, this is one area in which a great deal more improvement may be expected within the next ten years. We're concerned about producing scholars, about producing good citizens trained for the American way of life, and about producing and providing a school atmosphere conducive to the greatest possible teaching-learning relationships."

In closing, Eastman said, "People generally are not in uniform agreement as to what schools should be doing; however, they do agree in their desire for the very best education for their children. Parents and teachers working together with a sincere desire to improve the schools will be successful."

In charge of hospitality was Mrs. Fred Mittelstadt. Hostesses were Mmes. E. J. Sjoberg, chairman; John Anderson, Everett Amundgaard, Harlan Huseth, Elmer Seabloom and Ina Hanway.

Free Church Plans Parent-Teacher Meeting Monday

The Evangelical Free Church Sunday School staff is sponsoring a parent-teacher meeting Monday evening, January 28, at 8:00 p.m. in the church's lower auditorium.

Included in the program are musical numbers, a question-answer period, and the showing the film, "Their Future Is Yours." Refreshments and fellowship hour will follow the program.

The goal of the evening is twofold, said the Rev. Joseph Swan, pastor. First, the staff feels that it would be beneficial to the parents to become better acquainted with the work of the Sunday School, and secondly, the teachers wish to become better acquainted with the parents of the children in their classes.

All of the parents, as well as others who have an interest in the program of the Free Church Sunday School, are urged to attend, Mr. Swan stated.

Fadels to Share in Mission Services

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Fadel, missionaries on furlough from Japan, will share in missionary services Sunday, Jan. 27, 11 and 7:45 o'clock, at the Mission Covenant church, said L. W. Lindholm, pastor, who stated that offerings next Sunday are toward the church's share in their support. They will take part in the forenoon service, and are to speak and sing in the evening meeting. They were commissioned here Jan. 28, 1951. Next Sunday's services note the sixth anniversary of that occasion.

4-H Club Enrollment in County Is Now 392

4-H enrollment in Pennington county has risen for the year ending October 1. In the preceding year there were 366 4-H members enrolled. This has risen to 392, annouced county agent Paul Stelmaschuk.

Other young people interested in joining a club are invited to do so. Some of the projects the members work on are: dairy, beef, crops, sheep, poultry, farm and home shop, electricity, tractor maintenance, garden and conservation. Some home economics projects which are popular with the girls are clothing, food preparation, food preservation, bread, home assistance and home furnishing.

If There is no club in your area and there are 10 or more interested members, your group may want to form a 4-H club in your area, said Stelmaschuk. Two or more leaders are needed for one club.

The number of clubs in the area remains at 16. A new club was formed at Goodridge and is under the leadership of Mrs. Dorothy Wilkins and Beverly Frazer.

4-H members are reminded that most of their cattle records are to be kept for six months or more. Swine and sheep records must be completed for three months or more. To complete cattle records in six months, they should be started by April 1. An earlier start on records usually means better projects.

Boys and girls wishing to join 4-H are urged to see the leaders of clubs close to them. The various clubs and their leaders are:

Northrop PTA Unit Hears Dr. Martin

Physician Discusses Topic, 'The Happy Child'

The regular January meeting of Northrup P.T.A. was held Monday evening in the school auditorium, with Pastor Otto Dale presiding. A large crowd was in attendance.

After a short business meeting, Supt. J. A. Sater explained briefly the lay discussion plan. He also gave the schedule of meeting nights for each grade. President Dale urged parents to take part in these meetings since they are a service offered by the school for their benefit.

The main speaker for the evening was Dr. George Martin who spoke on the topic, "The Happy Child." He emphasized the need for a happy childhood in order to help insure a well adjusted adult life. He also stated that there is no one right way to raise a child since each child is an individual personality. Making sure the child knows that he is loved headed the list of eight required elements in raising a happy child.

Two vocal solos were sung by Donna Hesse, accompanied by Jeanne Dahlen.

Landscaping the Home Discussed in 'U' Bulletin

Home owners who plan to do some landscaping this spring will get some practical helps from a new publication of the University of Minnesota Agricultural Extension Service, "Landscaping the Home."

In planning any home landscaping consider immediate needs as well as needs which will exist in 10 to 15 years, Hard suggests. If there are children in the family, areas should be developed for their recreation. Later these areas may be converted into garden space, but these plans must be included in the orginal planning of the landscape design.

After the business session a skit was presented by Mrs. Eula Kvikstad and Mr. and Mrs. Quentin Jones.

The program for the evening was a group discussion. Those present divided into six teams and each team considered one of the topics taken from the current series of school lay meetings.

President Ormond Johnson closed the meeting with a reminder that the next meeting February 18 would be a joint meeting of all the PTA groups. He stated that Roy Anderson, a prominent mental health authority, had been secured as speaker, and that music would be furnished by the high school chorus.

'U' M. Specialists Give Tips on Filing Income Tax Return

Advise Having Records Complete When Calling for Outside Assistance

The small fee that you pay to a professional tax adviser may save you unnecessary tax expenses and avoid a lot of trouble, says County Agent Paul Stelmaschuk.

Fill out your tax form, then take it to a good adviser or internal revenue agent who can help you find ways to save money and still meet all the tax requirements, say Hal Routhe and Ermond Hartmans, extension farm management specialists at the University of Minnesota.

Have your records summarized, with everything up to date before you see your adviser. Then when you meet with him, have this information available:

Records of purchases and sales of all draft, breeding and dairy animals.

Cost of purchased livestock that was sold or died.

Depreciation estimates of any purchased breeding livestock.

Amount of Commodity Credit Corporation loans received.

Costs for construction of new buildings.

Medical expenses, contributions and taxes.

By having all this information, your advisor may be able to point out ways in which you can take advantage of certain deductions. For example, you can recover the cost of purchased livestock that were sold or died during the past 12 months.

Also, wages paid to children for work actually performed can be entered as deductions, under certain provisions. A portion of the wages paid for household help may be deductible.

If man and wife both have an income, there may be a difference in whether they file separately or jointly. Best way is to figure the tax both ways, to find out which method costs less, say Routhe and Hartmans.

Only 1 Car Mishap in City This Week

Cab, Car and School Bus Involved in Accident

Relative peace and quiet reigned in the city during the week, following a period from last Thursday through the weekend in which seven accidents totalling $750 in property damage occurred.

Only one accident has marred the tranquility of the city since. This was a three-vehicle affair that occurred when Jesse M. Thorstad city cab driver, started to pull out on Main av. S. from the driveway between the Great Northern tracks.

Thorstad's cab hit a car driven north on Main av. by LeRoy Limesand, Goodridge and at the point of impact they were met by a school bus driven by Floyd Johnson, which scraped one side of the cab.

Resulting damage amounted to $150 on the cab, $85 to the Limesand car and only minor damage to the bus. Charges were filed in the case, Police Chief Elton Cummings said.

Cummings said Mrs. Chet Matthews was the woman involved in a car-taxi collision last Thursday in the 500 block of LaBree av. N. The police did not have Mrs. Matthew's name when the Times' Monday accident report was written. The Matthews car sustained about $100 damage in the accident while damage to the cab was reported a very slight. No charges were filed.

A tire and wheel were reported stolen from a 1941 Mercury which was parked behind the residence of the owner, Loren Klopp, city.

More Signers Ask Marshall Hearing on Soil District

Numerous additional names on the petition blanks regarding a soil conservation district within the remainder of Marshall County have come into the extension office, according to Fred Heck, soil conservation agent.

As of last count on Friday, January 18, the total number of signers has risen to 340. Some petition blanks have still not been turned in and were due January 15. Those having these petitions are urged to get them to a member of the steering committee or extension office as quickly as possible as there is still a chance that those names can be included with the previous total as the committee is planning on sending them in today, January 24.

The public is reminded once again that those signing these petitions are in no way obligating themselves. The signer merely indicates that he or she is interested in having a public hearing in order to determine the advisability of forming a soil conservation district.

Man Recovering from Exposure

Youth Calls Police to Assist Dick Nyberg

A local man probably owes his life to quick thinking and prompt action on the part of a Thief River Falls teen-age boy, after the boy found him crawling on hands and knees along the snow-covered sidewalk on Knight av. across from Lincoln High school.

The boy, Richard Erickson, 401 Knight av. S. told police he was on his way to hockey practice when he saw the man on the sidewalk. Erickson helped him get on the porch of a house there across from Lincoln High school about 8:45 p. m. Monday.

He then called police, after noticing the man's hands and ears were badly frozen. The man, whom police identified as Dick Nyberg, city, was taken to Northwestern hospital where he is undergoing treatment for after effects of his ordeal.

Nyberg's condition this morning was described as "very good" by attendants at Northwestern hospital.

Health Dept. Urges Vaccination vs. Polio

Minnesota can virtually wipe out paralytic polio if every person under the age of 40 years receives two, or better, three injections of Salk vaccine prior to the summer of 1957, the state department of health announced today. At the present time the state has reached only 33 per cent of this goal.

By January 1, physicians had reported giving at least two injections of polio vaccine to 675,213 of the 2,202,807 estimated persons in Minnesota in the 0-39 years of age group, according to Dr. Robert N. Barr, executive officer of the department.

The state health department advises vaccination for persons of all ages and particularly urges it for persons up to 40 years of age. Vaccination was earlier restricted to children because of the limited supply of vaccine. Protective polio vaccination is almost as seriously needed for young adults, especially parents of children, as it is for children, according to Dr. Barr.

The highest rates of paralytic polio cases per 100,000 population in recent years have consistently occurred in children 5-9 years of age. Second highest rates usually occur in children under 5 years of age.

Estimated polio vaccination coverage of selected age groups as of January 1 indicate that 58.6 per cent of the 0-4 years age group has received at least two doses of vaccine; 65.8 per cent of persons in the 5-9 years age group; and 43.5 per cent of children 10-14 years of age.

Certain segments of the population have been protected to a much greater degree than others, reflecting the emphasis placed upon the priority age groups where the risks are higher. On the other hand, overall figures show that only 20.0 per cent of persons between the ages of 15-19 years and 6 per cent of those in the 20-39 years of age group have received at least two doses of vaccine.

"Only the 5-9 year old age group has been really adequately protected, "Dr. Barr points out. He practically urges vaccination at this time for teen agers and young adults.

In terms of numbers of cases of paralytic polio reported, generally 30-35 per cent of all cases have been in persons 20 years old and older. The number of fatal cases has been proportionately greater among these older patients than among children. Thus, in 1955, 50 per cent of the deaths from polio occurred in persons 25 years or older, although in this segment of the population only 25 per cent of the cases occurred. Only two to three per cent of all paralytic cases occur in persons 40 years of age or over.

In 1950 and in 1951 the fifth highest rates per 100,000 population for paralytic polio cases occurred in persons in the 25-29 years of age group. In 1952, 1953, and 1954 this age group had the fourth highest rate, and in 1955 it ranked third. Persons in the age group 20-24 years ranked fourth in 1951, fifth in 1953 and 1956.

State health department records show that at least two doses of vaccine are necessary to provide adequate protection against paralytic disease and that this protection will prevent development of paralytic polio in somewhat over 80 per cent of the cases. One dose of vaccine reduced the rate of paralytic polio by only 68 per cent.

Shootin' the Breeze BY Mack Draper

We've said it before and we'll say it again. . . we don't predict the weather here at the Times. We merely pass on what we get from someone else — namely KTRF. They, in turn, get it from the teletype (that's our guess any way) so you can't blame Don Olson or his crew for Monday's screwy forecast.

We'd rather be wrong on a bad weather forecast than write a good one that doesn't hold true. Although weather forecasters are wrong time after time most people apparently believe them—and often vilified by people when the forecast goes awry. Some days you just can't win!

Height of frustration: inability to get started again after stopping for a stop sign, while driving on our icy streets. The street department really is to be commended for their fast action in remedying this situation quickly so far this winter. Snow tires are pratcically useless on hard-packed snow so that mixture the street crews use is often a real trouble saver.

• • •

We still think the LaBree av. -3rd st. intersection traffic should be controlled by a traffic signal. What do you think? Getting across the corner as a pedestrian or driving across in a car can often be a time—consuming proposition. It's extremely frustrating to have a pedestrian walk across in front of you just after a long line of automobile traffic has finally left you an opening into 3-rd st. By the time he's clear the signal at Main & 3rd. st. changes and you have another string of cars to wait for. We've seen this happen three times running!

In you're a pedestrian you don't have as much to worry about—but with a signal to guide you you'd have even less.

Do you ever get nostalgic over a map? We do. There's something about a map that causes us to get itchy feet.

There are road maps, charts, relief maps—all kinds of maps. Our favorite maps are those published periodically by the National Georgraphic society and included with some issues of the National Geographic magazine.

We've saved all of ours and now have quite a collection. One of those that brings back old memories is the map of the British Isles and northwest Europe. There are a lot of familiar place names there. . . Reading. . . London. . . Newbury. . . Berkshire county in England. . . Basingstoke. . . Peterborough. . . Grantham. . . Leicester. . . Nottingham. . . Southampton. . . Bristol. . . Glasgow. . . all in Great Britain, of course. And many others, too numerous to mention.

Then there's the Cherbourg peninsula. . . St. Lo. . . St. Marie Eglise. . . Brussels and Eindhoven across the channel in France, Belgium and Holland.

We especially appreciate a map of the U. S. So many places we've seen—so many more we want to see before the curtain falls. As Jimmy Durante sang when entertaining troops during the last war, "Any place in the 48 is great!"

• • •

By the way, a large U. S. map makes a fine wall decoration in any man's den, especially when it has a wood panel background. As a matter of fact our shack down at Union Lake has a U. S. map, published by the National Geographic society, prominently displayed on the living room wall and it really adds a nice touch to the place.

Another kind of map we like is an aeronautical chart. There are two kinds—the world air chart and the sectional chart. The sectional chart is used most here for navigation within the U. S. and the scale, if we remember correctly, is roughly 1 inch to 8 miles. That is large enough so that the U. S. map, if composed of sectional charts glued together would be a tremendous affair.

A sectional is large enough for prominent features of every town to be printed alongside its location on the chart. Even individual grain elevators, where they are prominent features, are noted on the charts. There are at least two of those between here and Grand Forks that are noted on local air charts, even through they stand all by themselves in the middle of nowhere—which, of course, is the real reason they are specifically pointed out. They make fine check points for fly-boys to navigate by.

The most popular maps nowadays are road maps—especially those showing the most direct route to Florida or California, and for obvious reasons. We aren't going anywhere but. . . So long 'til next time, anyway!

Farm Records

The narrow profit margin in farming these days makes it more important than ever to keep careful records. Bert Vigen in Smiley township has kept a close record of his farm income and expenses and uses them in analyzing his farm business.

Analysis of farm records reveals that 60-70 cents of every dollar of farm income goes back into the business—for feed, machinery costs and other expenses in the state of Minnesota. This is about 10 cents more than fifteen years ago.

And that's not all. Of your net income after farm expenses, about 61 per cent will be used for living expenses. That means you only have 39 per cent of your net income left to put back into the business.

So to make a profit, you need to watch your business more closely than ever, say Hal Routhe and Ermond Hartmans, farm management specialists at the University of Minnesota.

Watch your financial progress and "net worth".

Find enterprises that are most profitable, and where to make improvements.

Manage your income tax and social security matters to better advantage.

Plan your credit needs.

Check on household and personal expenses.

By keeping track of every expense item—no matter how small—you can save money at income tax, Routhe and Hartmans point out. A lot of expenses around the farm and home are small items, but every dollar of expense may mean 20 cents less tax.

Record systems needn't be complicated. Routhe and Hartmans recommend a 4-part system—a check book and a deposit book, a "safety" spindle, a record book, and an "accordion-type" file envelope to keep the year's cancelled checks and receipts after they've been posted in the record book. All four items will cost about four dollars. That's a cheap investment, considering the money it can save you, Routhe and Hartmans add.

Certified Seed

How can you be sure the seed you plant is clean and true to varietal type?

Plant certified seed.

Certified seed is never more than three generations away from foundation seed. And the pedigree, or history, of certified seed is carefully guarded so that you know where each generation was grown and who produced it, says Ward Marshall, manager of the Minnesota Crop Improvement Ass'n (MCIA) at the University. Pennington seed farmers are showing increased interest in good seed production on plots which will give them enough seed for the following year. This is a good practice.

Every pound of certified seed, you have the assurance of reliable seed has been carefully inspected and supervised during the planting and growing season, and during the harvesting, cleaning, storage and selling.

When you buy certified seed, you have the assurance of reliable seedsmen and the MCIA that the seed is genetically pure and free from prohibited weeds.

Growers who raise certified seed must meet these standards:

1. They must be members of the MCIA.

2. Only varieties recommended by the Minnesota Agricultural Experiment Station or specially approved varieties may be grown for certification.

3. Growers must apply for field inspection and submit verification of their seed sources.

4. They must clean up their fields and take out weeds and unwanted plants.

5. They must request MCIA sampling. Only samples taken by MCIA samplers will be accepted.

6. Before growers can sell certified seed, it must carry the certification tag of MCIA. Tags are issued by MCIA to each grower according to the number of bushels of seed he has produced. In addition, it must be labeled according to the requirements of the state and federal seed laws.

The MCIA gives the grower instructions for applying for field inspections and checks all applicants for seed source verification.

Prowler Six Defeats Warroad Team 6 to 0

Jimmy Reese, making his first appearance of the season in a Prowler hockey uniform, sparked coach Johnny Matheil's club to a well-earned 6 to 0 win over the Warroad Warriors in a regional conference game played on the Arena ice Tuesday night.

On Friday night, Jan. 25th, the Prowlers will meet the Roseau Rams at Roseau; and on Saturday afternoon, with face-off time at 3:00 p.m. the Baudette Burbots will play the Prowlers on the Arena rink.

Reese, moving into the number one line, at left wing, scored a goal and was credited with three assists to turn in a "four-point" performance. Reese, who was ineligible throughout the first semester because of scholastic difficulties, has exceptional skating ability, and is a nimble stickhandler. His presence on the first line gives invaluable assistance to hard-working center-ice man Jimmy Hall.

The Prowlers opened the scoring Tuesday night at the 7:08 mark of the opening period when Reese dug the puck out of the south-east corner of the rink, slid a pass out to Hall, and the center-ice man beat goalie Francis O'Donnell with a hard shot from 15 feet out. At the 14:45 mark the locals increased their lead to 2 to 0 when Darryl Smith fired a long shot from the point, and goalie O'Donnell tipped the disk into the cage.

Tallied by Don Litstrom, Reese, and Smith boosted the Prowlers' lead to 5 to 0 in the second stanza. And in the final period, a combination goal, Reese on the assist and Hall scoring, gave the Prowlers their final tally and a 6 to 0 victory.

Goalie Ken Sauve registered his first shutout of the year (he shared a shutout in the Prowlers 11 to 0 triumph over Red Lake Falls some weeks ago), as he turned aside nine Warroad on-goal shots. Three of those saves were of exceptional caliber as the Warroad players gained breakaways by using a "sleeper" at the blue-line. Sauve refused to get out of position on these solo rushes, and booted the disk out of the net.

AIRPORT NEWS

Despite the blustery winter weather we had last week, a few pilots did come to the local airport, via car if not by plane.

Nordie Swenson and Don Parker drove over from Karlstad the 5th and from here Parker was to fly Trane's Ercoupe to Fargo. When over Crookston, however, he was forced to turn back due to heavy overcast and he continued his trip to Fargo by car.

Wednesday the 16th Jack Grahn, Hilding Grahn, and Ed Baumgarten motored over from Roseau to check on their sprayer which the mechanic has been silver hauling.

Friday, our one good flying day of the week kept Martin Rantanen busy in the air with many of his students. The state game warden, John Parker of Warroad, also took advantage of the weather and was met here by the warden from Red Lake Falls. They went up in a Super-Cub.

Gene Miller and Tom Hagen flew over from Crookston in a T-Craft, the same afternoon. They came to see the recover job being done on the sprayer.

Saturday morning, Rantanen and Ehrenstrom went cross-country to Strandquist and Karlstad on business. They flew Martin's Super-Cub.

Sunday, Henry Peterson, Jr. brought his PA-11 over and left it for the mechanic to work on. Don Parker followed in an Ercoupe, in which they returned to Karlstad.

Every day last week except Friday, Saturday a.m., and Sunday, we all stayed pretty close to the ground because of high winds and some blowing snow.

Crop Insurance Signup Starts in Marshall County

The Federal Crop Insurance Corporation announced, at its state-wide sales meeting held January 15th and 16th in St. Paul, that their 1957 spring insurance campaign in Marshall county will begin this week.

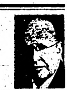
Crop insurance is protection offered under the direction of the U. S. Department of Agriculture against all production risks and is a non-profit program designed to give farmers basic protection at low cost. Wheat and flax are the crops protected in Marshall county.

A progressive insurance coverage closely following the cost of each major tillage operation is available to both farm operators and the farm owners in the county.

Crookston Man Is Law Examiner

John W. Padden, Crookston attorney, Monday was named to a three-year term as a member of the board of law examiners by Chief Judge Roger L. Dell of the Minnesota supreme court. Padden will succeed Lyman A. Brink of Hallock, who was simultaneously named to a three-year term as a member of the bar admissions review panel to replace Reuben N. Nelson, Breckenridge, who resigned.

Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson



Well?

We are still of the opinion that coach Oscar Almquist's Roseau Rams, with their abundance of hockey manpower, will win the eighth regional hockey championship in the tournament that will be played at Roseau on Feb. 14th and 15th. But we aren't as stubborn about it as we were last week, and the reason for this "weaseling" is due to that surprising 4 to 2 game played here last Thursday night.

It was the Prowlers vs. the Rams, and before the Prowlers dropped that game, by a 4 to 2 score, they had played the Rams on fairly even terms. And in the third period, the Prowlers knotted the score at 2-all. That performance, and the game against Warroad here on Tuesday night, were the "tops" for the Prowlers this season. (The locals received quite a boost on Tuesday night when Jimmy Reese returned to the lineup).

One of the factors, and it's a slight hope, that could cause the Roseau Rams some trouble is that they are top-heavy with talent. Oscar dressed about eighteen players for the game here Thursday night, and all of those players appeared to be of near-equal talent. It's a fact, and the success of the Eveleth Golden Bears over the years, and the Prowlers last year, have proved it to be true, that hockey on the high school level can be played with eight or nine top-flight boys.

In championship tournament play, the games are reduced to twelve-minute periods, and its possible for a team to carry thru a tournament series with two lines and three defensemen and a goalie. We can recall the days of John Mayasich at Eveleth, and coach Cliff Thompson had him on the ice practically all the time. During his "rest" periods, in the state tournament competition, Mayasich would be at defense. Thompson is following the same pattern his year, with big Jerry Norman playing at center, and then moving back to defense when the Norman "wings" are on the bench. Jerry is a big, strong youngster that can take these twelve-minute periods in stride.

As we said, that's the problem facing Roseau. There are so many hockey players up there that it is difficult to pick the best, and give them the "heavy" work that they need. The only place to learn hockey is by playing in games, and a small squad, of course, gets more game-experience than a large squad.

But while we have "conceded" the regional title to Roseau, it's the runner-up spot that will cause the furore in the regional tournament. This year, being an odd-numbered year, the regional runner-up will gain a state tournament berth, representing Region Three. What a battle royal the Williams Wolves, the Hallock Polar Bears, the Baudette Burbots, the Warroad Warriors, and the Prowlers, will make for that runner-up spot!

The Region's Best

We wish to place in nomination, as our choices for the region's best basketball players, the following boys: Dave Hanson, center, of the Prowlers; Al Santwire, forward, of the Mahnomen Indians; Wayne Langen, center, Louis Deere, forward, and Gary Oistad, guard, of the Kennedy Rockets; Ray Cronk, center, of the Bemidji Lumberjacks; Larry Ness, guard, of the Roseau Rams; Pepper Lysaker, guard, of the Crookston Pirates; Sheldon Clay, center, of the Baudette Burbots; and Arlo Brunsberg, of the Fertile Falcons.

If his play here last Saturday night is any criterion, Mahnomen's Al Santwire is the brightest sparkler in this galaxy of regional stars. Santwire, who appears to possess qualities of leadership, for he directed the Indians to their overtime win, is an all-round performer. He is a splendid driver, being able to score on an underhand lay-up. From the outside, he is a threat with his jump shot. It was Santwire's jump shots that "killed" the Prowlers on Saturday night.

Oh yes, if the opposition should try to "press" this all-star aggregation, we'd put Kennedy's Gary Oistad into the lineup. Oistad's ability to bring the ball up the court would soon de-emphasize the "press."

Miscellany

Phil Meyer, a quarterback on the 1954-55 Detroit Lakes football team, and he was a slick one, too, is attending the University of Minnesota. Following in the footsteps of his Dad, Phil is taking up journalism and he's on the staff of the Minnesota Daily. Phil forwards an interesting item from the Daily, commenting on the friendly feud between the Gophers' Marv Jorde and the North Dakota Sioux' Joey Poole, explaining that both Jorde and Poole were members of the 1954 Prowler state high school hockey champions, and that both boys were all-state tournament selections that year. He adds a footnote to the effect that the Lakers basketball team, and they looked like a powerful outfit as they beat the Prowlers here a couple of weeks ago, have been plagued by ankle injuries. Center Jim Johnson and guard Marv Anderson are hampered by ankle sprains.— The current issue of "Argosy" magazine carries an article titled "Mayhem on Ice," referring to the brawls that are a part of N.H.L. play. Several paragraphs are reserved for the free-for-all that took place on March 16, 1947, at Madison Square Garden, claiming that the affair was the bloodiest of all. The item states that "Reardon dove over the fence swinging his fists among the Ranger players. Ken's Montreal Canadien teammates joined him and in the melee Maurice Richard broke his stick over Bill Juzda's head." That's the Juzda who played here several years ago as a member of the Thieves, and who played last season with the Crookston Pirates. Juzda, during his eight-year "big league" career, played with the Toronto Maple Leafs and the New York Rangers.

Dixie Hanson and N. Wennberg First in Bowling Event

Thirty couples participated in the mixed doubles bowling tournament that was conducted at the Pla-Mor alleys on Saturday and Sunday. The duo of Dixie Hanson and Norman Wennberg won first place with an aggregate of 1460 pins. That total was 15 pins ahead of the score posted by Val Votava and Andy Nesland, who chalked up a 1445 for second place.

Mary Ann Myhrer and Cliff Erickson, with a 1440 score, gained third place. Luverne Larson and Wally DuChamp had a 1411 for fourth, and Lorraine Bergland and Millard Peterson had a 1410 score for fifth.

Mary Ann Myhrer, with a 233 score, had the high single game for the women; while Orv Gillespie's 235 game, was the high score for the men.

Hockey Thieves Set Sunday Game

Elmwood Mercury Sextet to Play Locals in Arena

The senior hockey Thieves, boasting a winning streak of two games, having defeated the Champlain Flyers and the Fargo Comets in their last two outings, will meet the Elmwood Mercurys here on Sunday afternoon, with face-off time at 2:30 p. m.

The Thieves, with their bona fide "home talent" lineup, are playing pretty fair hockey. The number one line consists of Al Steenerson, center, Chip Strand and Glen Carlson at the wings. The second line, centered by Gordy Bjorken, has Del Ray and Cal Offerdahl at the wings. Chickie Oveson, the former Roseau Rams player, spells off Steenerson as first line center, and he also sees action on the second line.

$78 Million Highway Work in State in 1957

Minnesota's road-building industry was told to prepare for a $78,000,000 construction program during the first half of 1957 by State Highway Commissioner M. J. Hoffmann, who spoke at the Associated General Contractor's annual convention last week.

This total figure, he pointed out, includes $37,817,000 in proposed new trunk highway projects and $8,700,000 which the counties contemplate on their federal aid secondary systems, plus $29,000,00 in trunk highway work and $2,800,000 in county work placed under contract last year but awaiting completing during the coming construction season.

Hoffmann gave the contractors the following tentative construction program of work the department anticipates placing under contract by June 30:

78.7 miles of grading	$ 4,445,000
23.5 miles of grading and base	5,190,000
111.5 miles of grading base & bituminous	5,419,000
8.3 miles of grading & concrete pavement	600,000
73.5 miles of base and bituminous surfacing	1,374,000
156.2 miles of bituminous surfacing	2,443,000
66.2 miles of concrete pavement	6,783,000
10.4 miles of widening and resurfacing 47 bridges	11,351,000

Turning his attention to Amendment No. 2 which was adopted at the November election, Hoffmann stated that "its great potential of benefits to the counties and municipalities will have just the opposite effect on those secondary trunk highways comprised in the state highway system." Instead of the department getting about 80 per cent of road user revenues, he told the contractors, beginning July 1, it will receive only 62 per cent, which will result in a reduction of about $15,500,000 annually for construction work. With the need for matching greatly increased federal aid in the construction of interstate highways, and for regular federal aid primary and urban highways, it will result in a great reduction in construction on secondary trunk highways unless other funds are made available.

"Because of the special five-year $20 million bridge bond authorization made by the 1955 Legislature," he said, "the full impact resulting from the reduction of trunk highway funds can be partially offset during the next biennium, but obviously it will result in using a greater proportion of available funds for bridge construction work."

He looked for a greater total volume of road construction in the years ahead because of the interstate program, which requires only 10 per cent in state matching funds, making possible the greate utilization of state-raised road user revenues.

"In addition," he concluded, "Amendment No. 2 permits the issuance of additional bonds for trunk highway construction work, so that this source of revenue could be used to supplement state trunk highway funds, providing the Legislature should determine that such action appears advisable to better balance the entire state trunk highway construction program."

'57 State Highway Map Is Published

Copies to Be Available Soon in This Community

"Welcome to Minnesota, Land of 10,000 Lakes" is the greeting extended on the cover of the 1957 official Minnesota state highway map, just off the presses. Governor Freeman's message accompanying the greeting, amplifies the welcome theme with an invitation to "See Minnesota First!" and to enjoy its "incomparable beauties of nature" and its fishing, boating and swimming while relaxing at one of the state's many vacation spots.

The 450,000 maps will be distributed free of charge. Minnesotans are invited to send copies to relatives and friends outside the state who might be interested in visiting the state, highway officials said. The maps are now available at the Highway department headquarters in St. Paul and soon will be at the department's district offices, local chambers of commerce, public tourist bureaus, hotels and motels throughout the state.

The 30 x 36-inch map, printed in seven colors on the Minnesota map side and four colors on the reverse side has several new features. More of the state's year-around usable secondary roads are shown than previously and numbers designating state trunk highways are in squares, instead of in circles as previously. There is a table of steps to be taken in case of a traffic accident, as well as an expanded listing of safe driving suggestions.

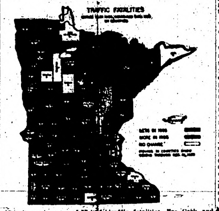
Pennington Lists 2 Traffic Deaths in '56



Despite an increase of 57 traffic deaths in Minnesota in 1956 over 1955, 36 counties reduced their highway fatalities from 1955 to 1956 and 10 others held the line with each showing identical totals from the two years. The net increase of 57 deaths resulted from the fatality gains in the remaining 41 of the state's 87 counties.

The pattern of traffic fatalities by counties is shown in a year-end tabulation reported today by Harry A. Sieben, new state highway safety director. Minnesota recorded 637 highway deaths in 1956, as compared with 580 during the preceding year.

Five counties, Aitkin, Cook, Kanabec, Lake of the Woods and Rock, went through 1956 with no traffic fatalities. For Cook and Lake of the Woods, it was the second successive year with a perfect record. Rock county, with 10 highway deaths in 1955, showed the biggest life-saving gain of the year for all 87 counties. Anoka county was close behind with nine fewer deaths in 1956—16 in 1955 and only seven in 1956.

The accompanying map shows that Pennington county was among those which showed a poorer record for 1956, compared with 1955. The two deaths within the county were one more than in the previous year. Marshall county showed six deaths in 1955 and four in 1956, while Red Lake showed three in 1956 and none in 1955.

WHO DOES WHAT ON CAPITAL HILL

One hundred ninety-nine hard working conscientious public servents are working against time on Capitol Hill in Saint Paul to assue orderly and adequately financed governmental procedures in Minnesota for the next two years. Under the law they have 90 days in which to accomplish this giant task, but two of the session's earliest bills would extend that period, one for 60 days, the other for 90 days. Among 131 listed members of the House are five Andersons, three Johnsons, two each Olson, Swenson, and Thompson, also one Kelley and one Kelly. Lieutenant Governor Rolvaag presides over 67 Senators, including three Andersons and one Andersen, three Johnsons, two Hansons. House has 39 Committees, Senate 32; during what may look like long recesses of the main bodies, these Committees are at it hammer and tongs from early morning until late night seven days a week reconciling zeal with common sense, inadequate funds with adequate functioning.

AREA REPRESENTATION

There will be much talk of reapportionment while the Legislature is in session, but nothing will be done about it. Rural Minnesota recognizes the fact that the Constitution provides for equality of representation on a population basis, but rural Minnesota, foreseeing the time when the metropolitan area will have more population than the rural area, is not going to submit voluntarily to the control of the state by its large cities. Most students of government agree that such a situation would be bad for both the urban and rural areas of the state.

The facts of life come late in life to some of the big city bigwigs, but eventually they will become reconciled to the fact that reapportionment will come only when the right of rural Minnesota to control one house of the legislature is recognized. On a population basis the House will eventually be controlled by the representatives of the metropolitan area. The state senate, as is the senate of our federal government, should be representative on an area basis.

ESSENTIAL TO FREEDOM

On the Chicago market last week hogs were worth 6½ cents a pound more than they had been a year ago, and eggs brought 15 cents a dozen less. These price fluctuations tell a simple story. There were too many hogs a year ago. This year too many hens were laying too many eggs.

The market is an auction. Buyers are buying for as low a price as possible. Sellers are selling for as much as they can get.

For commodities that are in short supply, competitive bidding forces prices up. When the supply exceeds the demand the buyers have a field day.

For some people the market is an evil thing. The worst that can be said about it probably is that both buyers and sellers are selfish and act generally like human beings.

The most valuable service performed by the public market, and the one that probably is least appreciated, is the balance it maintains, if it is not tinkered with, between supply and demand.

The market tells us far more effectively than government statisticians when we are producing too much of this or too little of that. A free market tells us how many of our acres should go into oats and how many into wheat; how many hogs we should raise and how many laying hens we should keep.

In recent years the government has been monkeying with the marketing of a few crops. Most of the products of our farms have been sold on a free market, without interference by the government. The crops that have, for one reason or another, been considered more important than others, have been marketed under government controls. Hogs and eggs have not been so favored.

Some of the controls, we are sure, have been justified. Without question these controls have cushioned the shock of the adjustment from war time to peace time production.

But let's not lose sight of the fact, in this period of transition, that the problem crops today are not hens and hogs. Eggs and pork are having their ups and downs; their good years and their bad; without government controls and without cost to the taxpayers. The only crops that have been a problem, year in and year out, and that probably will continue to be a problem, are those which have been protected and subsidized by a paternalistic government.

While we are not afraid of the future, we are inclined to agree that the free world is not going to survive without a struggle. The threat of a barbarian dictatorship, disguised as a benevolent socialism, is a very real danger. We do not improve our chances of surviving in the international struggle as a free people if we yield to the temptations of paternalistic government here at home.

Our chances of survival will be much better as we retain the spirit of rugged individualism that has made our country great.

TOUGH DECISIONS

(Alfred B. Stedman in the St. Paul Pioneer Press)

John and Mary are a young couple facing a tough decision. They have slept over it and wept over it. In the dairy country, thousands of other couples have been doing the same.

John and Mary have been making their living milking a few cows to eke out money from pigs and field crops and chickens. All their plans of changing their ways of farming have remained in the talk stage.

But now they can't dodge the question any longer. They are caught in the forward march of dairy practice. To sell their whole milk they must before long make one improvement and to get the best prices for milk of Grade A quality for drinking, they must install two: The first, a separate milk house for the clean handling of milk; the second, a bulk milk tank for its quick refrigeration and economic pick-up by tank trucks.

At first, this looks like a money question: Whether to invest two or three thousand dollars or maybe more—a lot of money to John and Mary and many like them.

But the real question is bigger. Are they staying in dairying or getting out? Staying in means concentrating on dairy farming. It means building up the herd, maybe in time to double present size, perhaps getting more land. For the casual milking of a few cows in mixed farming can never make the investment pay. Elderly neighbors don't feel up to making a start late in their lives down the long road of modern dairy farming. But the road holds out hopes of a better living. And John and Mary are young. They can get financing. They can take the modernizing road.

In town nearby, John and Mary's little co-op creamery is facing a similarly tough decision. Its volume is small. Its cost per pound of making butter are double those of some modern plants. More and more Johns and Marys are shifting to plants that buy not just cream but whole milk and some of them Grade A milk for drinking.

What shall the small creamery do? By itself to build and equip a large volume dairy plant would cost real money. Chances to join with other small creameries in building a fine consolidated plant may not be good. Giant corporations of the dairy world stand ready to gobble the business that the small ones lose. For them, there's no easy way out.

John and Mary and the small creamery seem to be under pressures of the same general kind. The age of dairy science and technology has caught up with them. The new dairy practices require large capital investments. These practices are of great advantage to those who invest the money and the effort to use them. But, if sad, it's true that these improved practices also place great disadvantages on those who don't shift from old ways to the new.

And the decisions? Making them has our dairying a-churn with change. The story appears in the 1950 state farm census. It reappears in the modernizing records of the Twin City Milk Producers association & Rochester Dairy Cooperative. The St. Paul campus study of creameries by E. Fred Koller and Arvid C. Knudtson tells it.

Small Minnesota dairy farmers are modernizing and expanding by the thousands. Last year alone the number having large herds (30 or more cows) increased more than 20 per cent and those having medium sized herds (20 to 29 cows) rose almost 12 per cent. But those having less than 10 cows fell 6,500, as one in every eight decided either to enlarge or go out of dairying. The Koller-Knudtson study shows the numbers of large creameries rising and the numbers of small ones falling short in recent years.

Yes, the decisions can be tough. But co-op or other financing can be had by farmers or creameries with modernizing programs to warrant it. The record shows that the decisions are being made on the farm and in the creamery, at a rate that is lifting the face of Minnesota dairying.

Looking Backward

PUBLIC OPINION

Editor Times:

"The January 10th issue of the Times carried a news article written by Mr. Folwick, that I believe should not stand unchallenged.

Mr. Folwick charges:—

No. 1—That the Liberals and Governor Freeman are dominated by organized labor.

No. 2—Labor organizations are interested in dominating legislative actions regarding taxes and welfare.

No. 3—That labor pours huge sums of money in campaigns to elect Liberal legislators.

No. 4—That labor is making a list of Senators to defeat in the next election.

I wish to answer the above questions with the following statement, based on experience gained during the last legislative session and I will answer these in the order stated above.

No. 1—As a Liberal member of the House I can truthfully say that I am not, as Folwick charges, dominated by organized labor or by any other group. I can point with pride to the fact that the Liberal House and the Freeman administration had an outstanding record in legislation to better conditions for the farmer and the small businessman.

No. 2—Labor organizations represent a large group of people and I believe that they have the right to be heard before the various committees regarding laws concerning taxes and welfare. I wish to point out that no individual or group was denied the right to appear before House Committees las session. In fact the thinking of representative groups is welcomed at all times.

No. 3—If money is available in the amounts mentioned, to Liberal candidates, then I have been missed during the last campaign. I spent, in mileage, telephone, postage, and other expenses, aproximately $400.00 that was considered as personal expenses. The Day-Wichterman Volunteer Committee spent approximately $850.00. Much of it was donated by local people and in small amounts. These records are available to anyone at the Red Lake County Auditor's office and the office of the Secretary of State.

No. 4—No Liberal or Conservative legislator has any reason to be alarmed about future elections. I am sure the average voter is intelligent and that he will accept or reject any member of the Legislature on the basis of his accomplishments. Certainly the voters will consider the overall accomplishment of the House as a group and the Senate as a group, but in this regard each body has the responsibility of passing the kind of legislation that the people want.

I wish to point out that here in St. Paul and in the Halls of Congress in Washington, D. C., it is almost impossible to pass liberal laws without the aid of legislators from areas in which unions are strong. Many laws of benefit to business and agriculture have been passed with the support of these legislators. Labor has supported agricultural legislation that the farmers want.

In closing, I should like to point out the danger that lies in the "divide and rule" tactics that Mr. Folwick's article represents. One of the easiest ways for special interests and special privilege groups to get their way is to divide large groups — such as farmers and workers, and to prevent them from working together. But I believe the voters will see thru such attempts and will base their judgment on the record of legislators on measures of importance to all the people.

Sincerely yours,
Rep. B. M. Wichterman

GOOD NEIGHBORS AROUND IN STATE

Minnesota is noted for neighborly spirit. Among plentiful evidence, recent developments include the rebuilding of a barn on the Gordon farm near Houston, where fire destroyed several buildings and numerous neighbors pitched in to help get things going again. . . Orvis Roed was practically overcome when he picked up in Halstad a billfold containing nearly $500 in cash, and greatly relieved when a lady from a neighboring city established her ownership. . . The Legislature

By Orlin Folwick

Governor Freeman's administrative plans and the proposed monumental overhaul of the state taxing system, which caused some eyebrow lifting in the early days of the 1957 legislative session, stand a better chance of approval than some observers felt after listening to first reactions.

This does not mean the governor who could do that has yet to be elected. Governor Freeman, however, is getting much friendly attention from legislators who might easily be opposed to all but a few items in his program.

Senators Friendly

There are a few legislators who are decidely against the Freeman proposals. A survey among the independent majority in the senate, however, disclosed that there will be careful, unbiased consideration of the ideas expressed by the governor in both his administration and tax reform plans. No item will be disposed of until it has been thoroughly studied.

The viewpoint of senators is important. It is they who do the final polishing job on legislation pertaining to revenues and taxes. A state senator usually has at least two house members from his district and can be quite influential with them.

Interestring sidelight in the senate majority group, which is different politically from the house majority group, is that the senators are casting aside political considerations in approaching the problems.

No Political Matter

Senate majority leader Archie H. Miller of Hopkins, for instance, takes the position that "his is not a political matter at all. It is a problem we have to view from a state-wide standpoint and think of it in terms of giving the people of Minnesota the best possible deal."

Senator Gordon Rosenmeier of Little Falls, a major figure in senate leadership, said "these questions cannot be disposed of with a wave of the hand. The political views of the governor who presents them to the legislature are of no consequence. The point is that we have concrete proposals concerning problems that must be solved."

Commission Non-Political

Important in the framing of ideas on the tax reform program is that it was worked out by a large group of citizens, non of whom had a professional agricultural and labor factors in the economy. They turned out a unanimous report — no minority dissent.

None of the independent majority group in the senate is ready to accept the proposals without examination. They would not accept anyone's proposals without checking.

Withholding Tax Questionable

One subject that will be gone into thoroughly is the proposal for a withholding plan for collection of state income taxes. The governor, in his message, referred to this plan and said that he wanted it with no "forgiveness" clause. This means that while the plan was being installed, taxpayers would pay three years' taxes in two. It was on this point the governor lost a similar bill in the 1955 session. The idea would create a $25,000,000 "windfall" for payment of a Korean soldiers' bonus.

Some of the senators wonder about the governor's request that married couples who both work pay their income taxes on a combined basis rather than as individuals. Statements concerning this suggestion were that married couples working to save up for a home would pay a higher tax than a husband earning as much as their combined income.

There will be trimming in numerous budget requests, but indications are the legislature will yield a considerable proportion of the $25,000,000 increase the governor asked over the budget he presented in 1955.

18.17 miles per gallon on North America's toughest truck run!
That's the gas mileage reported by the Cameo Carrier after covering the entire length of the Alcan Highway in less than 45 hours! All six new Task-Force trucks that made the run turned in top scores for performance and economy!
Supervised and certified by the AAA.

New Task-Force 57 Chevrolet Trucks

Six heavily loaded Chevy trucks ran all the way up the rugged Alcan Highway in less than 45 hours! That's cutting more than a full day off the normal running time! They ran right around the clock, stopping only to refuel.

But the important fact about this run was that it proved new Chevy trucks through and through. The Alcan Highway is a supreme test of every truck component. Engines had to prove their power up high-climbing grades and through washouts. Frames and suspensions flexed their muscles over axle-deep ruts and miles of pounding gravel. "And not a single truck turned back or dropped out due to mechanical failure," states the official AAA report of the test. Every model proved its over-all economy by its ironclad ability to stay on the job! Stop by; we'll talk about it.

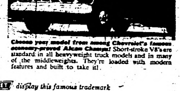
Champs of every weight class!



Choose your model from among Chevrolet's famous economy-proved Alcan Champs! Short-stroke V8's are standard in all heavyweight truck models and in many of the middleweights. They're loaded with modern features and built to take it!

Toothbrush Weapon Against Tooth Decay

(This is the third in a series of five articles on dental health being presented by the Times, in cooperation with the Pennington Co. Dental Society, in observance of National Children's Dental Heath Week, Feb. 3-9.)

It should be recalled that bacteria in the mouth begin acting on sugars within minutes of their consumption to form acids capable of dissolving tooth enamel. Removal of these food particles before the acids can begin destruction is essential.

If it is impossible at times to brush the teeth after eating, the mouth should be rinsed with water.

The old American habit of brushing the teeth the first thing in the morning and the last thing at night is not as effective for dental health as is after-meal brushing.

As for the proper way to brush the teeth, dentists are agreed that a modification of an up and down movement should be used. The strenuous side-to-side method is highly inefficient.

Generally, the bristles of the brush should be pointed toward the roots of the teeth. The brush should be moved so that the bristles sweep over the gums and teeth. The upper teeth should be brushed downward and the lower teeth upward. The inside surfaces of the teeth should be included, and the wide chewing surfaces of the teeth should be scrubbed.

A dentist or dental hygienist can show a parent and child the best toothbrushes for young children should be smaller than those used by adults. A good toothbrush should have (1) a flat brushing surface, (2) firm bristles and (3), a head small enough to reach all accessible surfaces of the teeth.

What about tooth pastes and tooth powders? The dental profession recognizes no "miracle" dentifrice. Despite claims to the contrary, there is still no conclusive scientific proof that any tooth paste or powders in itself will prevent dental decay or gum disease.

A dentifrice acts simply to help the toothbrush clean the teeth and toothbrushing can be made more pleasant with the use of a tooth paste or powder.

Highway Traffic in Rural Areas up

Shows Gain of 2 Per Cent in 1956 Compared to 1955

Minnesota's rural trunk highway traffic increased about two per cent in 1956 over 1955, with Februray showing the greatest climb for a single month, 14.4 per cent. The Minnesota highway department's tabulation of traffic counts by its 29 automatic recorders located on rural trunk highways, made public today, noted that February of last year had comaratively good weather and driving conditions.

The 1956 tabulation recorded state-wide increases in traffic for every month except April and May, which were down 3.9 and 3.2 per cent, respectively, from the same months in 1955. The decreases were changed to cold weather and a late spring.

The station showing the biggest increase in 1956, of those operated on the same basis through both 1955 and 1956, was the one on U. S. 65, northwest of Lakeville. It had a 1956 gain of 10.1 per cent. Recorders on U. S. 169, southwest of Jordan, showed a total gain of 13 per cent. A new four-lane divided highway was opened at that point in October, 1955.

Driver Tests Are Ordered in Cases of Car Fatalities

Re-examinations Show Some Drivers Guilty of Previous Violations

Some drivers involved in fatal traffic accidents are being ordered to be re-examined to determine whether or not they are qualified to retain their driver license.

This was announced by G. A. Hatfield, state driver license director, who said his division had made a special study of the driving records of all drivers involved in recent fatal accidents. The opening study covered the 50 most recent fatal mishaps in Minnesota, involving 69 drivers, where competent accident reports had been received by the highway department. Fifteen drivers were included in the 62 persons who lost their lives in these mishaps; while one death was caused by a hit-and-run driver not yet identified.

The re-examinations are part of a stepped up driver improvement program of the driver license section, which formerly had been spot-checking accident reports rather than including all drivers in a particular accident category.

Four out of ten drivers (42 per cent) included in the study had at least one previous conviction or accident, including one driver who had two entries for driving under the influence of alcohol out of nine entries in four years. His driving license had been revoked twice and suspended for one year at another time.

In one accident in the study, one driver had been convicted of careless driving three times in three years, while the other had been in three accidents in 18 months. In another collision involving four drivers, only one had a clear record, while another had been convicted of drunken driving and hit-and-run less than four months previous to his death.

More than half, eight out of fifteen, of the drivers who were killed had previous records of traffic law violations.

COUNTERPANE CATHEDRAL

There was a man who had stopped going to church because, he said, "Church doesn't make me feel any nearer to God."

One night he stepped into the children's room to kiss them good night. And suddenly he felt as though he were in church. There was a pillowed altar and a devout congregation in prayer. Yet he didn't feel any nearer to God.

And in that moment he learned the truth that every soul must learn; religion is not some outer force that brings God close to a man. Religion is man's inner yearning which reaches up and discovers how near God is.

And so, from the example of his children, he learned how to find the faith which had eluded him. And, finding it, he returned to church to share with other Christians the rich experience of worship . . . to receive the spiritual gifts of Word and Sacrament . . . to serve Christ in the vital, challenging work of the Church.

He knows that in church—or in a moonlit nursery—God is near those who want Him near!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

The Thief River Falls residential areas will be the object of a concerted drive to raise funds to combat polio and to care for past victims of the dread disease when local women stage their annual Mothers March on Polio Thursday evening, January 31, starting at 6:30, under the direction of Mrs. Harold G. Rasmussen and Mrs. Rudolph Sagmoen.

The solicitors will be assigned to their respective area in the basement of the Auditorium immediately preceding the drive, and cars will be furnished for those needing rides, it was announced. Coffee and doughnuts will be served on their return to the Auditorium to check in.

Participating in the canvass will be nearly 200 women recruited from church, civic and fraternal organizations, whose aid is being enlisted by a group of leaders including Mmes. Ralph Fischer, Earl Arnold, Maynard Mehrkens, Clarence Williams, Morris Odegaard, Kenneth Hanson, Pete Bremsy, Wm. Thompson, Frank Schmitz, S. Mortrud, O. J. Lundell, Clarence Wold, Curtis Anderson, John Jaranson, P. L. Monme, C. J. Collins, Ole Ness, Robert Nelson, Andy Williamson and Harvey Helle, and the Misses Mary McLaughlin and Ida Ramstad.

Polio patients of the nation would be in a dangerous position if many people had the erroneous idea that paralytic polio is licked at a time when the current March of Dimes is desperately in need of funds," it was announced last week by Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, who was in Chicago to attend a Cook county chapter medical advisory committee luncheon in tribute to those who gave valuable assistance during the 1956 polio epidemic.

"Like any organization dedicated to the public interest" he said, "we have been discussing and investigating possible courses of future action in serving the American people, for we know that some day polio will be conquered, now that we have a preventive vaccine.

"But to view this as an indication that our original goal already has been achieved is a distortion of the facts, at a time when our obligation to at least 80,000 old polio patients is most pressing."

Scientific research for improved treatment, rehabilitation and polio vaccines, as well as professional education to train urgently needed physicians, therapists and other medical experts and care of new patients this year, all depend upon continued public support of the 1957 March of Dimes, Mr. O'Connor said.

"I wish I could issue some kind of victory statement, now that we have come this far in the fight against polio," he added. "There are many elements of victory in existence — reduced polio incidence last year, the inoculation of more than 44,000,000 children and adults with at least one shot of Salk vaccine, improved patient care. But I am afraid that talk about victory today would be dangerously premature. Victory means the end of a fight and the tragic fact is that the polio fight is far from over. I am sure the American people intend to fight it to its end."

Lincoln Debaters in Midwest Event

Local Students Win Five out of Eight at St. Peter

The Mason City, Iowa, high school team won top honors in the debate division of the Upper Midwest high school speech meet at Gustavus Adolphus college in St. Peter Saturday.

The local debaters will compete in the Region 8 tourney at Mahnomen next Saturday, February 2. The top three winners in the event will go on to compete in the state tourney to be held February 16.

Soil Conservation Hearings Will Be Held in Marshall

The total of petition signers for the Marshall county soil conservation district is still rising. Total to date is 388, it was announced in Warren.

Notification was received from St. Paul that this is a satisfactory number of signers and two tentative public hearings have been scheduled. One will be held at the Argyle city hall and another at the Newfolden high school.

According to law, legal notice of such hearings must be published in the paper and posters must be put up in conspicuous places.

More information will be released next week.

DFL Conference on Legislation Slated in T. R. Falls Feb. 9

Two legislative conferences have been scheduled for the Ninth District according to an announcement made this week by Marvin Evanson, Ninth District Democratic-Farmer-Labor party chairman.

The first will be held at Thief River Falls on Saturday, February 9, and the second at Fergus Falls on February 23. Both will follow the same program.

"These conferences will give the legislators an opportunity to explain their work in St. Paul to the people they represent," said Mr. Evanson. "In addition, it allows the people to express their opinions concerning the various proposed changes in the laws which are coming before the legislature this year."

Registration for the conference at Thief River Falls will open at 9:00 A. M. on February 9. Following registration, legislators will speak on various bills which are pending before their group in St. Paul. Then the conference will be broken down into panels for the discussion of specific legislation which is being currently considered such as tax revision, aid to education, party designation, truck bill, etc.

Governor Orville Freeman has been invited to attend both conferences, and has indicated tentative acceptance. All state legislators will be invited, and those representing district areas will be especially urged to attend.

Plans call for a noon luncheon with the Governor as speaker, and a dinner-dance on Saturday evening after the close of the conference. Evanson indicated that several state commissioners will also be on hand to represent their departments.

Mrs. W. O. King at State GOP Session

Owatonna Man Renamed Head of State Committee

State Rep. John A. Hartle of Owatonna was reelected Saturday for another two-year term as chairman of the Minnesota Republican state central committee at its session in the Leamington Hotel, Minneapolis.

The Republican group voted to join the DFL in working for the issues of party designation, constitutional revision and reapportionment of legislative districts in the current session of the legislature.

The Republican committee took the initiative on adoption of a resolution supporting similar bipartisan action to amend Minnesota election laws.

The resolution urged appointment of committees from both parties to "facilitate elections and recounts, where necessary" by working toward the goals of a consolidated ballot in presidential primary elections, statewide voter registration (not party registration) and the "eventual use" of voting machines.

Annual Weed and Seed Meeting to Be Held on Feb. 6

The annual plant industry conference for Pennington county has been called for 10:00 A. M. on Wednesday, February 6, at the city Auditorium in Thief River Falls.

Although all township officers and mayors or assistants are required by law to attend this conference, usually practically 100% do so because they are interested in the subjects discussed and realize the responsibility entrusted upon them by the people of their township or municipality.

At the conference the weed and insect program will be organized for the season. Those attending will get the latest information on chemicals and their proper use in spraying weed infested crops, as well as methods of control of insect pests and plant diseases. New requirements for selling agricultural seed by dealers, farmers, sales clerks, auctioneers, and others also will be discussed.

Propose Korea War Bonus in Legislature

Bill Introduced to Provide Payments Totaling $27,000,000

Payment of a 27-million-dollar bonus to veterans of the Korean wars was urged Friday by representatives of several veterans organizations at a hearing before the Minnesota house veterans and military affairs committee.

Rep. Francis LaBrosse, Duluth, suggested that a special meeting be designated for opponents when no one appeared Friday in opposition.

LaBrosse is a strong supporter of a bill to pay $15 a month to those with overseas duty, and $10 a month to veterans with stateside service.

Rep. Edmund C. Tiemann, Sauk Centre, a committee chairman, agreed. Tiemann scheduled next Friday's meeting to hear opponents.

Judging from statements by committee members at the first meeting, it is expected the bill will be recommended for passage by a substantial margin. Committee action may be taken next Friday.

The measure calls for a maximum individual payment of $400, with an estimated 111,800 veterans of the Korean conflict benefiting.

Average payment would be $250. Covered would be veterans who served between June 25, 1950, and July 27, 1953, with payments limited to $270 for home-duty veterans and $400 for those with overseas service.

Appearing to favor enactment of the bill, to be financed by the present taxes that were levied for bonus payments to veterans of World War II, were Robert E. Hansen, South St. Paul, state commander of the Minnesota Veterans of Foreign Wars; Lowell Eastlund, state adjutant of the VFW, and Anthony Pratt, St. Paul, legislative representative of the American Legion.

Hansen urged it be paid out of the surplus from the World War II bonus fund from taxes scheduled to expire Dec. 31, 1958.

Rep. E. J. Windmiller, Fergus Falls, said he favored a bonus but that he "wants a sensible, reasonable, logical way of paying for it."

LaBrosse said he was not in favor of eliminating the $5 "head" tax if it will jeopardize the bonuses.

Broken Journal Held Responsible for Mishap That Occurred Sunday

A broken journal on a freight car caused the derailment of 16 cars of a 117-car freight train a mile west of Gonvick about 3:30 Sunday, according to E. A. Hamerski, Soo Line superintendent here.

The train had left Thief River Falls earlier and was an "extra" bound for Superior, Hamerski said. The accident did not happen on the Winnipeg division, and no local crewmen were involved. The engineer was A. K. Stalvig and the conductor was L. E. Booth, both of whom are from Superior.

The cars involved were loaded with grain screenings, pulp wood, wood pulp and grain, and were badly piled up judging from photographs at the scene. (Picture to follow in Thursday's Times.)

Hamerski said the track will probably be cleared early Tuesday. Train 64 out of Thief River Falls will leave here, as usual, later today and proceed to the wreck, where the load will be transferred by car and truck to other train from Superior, which will meet No. 64 on the opposite side of the wreck to take the load on to its destination, Hamerski stated this morning.

No injuries were reported in the pileup.

Part-time Trainees Hosts to Employers at Banquet Tuesday

Henry F. Howe, St. Paul, state supervisor of business and distributive education Tuesday will be guest speaker at the fourth annual employer-employe banquet Tuesday evening at 6:30 at the Rex Cafe. The topic of his illustrated lecture will be, "It's Later Than You Think! Let's Travel." On this occasion, the occupational part-time trainees of Lincoln high school will entertain their employers.

Before Mr. Howe's recent appointment to the department of education, he served for a number of years as coordinator of the part-time occupational training program at South Saint Paul.

Local business firms cooperating in the program this year are: Falls and Avalon Theatres, J & B Drug, S & L, Narverud Cleaners, The Jewel Box, Ben Franklin, The Fashion Shop, Coast-To-Coast Store, Hartz Supermarket, Lieberman's and Bjorkman's.

TRF Power Plant Given Publicity

Is Subject of Article in Diesel Magazine

The February issue of Diesel Progress, national magazine published in Los Angeles, Calif., devotes two pages to an illustrated article by Douglas Shearing dealing with the Thief River Falls municipal power plant, of which Morris Owen is chief engineer.

Pointing out that the plant depends largely on Diesel units for power production, the article points out that kilowatt output increased from 11,091,000 in 1951 to 15,373,100 in 1955.

During the same five-year period, the report states, the plant achieved a total net profit of $665,864.

Association Votes Changes in Program of This Year's Event

The Northwest Dairy Improvement association, sponsor of Dairy Day, at its annual meeting in the Thief River Falls Auditorium Thursday afternoon reelected five members of the board of directors and named one new member. All present officers were reelected.

In addition, financial reports were submitted showing the association to be in flourishing condition; motion pictures of the 1956 Dairy Day were shown, and plans for the 1957 event June 11 were developed. Stuart McLeod, president, conducted the session, which was attended by 80 members. L. A. Ihle served as secretary in the absence of J. M. Roche.

Reelected to the board were County Agent Paul Stelmaschuk and W. E. Dahlquist, both of Thief River Falls; Harold Kiseth, Argyle; Walter Schon, Fosston; and Sam Hauge, East Grand Forks. Vern Evenson of McIntosh was elected to succeed Robert Qual, who is moving to Grand Forks.

Elmer Bratsch, treasurer, reported 1956 receipts of $5,520.45 and disbursements of $4,740.72, leaving a balance of $779, from which is to be deducted the cost of the calf to be presented this year to the exhibitor of the top grade animal at the 1956 show. Included in receipts were $2,602.50 contributed by Thief River Falls business places; $1,[illegible] by area creameries; and $757.50 by area banks.

Conlon said the film will be shown at many events in Minnesota and adjoining states.

The association went on record in favor of continuing the Northwest Dairy Princess contest in 1957 on the same basis as last year. It was recommended that the winner should be given a short period of training before she enters the statewide Princess Kay contest at the state fair. The board of directors voted the expenditure of $300 in the winning girl's home county for use in training her for the state contest.

Program Sponsored by U. S. Dept. of Agriculture

The Federal Crop Insurance Corporation announced today the start of its 1957 spring insurance campaign in Pennington county. This program wherein premiums paid by the producers are used only to pay losses, represents a sound business proposition worthy of consideration by all eligible flax growers in Pennington county.

Mercury Mounts in Area This Week

Despite dust-carrying winds and blowing snow, the recent "warm" weather is a very welcome change in the Thief River Falls area after a lengthy cold spell lasting nearly two weeks without respite. The warming trend started Saturday and by Sunday the mercury had gone to the phenomenal high of 20 above.

The area was liberally "dusted" by dirty brown clouds which were blowing over the county Sunday, discoloring the snow cover. Fresh snow Sunday night and Monday covered the dirt, restoring the clean, fresh appearance of the city.

A drop in temperature will follow the snow today, which is being brought by a small cold front swooping down from Canada. The front will cool moisture-laden air from the south, causing light snow in this area and freezing rain in Iowa and southern Minnesota, according to weather forecasts heard via radio this morning.

Temperatures will fall as low as -15 below Tuesday morning after the front's passing, the KTRF forecast states.

Date	High	Low
Jan. 24	—10	—30
Jan. 30	— 5	—24
Jan. 26	4	—14
Jan. 27	20	— 3

The estimated snow cover in the Thief River Falls area is 8 inches. This figure is arrived at after comparison with areas having an official measurement of 6 inches which is noticeably less than that on the ground here.

Shootin' the Breeze

BY Mack Draper

In scanning through other area newspapers we run across some columns occasionally in which the writers have something really worthwhile, to say.

Such was the column written by W. S. Adams in last week's edition of the Roseau Times-Region. Adams was writing about the proposed Mississippi Parkway and the effect it would have on our Minnesota wilderness area if and when it cuts through the Beltrami Island forest to the Northwest Angle.

"Bill" contends that, while he is generally in favor of the parkway he definitely doesn't want it to spoil any of our wilderness. As a matter of fact, he says the parkway could be built without spoiling the wilderness areas if both the Northwest Angle and the Beltrami Island forest could be bypassed instead of cut through.

Says Adams (in speaking of the areas involved) "If you remove its remoteness and reduce it to the state of a tourist lure, the atmosphere of its natural state will disappear. A wilderness is such but once . . . and once commercialized by man, is gone forever."

He also mentions the paper plates, beer bottles and other trash that would be left by the touring spoilers if the wilderness areas are opened by a superhighway.

Adams stays both areas are accessible— the Angle by boat or plane in summer, the Beltrami Island and by auto over the roads which criss-cross it—but it takes the hardier souls to get there. These are the people who want to see wilderness in its natural state. If you bring in the run-of-the-mill tourist — the tenderfoot from the city — who has no appreciation at all of the great outdoors other than thinking of it as a place to eat lunch and drink a bottle of beer (and leave the remains,) one of our few remaining unspoiled wildernesses will be no more.

He says it is up to our generation to preserve something for the future, such as was done in the case when similar wilderness areas in northeastern Minnesota were closed to all but canoe travel. Adams declared that the Northwest Angle and the Beltrami Island forest are just as unique, in their own way, as the other closed areas in the state, and are equally deserving of preservation from the touring hordes.

We want to say here that we agree 100 per cent with W. S. Adams about this. For one thing, we can't feel that there is any justification in building a superhighway just for tourist use in the first place. We hate to see our few remaining wilderness areas rooted up in the name of "progress." The people who are hardy enough can get to these areas now, if they wish. But let's keep the common tourist with his messy lunches and destructive ways as far away from the wilderness areas as possible!

At the Builders' Exchange banquet Wednesday evening S. J. LaPorte repeatedly called School Superintendent J. A. Sater, "Mr. Slater." At the conclusion of LaPorte's talk, Sater, who was toastmaster at the banquet, stood up and said, "I'd like to make a correction here — My name is Sater, not Slater. They knocked the "sll' out of Sater a long time ago." The pun brought down the house!

While still on the subject of the above banquet we might say the TRF Lions Club Quartet, composed of Wendy Olson, Herb Dill, Dr. Norquist and Bryant Ulseth made a big hit with their audience. The boys showed real professional style — and there wasn't a sour note in the bunch!

We aren't trying to make bookworms out of anyone but there's another piece of reading we'd like to recommend. It's an article in the latest Readers Digest which tells how our American capitalism has delivered all the things that communism and socialism have promised—but can't deliver because of the unworkability of those systems.

A reader says we can't write a column this week without mentioning the weather. Well, she's only partly right — all we're going to say is that these sub-zero temperatures are pauperizing a lot of us. SO LONG!

pearances. The state winner, he stated, will receive a regular salary for a year, in addition to a complete wardrobe and a $500 scholarship.

At Conlon's suggestion, the board voted to change the program for the 1957 Dairy Day to the extent that the evening smorgasboard in Riverside park will be eliminated. Instead, winners of the various awards will receive their prizes immediately following the completion of judging and the queen coronation north of the Auditorium late in the afternoon and just preceding the parade. The final event of the day will be the serving of sandwiches and milk to the participants.

It was pointed out that the awards program will draw a larger audience at the judging site than in the park, and that by eliminating the smorgasbord the youngsters will be able to return home about two hours earlier than in the past.

Another new feature at the 1957 event will be the assembling of the purebred calves awarded by the association during the past seven years, together with their progeny.

The board reelected the present slate of officers, including Stuart McLeod, president; Gil Thompson, Ada, vice president; J. M. Roche, secretary; and Elmer Bratsch, treasurer.

Farm Forum

Be sure to mark Thursday, March 7 on your calendar-that's Farm Forum Day in Thief River Falls. We women have an interest in agricultural policies which the government makes, just as the men have. Since we do 85% of the spending, we may even be more affected, and therefore we should be more interested.

At Farm Forum, you'll hear from three speakers who'll bring you up to date on these policies set up by the government for agriculture. It's an all day meeting, and will surely interest you as a buyer and consumer. The 4-H Leaders Council will be serving the noon meal at a low cost.

Plan to come along with your husband to Farm Forum on March 7-no matter if you live in the country or in town.

Kitchen Tour

Another date that's not so-far away is Wednesday, February 6 our Kitchen and Storage Tour. If you're thinking that you'd like to remodel your kitchen, then plan to attend the tour. If you feel you can't afford to remodel but would like help in re-arranging your kitchen to make it more efficient, then you should plan to come too. Or if kitchens interest you and you'd like to add to your "mental file" of kitchen ideas, why don't you come too?

We'll visit 4 homes—the first three are completed kitchens where the families will tell us how they planned their kitchens. These homes are the Kermit Maidments in Coverleaf Township; A. Edwin Koglins in Kratka Township; and Ed Gevings in Goodridge.

At the fourth home, the Ernest Swansons in Highlanding township, we'll plan the kitchen for the family, using ideas we gained from the other homes, and from our know-how of kitchen arrangement and planning.

Sounds interesting, doesn't it? And you'll have a chance to meet a new specialist too. Dale Hochhalter, Home Improvements Specialist, will be along on the tour too, to give help; answer questions and meet you.

You'll find the tour schedule in today's paper—be sure to clip it out—and be sure to come on the tour on February 6th.

New Bulletins

We've just received some new bulletins on meat that you'll find really helpful, especially for farm families.

"Home Curing of Pork" gives directions for the various methods you can use to cure meat, and includes a discussion on preservatives and smoking of meat too.

"Cutting Pork and Lamb for Home Use has just been revised. It includes diagrams for butchering these two meat animals.

"Cutting the Beef Carcass" has just been revised too. Maybe you can get some new pointers on butchering from this bulletin.

"Sausage Recipes" is not a new bulletin but is one that is closely related to these new ones. I've just mentioned. Recipes for 8 different kinds of sausages are included as well as general directions for making sausages.

These bulletins are yours for the asking at our office-let us know you need them and we'll be glad to send them out to you. See you next week!

LOCAL SAILOR SHARES IN TRAINING EXERCISE

San Diego, Calif.—Conley T. Nygaard, teleman second class, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Nygaard of Route 8, Thief River Falls, Minn., aboard the attack transport USS Bayfield, participated in "Operation Ski-Jump," the year's biggest Pacific naval training exercise which ended January 25.

More than 20,000 Navy men and 30,000 Marines took part in the 18-day maneuver, the sea phase of which ended with an amphibious assult landing at Camp Pendleton, Calif., Jan. 17. Marine troops maneuvered ashore until Jan. 23.

Mrs. Vernon Wold, 432-M3

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Peterson and boys were dinner guests a week ago Sunday at the Mrs. LeRoy Petersons of Angus.

Mrs. Vernon Wold and Sandra accompanied Mrs. Cora Wood and Chester to Grand Forks, N. D. on Wednesday. Mrs. Wood was seeking medical care for her eyes.

Kitchen Tour

Anyone interested in kitchen and storage planning may be due for an interesting day on February 6 by going on the Kitchen Tour. We meet at the Courthouse at 9:00 A. M. Then look over 3 kitchens with the noon meal at the Goodridge school. The fourth kitchen at Ernest Swanson's will be planned then. If you plan on building or just remodeling your old kitchen bring your husband and come along. You'll receive lots of ideas and suggestions along the way.

Former Holt Resident Featured in Life Magazine

"Speaking of pictures", did you know that Mr. Axel Erlandson of Santa Cruz, Calif. who is pictured with his "Tree Circus" in the January 14, 1957 "Life" magazine on pages 16 and 17 was born just a few miles west of Holt, Minnesota?

Mrs. Ruth Wilson returned from Iowa where she visited her son and family the Verne Wilsons.

At one oil refinery, 250,000 barrels of crude oil flow in a continuous stream every day thru a maze of steel pipes and "cracking" towers, to be converted into dozens of finished products.

GROWING WITH YOUR CHILD

Institute of Child Welfare
University of Minnesota

Do you recall the last time you did someone a favor? How were you asked? Recently I drove across the city through rush hour traffic, on an errand for someone else and relatively happy at it, all because of the way I was asked. The friend said, "You're so busy I hate to ask this, but no one else can pick out healthy house plants like you can, and I need some for a party-could you?"

Fully realizing what the flattery had done to my schedule, perhaps it should irk, but I do have rather good luck with plants. My friend knows that, so she capitalized on a real and useful truth about people. They like to be asked the right way, or even if it is telling, they like to be told the right way.

TV's Garry Moore "Kids the daylights" out of people, but does it in the right way-he has friends galore and the more he kids the more they like him. We have all heard of the salesman who could not sell vacuum sweepers. He approached the housewife with, "You wouldn't like to buy a sweeper, would you?"

Now my friend, Garry Moore, and the salesman all help to explain what makes us behave as we do. We behave as we are told to behave when that telling is attoned to us as individuals, with all of our strengths and weaknesses. Psychology can offer many generalizations about human motives, but we still have to apply a personal variable for best results.

What we say means one thing one place and something else another. The same words mean different things at different ages, too. Two college girls were talking about events of the night before. It all seemed purely routine and ordinary, but every so often one or the other would say "You dope" or "You dummy." To them it was just small talk, but the thought occurred that these would be "fighting words" to an eleven year old boy, and perhaps "crying words" to a four year old girl.

Worth Watching

The basketball fans aren't exactly breaking down the hinges of the doors in their anxiety to get into the high school gymnasium to watch the basketball Prowlers perform. They're missing quite a bit of fine entertainment, for the games have had a bit of everything. The Prowlers have lost games that they should have won, and have won games that should have been lost, and they have engaged in a pair of overtime tilts.

The best value for your entertainment dollar these days is high school athletics. Take your choice, football, basketball, hockey, and baseball. The finesse of the professional brand is perhaps missing, but the boys redeem that lack by the all-out efforts of their play.

But to get back to the basketball situation. Not only have the games been exciting, but local fans have an opportunity to watch a player who will undoubtedly rank with the all-time scoring greats at Lincoln high. And, of course, we are referring to lanky junior center Dave Hanson.

Hanson is already the possessor of the school's single-game scoring record, having turned in a 34-point performance against Red Lake Falls last season. As a sophomore, last season, Dave scored 424 points, and to date, in twelve games, the well-coordinated athlete has rolled up a 276 points, scoring at a 23-points per game rate. It's doubtful if Dave can reach Art Johnson's single-season record, set during the 1953-54 season, of 482 points this year. But with his start of 424 points last year, and his 276 points so far this season, it's just about a cinch that Hanson, next season, will set a new three-year scoring mark.

And not only is it worth your while to watch Dave as he softly lobs those right-hand and left-hand hook shots into the rim; but there are a number of boys on the squad, such as Keith Johnson, Dave Rasmussen, Ken DeLap, Phil Hanson, and Jimmy Bennes, who show flashes of basketball brilliance.

And it's worth the while to come early and watch Joe Mrkonich's Prowler 'B' team. He's got several "comers" on his squad. Watch Mickey Hanson and his accuracy with the jump shot, note the touch that is possessed by Gerry Landowski, the dribbling of Harlie Drees, the drive-in power of Lynn Nicholson, and the freshman potential of Bob Pearson.

Entertaining Hockey

The door hinges at the Arena didn't get much of a workout on Sunday afternoon, either, judging by the handful of hockey fans that were in attendance at the Thieves vs. Elmwood Mercurys exhibition game.

The game was deserving of a larger crowd, for it was cleanly played and evenly contested. The Mercurys, a bunch of Winnipeggers that could skate and stickhandle, scored a goal in the final minutes of the third period to break a 4-all tie and defeat the Thieves, 5 to 4.

Oh yes, the referees on Sunday were, at one blue line, Spanky Sullivan, and the other blue line, Jack McGill.

Miscellany

Scott Laird forwards a clipping, complete with photo, taken from the Mankato Daily Free Press, giving the information on the new curling rink that has been installed down there. And a fine looking plant it is, too. The Mankato curlers are utilizing a 4-H building, and they have installed brine pipes so that they can curl on artificial ice. More than 500 interested spectators witnessed the "grand opening".

By the way, do you remember when Scott Laird lived here? And had the last house on north Main Ave., where the J. E. Robinsons now live?—Do the local walleyed pike fishermen, those that are veterans of the Lake of the Woods angling, remember when Cecil Cyrus was a popular resort operator in the Morris Point vicinity? Cecil died tragically one frigid January day about eight or nine years ago, freezing to death after breaking through the ice off Pine Island. Well, the youngest of his four attractive daughters, Janet, is a Phy. Ed teacher on the local high school faculty.—Don't you think that the hockey Prowlers have an excellent defense prospect in freshman Archie Schneider? Archie is a solidly built 185-pound youngster, and by the time he reaches his junior or senior year he should be a Bill Juzda type of blue-liner. He has all the makings of a bruiser, and he has the skating ability to develop into a "rusher", too.

Account of Bus Mishap Clarified

The account in last Thursday's Times concerning the collision between a city cab and a car driven by LeRoy Limesand, Goodridge, at the Great Northern crossing on Main av. S. was slightly in error in indicating the school bus, which was struck by the two cars after they collided, was in motion at the time of the accident.

Floyd Johnson, driver of the school bus involved, said he was stopped at the crossing when the cab and car rammed the rear of his bus. The police log account of the accident did not indicate the bus was stopped at the time.

Kenneth Jones in Leadership Event

Kenneth Jones, one of a group of Lincoln high school students that participated in a citizenship conference Saturday at Moorhead state teachers college, was one of eight finalists selected from the 350 students in attendance to share in a group leadership contest.

Prowlers Rally in 4th Period to Defeat EGF

Trailing by a 49 to 40 score at the end of the third period, and appearing to be a beaten team, coach Al Adams' Prowlers rallied for a 21-point fourth period to defeat the East Grand Forks Green Wave, 61 to 57, in a district conference basketball game played here Friday night.

The Prowlers continue in district conference competition this week, playing the Red Lake Falls Eagles at Red Lake Falls on Tuesday night, and then playing the Warren Ponies on the Lincoln high court on Friday night.

In Friday night's tilt, coach Snooks Sullivan's East Siders, holding a 33 to 31 lead at the half-time intermission, increased that margin to nine points, outscoring the locals by seven points in the third period, entering the final quarter.

The Prowlers, after sprinting away to an early lead in the opening minutes of play, having an 8 to 2 advantage midway into the first period, played erratic basketball and gave the aggressive East Siders an opportunity to even the score at 14-all.

In the second period, the lead changed hands four times, and the game was tied at 29-all with less than a minute to play, Jim Dutt looped in a jump shot, and center Paul Having tipped in a close shot, giving the East Siders a 33 to 29 lead. Ken DeLap trimmed that lead to two points when he dropped a field goal into the west basket.

With the Prowlers' playmaking guard Keith Johnson sitting out the third period, carrying four personals, the locals were outplayed and outpointed by the Green Wave.

Entering the fourth period with a nine-point deficit, coach Adams' club made short work of getting the game back on even terms. Dave Hanson, who turned in a 30-point performance, scored on a lay-up; Keith Johnson followed with a pair of field goals, and when Dave Hanson added a pair of free throws on Perri Blanchette's fifth personal foul, the locals trailed by a point, 49 to 48. Hanson rolled in a lay-up, and then, with 3:54 to play, he notched another field goal. Fouled on the scoring play, Hanson marked up a point by the free throw line, and the Prowlers led by a 53 to 49 score. Ken Jones flipped in a long shot, boosting the locals lead to six points. With 2:15 of the period remaining, East Grand Forks tallied their first points of the quarter when Wayne Goschen scored on a long shot.

The Prowlers held the upper hand throughout the remaining couple of minutes of play.

Dave Hanson, with thirty points, was the game's high scorer. Paul Having, with 16 points, and Blanchette, with 13 points, paced the East Side scorers. Other Prowlers scoring in double figures were Phil Hanson and Keith Johnson, each scoring ten points.

In the preliminary game, the Prowlers 'B' team, getting an 18-point effort from Mickey Hanson and a 15-point production from Bob Pearson, defeated the East Grand Forks 'B' team, 59 to 46.

The forty-seventh annual Red River Valley Winter Shows and Northwest School Farmers' Week will be held in Crookston, Minnesota, February 25 through March 1. The meetings and shows are sponsored jointly by the University of Minnesota through the Northwest School and Experiment Station and numerous cooperating agricultural organizations of the Red River Valley area. This event has an annual attendance of from 14,000 to 17,000 persons.

All daytime educational meetings are free and open to the public; the small admission charge to the shows enables the visitor to attend the night meetings for the price of an all-day ticket.

Judging contests continue to be outstanding educational features of the Winter Shows. Judging contests start Monday, February 25, with livestock judging for 4-H, farmers' club and veterans, and schools of agriculture teams. Crops judging and potato judging contests on the opening day are held for F. F. A. high school teams as well as school of agriculture teams. A 4-H grain clinic and crops judging contest will be held on Wednesday, February 27. The banquet for crops judging and livestock judging contestants will be held on Monday evening at 5:45 o'clock.

Tuesday, February 26, will be Crops Day and Ninth District Horticultural Society Day. An interesting crops program will be held at 1:30 p.m. in the Crookston high school auditorium, and the Horticultural Society (garden club) program will be held at 1:30 p.m. in the First Methodist Church. The banquet for futurity members will be held on Tuesday evening.

On Wednesday, February 27, the Livestock Day program will be held in the Crookston high school auditorium at 1:30 p.m. A special 4-H program will be held on Wednesday, as well as the "smorgasbord" dinner and meeting of livestock breeders.

The theme of the Thursday, February 28, daytime meeting will be "Use of Airplanes in Agriculture." This meeting will be held in the Crookston high school auditorium at 2:00 p.m. The Flying Farmers banquet will be held at 6:00 p.m. on this day, also. On Thursday, at 5:30 p.m., the "recognition" banquet for honored 1957 Valley Farmers and Homemakers will be held.

The evening meetings, to be held in the high school auditorium, will be highlighted with addresses by well-known speakers. On Tuesday evening, February 26, Dr. J. William Buchta, professor of physics and associate dean of the college of science, literature, and the arts, University of Minnesota, will speak. His subject will be "Peacetime Possibilities of Atomic Energy."

George Grim, newspaper columnist, world traveler, and TV and radio news commentator, will speak on Wednesday evening, February 27. His talk "One Man's Russia" will give an account of his trip to Russia in 1956. For the Thursday evening, February 28, meeting, Dr. Joseph L. Knutson, president of Concordia College, Moorhead, will speak on "Education in the United States — Strengths and Weakness."

The livestock sales will be held in the livestock pavilion on Thursday, February 28, and Friday, March 1. The sale on Thursday includes bred ewes and gilts; the Friday cattle sale will include the sale of both beef and dairy cattle.

The 4-H club activities begin on Monday afternoon with a radio speaking contest at 1:45 p.m. The judging of Futurity livestock will be held on Tuesday, and the 4-H dairy demonstration contest will start on Tuesday and continue through Wednesday. 4-H activities will culminate on Wednesday with a general program for 4-H club members during the afternoon.

Red Cross Seeks Staff Personnel

Openings Are Available to College Graduates

Opportunities for career positions with the American Red Cross are available immediately for college-trained women interested in recreation or social work, it was stated today by Miss Beth Bruce, personnel director at the American Red Cross midwestern area office in St. Louis.

The available positions are for recreation workers, case aides in social work, social workers, and also for casework supervisors, Miss Bruce said.

Persons joining the Red Cross staff in these capacities will be working in hospital surroundings closely associated with U. S. military personnel.

Although the initial assignments are in the United States, staff members who wish to accept foreign assignment later will have this opportunity. Even while overseas, they remain closely associated with the U. S. military and are located in a hospitable American community in a foreign country.

She suggested that any women interested contact her at the Midwestern Area Office, 4050 Lindell Blvd., St. Louis 8, Mo., where detailed information and application blanks are available.

One Farmer Alone Can't Accomplish Much, Says Agricultural Engineer

Like many other rural community problems, teamwork often spells the best answer to poor land drainage on Minnesota farms.

Where wet areas cross property lines, one farmer alone couldn't do much drainage work, says Curtis Larson, agricultural engineer at the University of Minnesota. But by cooperating, landowners can work out a system that benefits everyone.

Half of Minnesota's farm land needs draining for good production. While farmers in the state install $12 million worth of tile annually, there's still a lot more drainage work to be done. Larson lists three cooperative ways to do it: informal agreements, mutual drainage systems, and legal ditches.

Informal agreements can be used where just two neighbors are involved. The owners make cost estimates, then divide the cost. To protect his investment in a drainage system, the man who owns the upper land should, with the aid of a lawyer, get an easement from the man who owns the lower land. Then the drainage system will always be open, regardless of who owns the lower farm later on.

Mutual drainage systems are better when there are more than two owners involved but no more than eight. Each landowner must agree to all phases of the project, including his area, proposes a drainage system, and estimates the cost. The group then divides the cost and, with the help of an attorney, makes a final agreement for the project, in writing.

The Minnesota drainage code provides for legal ditches. A majority of land owners of an affected area can file a petition for a legal ditch. If all the affected land is one county, the system would be established by the county board of commissioners. If it's in two or more counties, the project comes under the district court. Either way, the procedure involves appointing an engineer, making a survey, holding hearing and letting a contract. Such a process normally takes about two years. An advantage of the legal ditch is that it provides for area, even though a minority of landowners in the area may object to it.

Minnesota Ranks Near Top in H.S. Driver Education

That Minnesota youths are convinced of the value of high school driver education was evidenced during the 1955-56 class year when 100% of those eligible registered for such courses.

This helped the state win a top-ranking Award of Excellence in the ninth annual National High School Driver Education Award Program sponsored by the Association of Casualty and Surety Companies. Minnesota has one of the best records among the states in the officially authorized program, winning awards in each of the last eight years.

Governor Orville Freeman accepted the award, a bronze plaque, during a Minnesota Safety Council meeting in the St. Paul hotel. He turned the plaque over to Dean Schweickhard, director of the Minnesota Department of Education, complimenting him and his staff for the state's strong driver training program.

Vocational Automobile Mechanics

By Fred Hanson

On the road each day in the United States there are millions of automobiles, trucks, and other fuel fired vehicles in use for commercial, business or pleasure purposes. There are other countless numbers of farm tractors and stationary engines furnishing the power needed for the nation in agriculture and industry. Also, there are great numbers of aircraft, railroad, submarine, power plant, and ocean surface craft engines, all burning liquid fuel, in daily use serving our transportation, heating, lighting, power, and other needs. Add to this list the power uses of our Armed Forces.

This points up the fact that there are millions of gasoline and fuel oil engines of many kinds used in our country which must be operated, serviced, overhauled, and repaired and this tremendous job must be done by a force of men who have learned the many skills required to do the job quickly and well. They must be trained for their work.

The modern automobile is an expensive, complicated machine which has evolved over the years and it involves some 17,000 precision made parts, many of which are adjusted and fitted to the ten thousandth parts of an inch. Most of the laws of physics can be seen in use somewhere in the functioning of an automobile. Pneumatics, mechanics, electronics, and hydroaulics all figure in to make the automobile the useful, indispensible, practical, and efficient tool of man that it is today.

Statistics show that about one person out of seven gainfully employed in the United States makes his living directly or indirectly from the gigantic automobile business. This of course takes into account, aside from the prime manufacturers of the automobiles, the countless suppliers of units, systems, and parts, as well as accessories which the manufacturer buys, filling stations, tire and battery shops, salesmen, parts wholesalers, parts retailers, finance and insurance companies, highway departments, and a long list of many other allied groups, all of whom derive some or all of their income from the all-important automobile and it's owner. It is big business in America and our economic barometer rises or falls with good or bad sales news from Detroit.

Every year many auto mechanics retire, change occupations, or die and that requires a constant replenishment of the supply market in mechanical skills. The vocational auto mechanics departments of the country are supplying a part of these needs and apprenticeship is also assisting. The services of auto mechanics are in demand everywhere in garages, shops, in the Armed Forces, and many other places. A good mechanical background is useful and helpful as in aviation mechanics, truck driving, automobile selling, retailing parts, service station operation, power plant work, and similar occupations.

To learn auto mechanics a student must have a natural flare for mechanics and machinery. He should have a good general education which has included mathematics, science, and English. He must be willing to study books, manuals, bulletins, service sheets, trade magazines, and other printed matter, not only while in school, but constantly there after while employed if he is to keep abreast of the fact developments which are continually occuring in this field. He will need to attend manufacturer's schools, evening schools, and other educational programs to keep posted and up to date in his work.

The would-be auto mechanic must have good mental equipment, be adaptive to changes, be capable of analyzing troubles, have good judgement, be painstaking and reliable, and be able to communicate well with customers and associates.

Since the auto mechanic is dealing with expensive, complex, and fast moving machinery, his judgement and skill are vital to his customers, not only from the financial standpoint, but more importantly, from the safety angle.

The vocational auto mechanics course in the area vocational technical school consists of 2160 hours of shop and related training. A student may enroll as a junior, or if 16 years of age, and carry a half-day of auto mechanics for which he will receive two high school credits toward the diploma. He would also be taking two or more required subjects from the high school program.

He may do the same, as a Senior, under this schedule, and would have 1080 hours of training at graduation. By then taking a post high year of six hours per day of auto mechanics he would finally have the 2160 hours of training which would entitle him to the vocational certificate and the standing as an advanced apprentice in the automotive trade.

Out of school youth, either post graduates or those who failed to complete high school, may also enroll. These people would train for two years, six hours per day. Also, high school students, non-resident, from other secondary schools in the area, if permission is granted from their school districts. Students from country school districts, either resident or non-resident, may enroll without permission from their districts.

All students under 21 years of age may attend the vocational school without tuition charge. Those over that limitation would be required to pay the customary tuition rate.

The automobile mechanic's course covers the fundamentals of overhaul and service of engines, transmissions, rear axles and differentials, starting systems, generator and battery systems, regulators, fuel systems, cooling systems, ignition, lighting, brakes, clutches, drive lines, front axles, lubrication systems, steering, and related systems as heating and air conditioning. Also with this goes standardized procedures for analyzing, testing, trouble shooting, and repair.

The trade analysis of the automobile mechanic's trade shows there are about 126 typical jobs in the service garage, each of which breaks down into operations having one or many steps, and all of which require many separate hand or machine actions to completely perform the job. Many special skills of judgement of hand, eye, or ear, or use of instruments or tools, are encountered in the everyday work of the automobile technician. Many service jobs, it is found, are electrical in nature, and for that reason a strong foundation in the principles of electricity and magnetism is carried out.

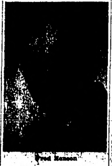
Many devices are utilized in the teaching of auto mechanics including live block motors, cross sectioned parts, mock-ups, actual automotive units such as regulators, generators, carburetors, starters, pumps, switches and relays, for example.

Also, charts, tests, film strips, motion pictures, texts reference books, manuals, parts catalogs, service sheets, job sheets, shop cards, demonstrations, manufacturers specifications, talks and demonstrations from industry, machine and instrument analysis, and others are all used. Several trade journals are among the shop reading materials.

Mechanical aptitude tests are given to applicants for auto mechanics training and the results form a part of the basis for entrance. Students are admitted once a year, in September. Applicants are also interviewed before being accepted.

Because automobiles, trucks, tractors and all types of stationary engines are overhauled in the shop and studied, many boys who plan to farm have taken the course to make them better qualified to handle their many power machines on the farm. Others have trained for shop work and used this foundational training to obtain further mechanical schooling in the Armed Services when called upon to serve. Many former students are employed in shops and garages in numerous states.

Many boys take a natural interest in automotives, and for those who apply themselves well in training, the job opportunities are unlimited and financially very rewarding.



Fred Hanson

Automotive Instructor

Fred Hanson came to the area vocational-technical school to teach automobile mechanics from a position as shop foreman in a local Buick-Cadillac agency. His training and work experience have been almost entirely in the field of internal combustion engines of all types.

He has held many responsible jobs in the automotive trade, having been a shop foreman for several of the larger local shops and also in other cities in the same capacity. He at one time was automotive instructor for the A. L. Bishop Auto School of Fargo, a large private trade school. He has also been a field service representative for a tractor company.

His training has included hundreds of hours of specific factory and other schooling in automotive engines and allied equipment.

He began his services with the area vocational-technical school the fall of 1950 and has been in charge of the automobile department since that date. He is a native Minnesotan, having been born in Northwestern Minnesota, where he acquired his early education.

Rep. Wichterman Asks Bigger Sugar Beet Allotments

A resolution requesting the president, the secretary of agriculture and Congress to increase sugar beet allotments for Minnesota farmers was introduced in the Minnesota House of Representatives Friday.

Rep. Ben Wichetrman of Plummer, chief author, said many farmers in Minnesota desire to grow sugar beets but are not able to because they cannot obtain an allotment.

BELATED THANKS

The retirement of Col. Lloyd E. Lilygren as director of selective service in Minnesota is a reminder that we owe a debt of gratitude to the large number of public spirited citizens who have served over a period of many years in the selective service organization. Draft board service is one of those necessary community chores that is neither pleasant nor popular. The responsibilities that come with a service of this kind are great and too often the only compensation is criticism.

Col. Lilygren retires with an excellent record extending over a period of many years. He has given good leadership to the large number of men and women who have had to deal directly with the military service problems at the local level. We owe to all of them a big backlog of appreciation.

AFRAID OF FREEDOM?

In a special message to the New York legislature last week Governor Harriman recommended several changes in the rent control laws that had been adopted many years ago as a war emergency measure. His talk revives memories of the rent control problems in our own state and how difficult it is to get such regulations off the books once they have become established.

There was strong opposition to the repeal of the rent control law we had here in Minnesota. Big-city legislators gave lip-service support to the pressure-group demands for its continuation but secretly urged their country colleagues to vote for repeal. Rural members were cooperative and so in this state the controls came to an early end.

And none of the dire consequences of repeal that had been predicted occured. Arbitration committees that had been created to settle disputes had little arbitrating to do. The adjustments back to freedom created no hardship.

On the contrary the removal of restraints was an important factor in speeding up a much needed building program. Greatly increased construction brought gradual relief to a housing shortage that might have become critical if the restraints had been continued.

MORE TURKEYS

Production estimates indicate another big increase in the size of the turkey crop. It is predicted that the number of turkeys raised in Minnesota this year will exceed last year's total by 20 per cent. Our state now is crowding California for first place production honors.

Bigger production probably will mean a narrower margin of profit for producers, and for the average producer that margin has not been large. Minnesota seems to have some production advantages in this field however, and the industry is given a better chance for survival here than in areas that are subjected to greater extremes of summer heat.

Tough price competition will determine whether or not this is true. If experience proves that our cooler climate is better suited for turkey production then we probably can get together with the Southerners in an agreement to quit growing cotton up here if they will get out of turkeys.

Maybe you haven't heard about Buttercup. Her full name is Buttercup Dunloggin Homestead Rex, and she achieved fame recently by establishing a new record in her native state of Wisconsin with a production of 29,647 pounds of milk in one year. This queen of Wisconsin's dairyland produced nearly as much milk as would five ordinary cows. It is encouraging to know that we now have many high producing herds in this area and that the average production per cow is steadily increasing.

Our friends have contributed many good ideas recently on how to lose weight. This week's winner suggested that a good way to lose 15 pounds fast is to mount the scale one day carrying a peck of potatoes and the next day without the potatoes. It's nice to have lots of friends.

AN INAUGURAL PRAYER

(New York Times)

It was no political address that President Eisenhower made to his people and to the world after he took the oath if office yesterday. It was an inaugural prayer. He said these were the "deepest prayers" of our people. They are worth remembering.

May we pursue the right — without self-righteousness.

May we know unity—without conformity.

May we grow in strength—without pride of self.

May we, in our dealings with all peoples of the earth, ever speak truth and serve justice.

In humility and reverence we can say God grant that this prayer be answered. These are the things of which we have need. These are the goals to which we aspire. This is the base upon which a firm peace can and must be built.

We must pursue the right, in Lincoln's phrase, "as God gives us to see the right," else we are traitors to ourselves. But this pursuit, also, as the President said, must be in full humility, "without self-righteousness." We must know unity, not compelled and not blind, and not meaningless conformity. We must have strength, but we must be devoid of the false pride that might come from it. And we must serve that justice that is based upon the truth in our dealings with all.

Peace, said the President, is our goal. But peace, he pointed out, must live in the climate of freedom. We must serve that peace through that freedom, and it will not be easy.

In this inaugural address we are only by indirection within the world of policy andp olitics. We have been taken, rather, into the field of philosophy and morals. Here are no questions in expediency. Here are the basic issues of the things by which we live.

The President has spoken for his country and has spoken prayerfully. We join in his prayer, in his inspiration, and in his dedication to pursue that which is right without self-righteousness.

REPORT from the GOVERNOR

by Orville L. Freeman

The Tax Program

When I was in Washington for the inauguration ceremonies last week, I had the opportunity to talk with many other governors about problems that we share along with all other states. Chief among these problems is the increasing need for services in such fields as education, welfare and highways, and the accompanying problem of how to pay for such increased services.

Every state faces these difficult problems. But we in Minnesota have this year an invaluable tool to assist us that is available to no other state. That is the work done by the Governor's tax Study Committee in recommending a thorough overhauling of our tax program.

The Tax Study Committee

There are certain characteristics of this committee and its work that add immeasurably to the value of its report. One is the nature of the committee itself. Its membership consisted of leaders in business and industry, of labor and farm organizations and cooperatives, and of experts in taxation. Many of the individual members are identified with both major political parties, so the committee was genuinely nonpartisan.

The committee raised its own money to finance studies made by well-qualified people. These studies brought together and analyzed more information than we have ever had before about the effects of our taxes and development and expansion in many fields. They present us with real understanding of how the tax burden falls on various groups within our population. They considered the effect that various proposed changes would have.

The Complete Picture

This comprehensive study is what makes the report so valuable. In the past we have known that certain kinds of taxation were inequitable in their effects on certain groups, but we had no over-all study that would enable us to determine which other methods would be better, or how alternative programs might affect other groups. Without such understanding we are unable to propose effective and acceptable remedies for defects we know exist.

Unanimous Recommendations

The knowledge and understanding of the Minnesota tax problem that the Committee achieved brought about a unanimous recommendation of a comprehensive new tax program. This unanimity itself is of great significance in view of the many varying points of view of the members of the committee. Although these men represent many different economic segments of our people, they clearly see the interdependence of all groups, and recognize as their primary goal the development of a greater Minnesota in the interest of all the people.

An Unprecedented Opportunity

As the result of the work of this committee, Minnesota now has an unprecedented opportunity to revise its tax program. I am urging the Legislature to give the Committee's recommendations careful and favorable consideration. I hope the citizens of Minnesota will do likewise.

These tax recommendations are not merely the Governor's recommendations, although I most sincerely urge their adoption. Nor are they merely the program of a political party. I therefore plead that narrow partisan factors be kept out of our consideration of this most important program. I sincerely believe that if we enact this program Minnesota will have the fairest and best program of all the states. I believe we will have laid the best possible foundation for building a greater Minnesota.

4-H'er of the WEEK

Ruth Ann Kassa

The Goodridge Go-Getters 4-H club was just formed this fall. Today, you're going to meet one of the members of this group, Ruth Ann Kassa.

Now in her fourth year of 4-H club work, Ruth Ann has taken such projects as food preservation, clothing, bread baking, and home assistance. This year she is also enrolled in Junior Leadership and Home Furnishings.

Ruth Ann is uncertain about her future but is considering either teaching, secretarial work or nursing.

When asked how 4-H has helped her, Ruth Ann said: "4-H has helped me in many ways. It has given me confidence in public speaking and a lot of experience in cooking, and sewing. It has also helped me to be a good loser in contests and continue to compete even though I don't win first prize. Being a 4-H member, I have learned to get along better with other people, and has given me more self-confidence among a group of people. I have been able to help younger members to be better leaders in the future through Junior Leadership."

QUESTIONS answered for VETERANS

Additional information or assistance on veterans benefits may be obtained by writing or visiting the VA Contact Representatives at the Minot VA Hospital, or the Bismarck or Grand Forks VA offices.

Q—My three-year deadline for starting Korean GI training is only a few weeks away. I am recovering from an operation and I won't be able to enter training in time. Could I possibly file an application before the deadline and actually start my studies afterwards?

A—This would not be possible under the law. The law requires veterans actually to begin GI training within three years from the date of discharge. Filing an application alone is not enough.

Q—I am a Korean veteran and some day I plan to buy a house with a GI loan. Is my deadline the same as for veterans of World War II, in July, 1958?

A—No. The GI deadline for Korea veterans is January 31, 1965. The July 25, 1958, deadline for loans is only for World War II veterans.

Q—I have been receiving disability compensation payments from VA throughout 1956. Must I pay Federal income tax on these payments?

A—No. All VA benefit payments — including disability compensation — are exempt from taxation.

Q—How do I notify my VA district office that I have changed my address? I have a GI insurance policy.

A—On the inside flap of the VA premium payment envelope is space for filling in your new address. Print or type your new address and sign your name. VA will change its records accordingly.

Increase in Strip Cropping—Farmers in Lac Qui Parle soil conservation district strip-cropped more than 1200 acres in 1955—an increase of 400 per cent over 1954, according to Hector Olson of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service. There are now 38 farmers in the district using contour strips. Sixty more hope to adopt the practice soon. Cooperators trying strips for the first time report higher crop yields and better erosion control. One farmer said his bean yield was doubled because more water soaked into the soil.

• • •

Puts Training to Work—Arthur Kempf has already started to practice what he learned in 4-H and FFA work. Arthur, a 16-year-old farm youth in Washington county, had four contour strips laid out in the fall of 1955 on permanent pasture, reports Clifton Halsey, county soil conservation agent. This year, the corn strips averaged more than 100 bushels per acre. Arthur had fertilized the fields according to University soil tests. Last fall, he laid out strips on another part of the farm. Like Arthur, the rest of the Kempf family is conservation- conscious. During recent years, they have planted 4,500 trees on steep hillsides for erosion control and wildlife shelter.

• • •

Conserve Soil Moisture—Contour strips not only stopped erosion, but they also held back water and saved it for when the crops needed it on the Clarence Kontz farm near Canby. He is a cooperator in the Yellow Medicine county soil conservation district. Kontz told Antonio Martini, work unit conservationist for the district, "The corn yielded better than 95 bushels per acre on that strip. I'm sure that's the best corn yield ever produced on that land. The moisture made the difference."

It all depends. In some mines, the bucket swings four or five times with nothing in it but waste overburden—sand, clay, rock—for every time that it loads good iron ore.

Even when you get down to ore-bearing material, as much as three-quarters of the bucketful may still be waste rock. Then, the entire bucketful must have costly treatment such as jigging or heavy media processing to extract the usable ore.

Minnesota's reserves of direct shipping ore are gradually being reduced. This means we must turn more and more to costly processing methods to improve low-grade ores.

Our mining companies have already invested millions of dollars in research and new plants for upgrading ores ... must be encouraged to invest many millions more if we are to maintain our position as a major ore producer. Everyone in Minnesota has a stake in this effort.

RESEARCH AND INVESTMENT CAN KEEP MINNESOTA'S IRON ORE FUTURE BRIGHT

Third of Farm Youth in State in 4-H Work

Nearly a third of Minnesota's rural farm boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 21 are members of 4-H clubs, according to Leonard Harkness, state 4-H club leader at the University of Minnesota.

A total of 47,331 boys and girls were enrolled in 4-H clubs in the state this past year.

In recent years 4-H club work has been expanded to appeal more and more to young people in small towns and suburban areas of the larger cities in the state, as well as to rural farm boys and girls, Harkness said. Slightly more than 5,000 boys and girls from rural non-farm homes—in other words, from small towns—were members this past year. More than 3,000 urban young people were enrolled in 4-H club work. Home economics, farm and home shop, gardening and home yard beautification are among the projects designed to appeal to non-farm as well as farm youth, according to Harkness.

Three counties had 4-H enrollments of more than 1,000 each: Hennepin, Ramsey and North St. Louis. Olmsted and Goodhue counties followed closely with more than 900 young people enrolled. Clay, Swift and Pipestone counties ranked highest in the percentage of members who completed all their projects.

Most popular of all 4-H projects this past year were bread and food preparation, which nearly 19,000 boys and girls carried. More than 13,000 girls were enrolled in the clothing project. A total of nearly 23,000 boys and girls carried one or more of the livestock projects. More than 8,000 members enrolled in junior leadership.

The 4-H clubs are organized groups of young people between the ages of 10 and 21 who engage in community, farming or homemaking activities under the guidance of cooperative extension workers and local volunteer leaders. More than a quarter of a million young people have been members of Minnesota 4-H clubs since 1912.

Tunberg Motor Company to Show New Models Here

Ford's new 1957 truck line, originally not scheduled for production until 1958, will be introduced by the Tunberg Motor Co. and other Ford dealers February 1. Offering nearly [illegible] different models, the Ford line represents the biggest change in the history of the company.

"We have made this great change in our truck line because we believe truck users are on the threshold of vast improvements in delivering goods to the American public," said Robert S. McNamara, Ford Motor Company vice president and Ford Division general manager.

The new Ford truck line features new "Styleside" pickup models with streamlined load area 25 per cent bigger than last year; a new series of six tiltcab transport truck models, a new Ranchero model which combines passenger car styling and comfort with all-around pickup truck utility; greater payload capacities in medium and heavy duty models which combines passenger car styling and comfort with all-around pickup truck utility; greater payload capacities in medium and heavy duty models; and an expanded parcel delivery series.

Engine power throughout the line has been raised an average of 8 per cent to help truck operators stay abreast of modern traffic flow. Hydraulic clutches are a new feature, standard for the whole line at no added cost.

One of the newest "super-tankers" used to transport petroleum products is taller from truck to keel than a 12-story building and longer than two football fields.

Bulk Milk Handling Is Increasing in State

According to a survey conducted last month by J. H. Gholson, extension dairy products specialist at the University of Minnesota, there are now some 5,200 bulk tanks on Minnesota farms, compared to about 2,000 bulk tanks a year earlier.

That represents less than 5 percent of all dairy farms in the state, but farms with bulk tanks produce about 17 percent of the average daily volume of milk marketed in Minnesota.

Gholson surveyed 488 plants—361 that aren't receiving bulk milk and 127 that do handle milk in bulk. Of the 127, 41 were on 100 percent bulk operation. Daily, the 127 plants received almost 3 million pounds of milk in bulk. Of this bulk milk, 2.5 millions pounds was grade A milk, and the rest was sold as manufacturing grade.

All plants in the studies were asked what they felt were biggest advantages and disadvantages to the system.

The most frequently named advantages of bulk handling—regardless of whether the plant at the time—were improved was actually handling bulk milk quality, colder milk and reduced hauling and receiving cost.

Other advantages to the system as listed by operators were less labor for the milk hauler, no more can washing, labor saving on the farm and more accurate sampling.

Cost of the tank and installation on the farm was the most frequently listed disadvantage. Plants already receiving bulk milk said the system resulted in difficulties in grading, quality control and variations in milk weights and samples. But apparently, these difficulties weren't enough to offset the advantages for the plant operators.

Bills Propose Revising State Election Laws

Would Raise Filing Fee for Candidates in State to $200

Bills revising the state's election laws were introduced in both houses of the legislature this week.

Three senate bills would remove presidential electors from the ballot, set up an interim commission to remodify election laws, and require that communities over 5,000 population have a permanent election registration system.

In the house, Rep. Karl Grittner, St. Paul, was principal author of a bill to provide for a consolidated ballot in the presidential primary.

Filing fee for candidates would be raised from $25 to $200, making it more expensive for candidates who file "as a lark."

Rep. D. D. Wozniak, St. Paul, offered a bill in the house calling for regulation of finance companies dealing in auto loans.

The measure provides for maximum interest rates of 7 per cent on new cars, 9 per cent on cars up to three years old, and 12 per cent on autos four years or older.

Other senate bills would allow county boards to appoint county school superintendents, appropriate $150,000 for scholarships for teacher trainees, and provide $200 per student aid for junior colleges.

40 Men Employed on New Washington School Structure

Plastering Commenced Wednesday in West Wing, Inspector Announces

Forty to 45 men have been regularly employed this winter on the Washington school construction project, it was announced this week by Donald S. Jones, inspector for the architectural firm of Swanson & Wegleitner, Minneapolis.

Jones stated that masonry work and installation of glass are now about 75 per cent completed, and that the roof has been insulated and is watertight. The permanent heating plant is now in use, with 75 per cent of the units being utilized.

Plastering was scheduled to get under way Wednesday in the west wing of the building, where the lathing has been completed, and the finish floor is now about completed in that part of the building.

Work has been held up on the Lincoln high school-area vocational school addition due to the failure to receive some of the necessary steelwork, but, said Jones, this is scheduled to arrive before March 1, when work will be resumed. In the meantime, he added, work of remodeling the electrical system in the present Lincoln building is nearly finished.

On Kitchen Tour

MISS DATA HOCHHALTER
University home improvement specialist, who will offer suggestions on home remodeling as a feature of the tour Wednesday, February 6, on which county residents will inspect three recently remodeled kitchens, and share in planning work on a fourth.

Dr. Gordon Mork, president of the Minnesota Education association and professor of education at the University of Minnesota, addressed 75 persons, including members of the Lions club and their guests, at the club's luncheon meeting Wednesday noon in the Elks club rooms.

Introduced by Supt. J. A. Sater, Dr. Mork discussed current developments in the professionalization of teaching in the state and nation. The change, he stated, has been accelerated since World War II, and teaching is becoming a career instead of a stop-gap expedient.

He said the state association now has a membership of 24,000 teachers, and that they have set high standards for the profession. The vast majority, he added, support the professional concept, and fewer than ten per cent of the nation's teachers are affiliated with the AFL-CIO union.

In closing, Dr. Mork said that the profession should be dedicated to service to the public, the welfare of the teacher, a high code of ethics, high educational standards for teachers and good public relations.

Dr. Mork met with the Thief River Falls school faculty at 4 p.m. Wednesday, and in the evening addressed a meeting of the Lake Agassiz Schoolmasters club in Red Lake Falls.

Dr. Starekow Talks to Northwestern Hospital Auxiliary

Surgeon Cites Advances in Medical Science at Meeting Monday Evening

Advances in medical science were reviewed by Dr. M. D. Starekow Monday evening at the January meeting of the Northwestern Hospital Auxiliary. The introduction of antibiotics, new anaesthesia, blood replacement and improved surgical equipment has made it possible for the present-day surgeon to save many lives which even fifteen years ago would have been impossible, and the average hospital stay today is considerably shorter than it was formerly. Medicine has probably benefitted more from the use of antibiotics than surgery and has made possible many cures without sending the patient to the hospital, said Dr. Starekow.

A conducted tour of the surgery department proved interesting. The uses of the various rooms—the emergency room, the minor and major surgery rooms and the recovery room—were explained by Dr. Starekow and Mrs. Shirley Osborne, operating room supervisor. The importance of having up-to-date equipment, which is usually costly, can mean the ability to save a life and thus justifies its place in the hospital even though it may be used very infrequently.

After a question and answer period, a short business meeting was held and lunch was served by the student practical nurses under the supervision of Miss Mary McLaughlin.

Thorstein Walseth, Mrs. Al Brink, Mrs. Joe St. Michel, Mrs. Oscar Gunstad and Mrs. Vern Lindquist from St. Hilaire were visitors.

The next meeting will be February 25th at 2:00 p.m. in the Northwestern Hospital dining room.

Problems of Schools Topic of Discussion

Over 200 Parents at Meeting Monday; Next Session Feb. 5

Over 200 parents and more than 40 teachers participated in the second lay-teacher discussion meeting between elementary and high school teachers and parents of local school children, at Lincoln high school Monday.

Following a short general meeting, the parents and teachers, who were divided into 14 groups in the high school division and a like number of discussion groups in the elementary school division, held separate discussions in several classrooms.

Of the several elementary school discussion groups, only two met Monday, the others having set their meetings at a different time, according to J. A. Sater, school superintendent.

The high school groups discussed such topics as: School activities, grading and promotion policies, curriculum changes, extension of the school day, homogeneous grouping, school law, school finance, testing, to mention a few.

Although no definite recommendations will be made by the groups until their final meeting, there seemed to be agreement on the following:

1. The present grading system used in the high school is satisfactory, but should include grades for conduct and effort.
2. A remedial reading specialist ought to be added to the faculty to help both the elementary and secondary teachers to identify and remedy the difficulties of the slow reader.
3. The guidance program offered by the high school, particularly in counseling students to prepare a high school course, is a splendid practice.
4. The encouragement of more home study on the part of pupils and the curtailment of school activities scheduled after school hours.
5. The addition of art, printing or journalism, additional foreign languages, advanced home economics and woodworking to the high school curriculum.

Mrs. H. G. Halverson Heads Pennington Easter Seal Group

To Serve Again in 1957; Annual Appeal Slated to Commence March 15

Mrs. Herbert G. Halverson has been named chairman of the 1957 Pennington County Easter Seal committee.

The announcement was made by W. B. Schoenbohm, executive directors of the Minnesota Society for Crippled Children and Adults (the Easter Seal Society.)

"Easter Seal funds make possible many services for Minnesota's crippled children and adults," Schoenbohm said. "Last year for instance, 140,000 therapy treatments were given at five different rehabilitation centers. More than 600 persons were furnished with special equipment such as wheelchairs, hospital beds, walkers and other items.

"Camp Courage, the Easter Seal camp for crippled children, served 405 handicapped persons last summer, a big increase over the 301 attending in 1955," he said. "Yet there is more need to help the handicapped. Additional therapy services are needed, and the camping program will have to be expanded to meet the needs. Only with increased support this year will we be able to provide this aid."

Schoenbohm said the Easter Seal appeal will open March 15 and will run until April 21.

At a pretty candlelight ceremony Sunday evening, January 20, in the First Lutheran church, nuptial vows were spoken by Miss Elody Gayle Kulseth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Kulseth of this city, and Amorin Olson also of this city. The Rev. Marvin O. Carlson performed the double ring ceremony in the presence of approximately 125 guests. The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a gown of chantilly lace and nylon tulle over bridal satin. The lace bodice featured a scallop-edged sabrina neckline, and long tapered sleeves which formed points over the wrists. The skirt was fashioned of chantilly lace in an apron effect appliqued to the bouffant tulle skirt over bridal satin which extended into a sweeping chapel-length train.

She wore a headpiece of rose-point lace trimmed with tiny pearls and sequins and pleated tulle rosettes. Her bouquet was of pink sweetheart roses and white carnations set into an arrangement of white feathered carnations and blue net with pink ribbon streamers which she carried on a white Bible, gift from her sister.

Miss Shirley Kulseth of this city served as her sister's maid of honor. She wore a gown of blue nylon net over taffeta with a Rochelle lace jacket. The circular skirt was fashioned with many tiers of net over taffeta. Her headpiece was of matching blue lace embroidered with sequins and pearls. She carried a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses and pink and white carnations on a circle doily with blue net and pink ribbon streamers.

"As a result of family sharing and planning," Mr. Martin said, "you build a unified family because the family members agree. You do not have the family agreeing only because of the authority of the head of the family."

Report on Viking News of the Week

By Mrs. Orville Peters, Phone 4F20

Honored At Farewell Party

Mr. and Mrs. Verny Evenson were honored at a farewell party Saturday evening. It was held in the school auditorium. Carl Krohn ushered the honored couple in. He also acted as master of ceremonies at the informal program which began with the invocation by the Rev. T. J. Welzin. He chose Psalm 1 as a reference, especially for them to take with them. Glen Halvorson sang as a solo, "Melody of Love," he was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Arne Samuelson. Miss Amy Hjelle read two poems the first a humorous one entitled "The Last Purse," the other, a serious one on "Friendship." John Lager gave a few remarks; He stated that it had been 4 years ago, last September since Mr. Evenson came to Viking to operate the creamery. He also reminisced how he hesitated recomending Mr. Evenson to this position, he, being another bachelor coming to this bachelor town of Viking. He then commented how Mr. Evenson had set an example by getting married about 2 years after coming here. He concluded by saying the local people should continue to support the creamery, and the new creamery operator, Roy Halvorson, who is well known here. A former Viking man, Mr. Halvorson is coming now from Erskine where he has been assistant creamery operator for some time.

Oscar Gustofson then rendered an accordian solo, followed by a talk by Art Stenberg. He commented on the many friends the Evensons had made in their stay here. He highly praised Mr. Evenson as a creamery operator. Mr. Evenson will now be manager of the creamery at McIntosh, and he wished Mr. and Mrs. Halverson well in their new place.

Carl Krohn made a few remarks and presented the Evensons with a gift from the creamery, also a gift of money from friends in the community.

Mrs. Evenson gave a very interesting account of how she came to Viking from time to time to audit the creamery books. The first time she recalled coming here she said that Carl Gustofson, Hartvig Engen, Oscar Larson and the late Alfred Forslund, served on the creamery board of directors. She also stated that she always had a warm spot in her heart for Viking especially so as it was here she first met her husband. She then expressed her sincere thanks and appreciation for all the kindness toward them, for the pleasant evening and the gifts they received. Mr. Evenson also expressed his thanks and appreciation especially for all the help they received during Mr. Evenson's illness last year. He urged the people to continue working together for a good creamery as well as a good community. He too thanked for gifts and for a delightful evening.

Our former creamery operator, Henry Anderson, who so capably served as creamery operator here for 32 years was also presented with a gift from the creamery for his many years of faithful services. He has assisted from time to time during the last couple years. He expressed his appreciation for the gift.

Several accordion selections were rendered by Oscar Gustofson after which a lunch was served. Out of town folk who attended were, Mr. and Mrs. John Langer, Mr. and Mrs. Art Stenberg of Thief River Falls.

Sunday afternoon visitors at the Melvin Johnson home were Mrs. Steward Sethre and children and Mrs. Floyd Bakke of Newfolden and Mrs. Hjalmer Stokke.

Mercury Drops to 33 Below Tuesday

Low Temperatures Are Due to Continue in Area

Weather in northern Minnesota is a rather humdrum story this week, as one could expect in late January. The only outstanding news in this department is the 33-below-zero registered Tuesday morning, which was the coldest day of the season so far.

A part of the temperature story is on the plus side however—above zero readings were registered Monday with 11 and Wednesday with 8 above. All other temperatures were on the low side of the goose egg. The Monday and Thursday lows were 25 below and the Wednesday low was 18 below. The Tuesday high was a chilly minus 3. Only a trace of precipitation fell during the period.

The KTRF forecast is for a few snow flurries Thursday with occasional snow Thursday night and Friday. Cold weather will continue in the area, although not so cold as some days previously.

The high forecast is 10 to 15 above Thursday and lows Thursday night are expected to range from 5 above to 5 below zero. Winds will be light variable today, becoming southeasterly 10 to 20 m.p.h. Thursday night and Friday.

The week-end weather outlook makes the chances good for the groundhog to see his shadow Saturday, which is Groundhog day. In this neck of the North Woods, however, another six weeks of winter after Feb. 2 is generally taken for granted. As a matter of fact, the groundhog would just be wasting his time to show up at all—if there are any groundhogs in these parts!

Goodridge Plans Training for Gun Safety Teachers

Anyone interested in instructing in these courses is asked to contact David M. Brown, superintendent of schools at Goodridge.

4-H Club News

Smiley 4-H Club

Due to the cold weather attendance was small at the regular meeting of the Smiley 4-H club meeting on January 8. The 14 members present enjoyed the indoor hockey game made at the boy's project meetings. During the business meeting it was decided that the club buy material for a curtain for the stage window. New program books were discussed and each junior leader was given a few booklets to copy. Gloria Phillip reported on the caroling held on December 21, while Nancy Newton reported on the project meeting the girls attended at the Phillip home.

Nelda Lea Nelson presented the program which included group singing with Gloria Phillip at the piano. Marlys Mostrum demonstrated how to make a French omelet, and Sharon Nelson showed how to make blueberry muffins with a quick mix. Orrin Helgeland played a trumpet solo. Teddy Koropatnicki gave a project talk on how to make a hockey game, while Orrin Helgeland and Johnny Konickson told how the game was played. Lunch was served by the Mostrum and Nelson families—

Gov. Freeman Seeking Highway Safety Laws

"Death on Minnesota highways is horrible and incomprehensible," Governor Orville L. Freeman told the Minnesota legislature today in a detailed message on highway safety. "We all should be blamed for allowing conditions to continue where deaths can occur," he said.

Taking heed of the rising toll of traffic fatalities which reached 632 in Minnesota last year, the Governor asked for stronger enforcement as an "addition to our arsenal of weapons against needless slaughter on the highways." He pointed out that in 1955, Minnesota had 4.8 traffic fatalities for every 100 million vehicle miles traveled; but that this rate had worsened to 5.4 (a 12% increase) for 1956.

Governor Freeman emphasized that no single one of his recommendations would be a final solution to the traffice fatality problem, but would control faulty drivers who are blamed for almost all accidents. Among his recommendations were:

An implied consent chemical test law for drinking drivers.

Amending arrest laws to permit citations without warrants.

The proposals were also included in a comprehensive report prepared by the motor vehicle and traffic law study committee the Governor had appointed last August within the Minnesota Safety Council. The committee's report, presented to the Governor in December, compared Minnesota's traffic regulation with a national standard uniform traffic code.

1. A true analysis of the frequency of the drinking driver in the traffic accident picture could not be obtained without adequate testing; while authorities generally agree that from 40 to 60 per cent of all drivers involved in fatal crashes had been drinking. He asked for legislation to permit enforcement officers to determine the degree of intoxication from specimens obtained for chemical analysis.

2. That under Minnesota laws of arrest, an officer, who would arrest a hit-and-run driver without a warrant, could be sued for "false arrest." To permit immediate enforcement action to be taken against drivers whose violations contribute to or cause accidents, traffic laws regarding procedures upon arrest in traffic cases should be amended to permit an officer, after personal investigation at the scene and upon reasonable and probable cause, to issue a citation for a misdemeanor without first obtaining a warrant.

3. That a substantial increase in the size of the Highway Patrol is needed for adequate protection and enforcement on the 12,000 miles of the state's trunk highways. The Minnesota patrol was found below its needs according to such criteria as length of highways, miles traveled and number of fatalities. Highway Patrol activities go beyond "cruising" to include inforcing axel load restrictions 24 hours a day in the spring at scale houses; continuing brake, light and equipment checks, plus inspection of testing stations and school buses; emergency transportation of blood; and continuing driver improvement program.

4. That a numer of changes are necessary to bring Minnesota's driver licensing laws into conformity with the uniform traffic code, which would also strengthen this state's statutes. Emphasis was given to mandatory suspension of driver license for 90 days or more for repeated violations calling for revocation which, ". . . is avoided by having licenses reissued upon compliance with the Safety Responsibility Act." He also called for extending the period of suspensions for like periods for those convicted of driving after suspension. Stronger parent or guardian control over minors would be provided for by having an application for driver license by a minor signed or verified by a responsible adult who would assume certain obligations; with the license withdrawn upon written request of the adult. Present statutes forbid a person to rent a motor vehicle to an unlicensed driver. Extending this section would make it a violation for any person to knowingly permit his unlicensed child or ward to drive or to permit a vehicle owned by him to be driven by any other unlicensed person.

5. That private driver education schools for out-of-school youths and adults are not required to maintain minimum standards of personnel, equipment or instruction. Including these schools within the licensing program of other trade schools would offer a protection to the tuition-paying student through supervision by the Department of Education.

6. That while the study committee reaffirmed an earlier endorsement of the principle of periodic motor vehicle inspection, the existing system of licensed and inspected privately-owned light and brake stations in Minnesota would be the nucleus of compulsory inspection for certain mechanical defects. Wide-spread garages and service stations under supervision would eliminate the need for extensive capital investments in land, buildings and equipment; while making use of presently employed trained mechanics.

The Governor's recommendations will be presented to the legislature in the form of "department bills" prepared by staff members of the study committee who had been serving in advisory capacities. Almost all will strengthen the "Back The Attack on Traffic Accidents" campaign of the Safety Division of the Minnesota Highway Department which is headed by Harry A. Sieben, recently appointed director.

AIRPORT NEWS

A very cold day was the 22nd of January, but evidently Glen Brynsvold of Grand Forks didn't mind for he went on a cross-country and stopped here to gas up his Champ.

The 23rd was a bit milder and apparently a good day to hunt fox as a party of four came in to put on gas, eat and plan their next route. They were E. C. McDunn and Ralph Mathew Jr. of Barnesville, flying a Champ; Eugene D. Engel, Henderson, and Don Barth of Sabin, Minnesota in a PA-18. They reported fair hunting.

The morning of the 24th brought us temperatures of 35 degrees below zero, and so a fairly quiet day followed.

The aviation safety inspector, Arnold Reed, of Fargo drove over to the municipal airport, the 25th to complete some paper work for a sprayer overhauled by the mechanic.

Nordie Swenson and Don Parker of Karlstad stopped in on their return trip from Bismarck, the 25th, in the Ercoupe. They were down representing the Ford Garage at a meeting in Bismarck.

The same day Martin Rantanen had a charter trip to Bismarck, his passenger was Erling Torgeson. They made the return trip that evening in the Super Cub.

Saturday, the 26th, the fox hunters were back again and this time on route to Baudette. They were Don Barth, Sabin, and Kenneth Nicklay, Loren Miller, Ralph Mathew Jr., all from Barnesville, their transportation being a Champ and the PA18.

Sunday was another windy day and not much traffic. Monday didn't prove to be any better weather-wise; however, the fox hunters landed here on their return to Barnesville from Baudette, and Henry Peterson Jr. motored over from Karlstad on Monday to help out a little on his PA-11.

BY Mack Draper

Perhaps by the time this goes to press we'll have had a new low temperature for the winter. But, as of right now the 33 below recorded here Tuesday morning stands as the coldest reading to date. We don't like to say much about weather—especially this kind—but it isn't just anybody in the country who is privileged to enjoy our winters!

Take to the tall timber boys! The gals from around the county are going to meet at the courthouse 9 a.m. Wed., Feb. 6, for a tour of some newly-remodeled kitchens in the county. In the morning they're going to look over the kitchens in the Kermit Maldment and A. E. Koglin farm homes near Mavie, after which the noon meal will be taken at Goodridge school.

At 1 p.m. the girls and Marge Olson will tour the Ed Geving kitchen—then comes the piece de resistance. At 2 p.m. they're going to do some kitchen planning at the Ernest Swanson home.

Which means one thing . . . if your wife starts dropping hints, etc., about the need for a snazzy modern, functional kitchen you may as well drop any plans you may have made for a new gun, outboard motor, etc., until that new kitchen is installed.

In all seriousness tho, here's hoping the gals have a nice day for the tour and have a good turnout.

A publication we'd highly recommend is the, "Conservation Volunteer", a publication of the Minnesota Department of Conservation. The January-Februray edition, especially, is interesting in that it tells just what is happening to the nation's water supply.

In short, the Conservation Volunteer tells us that, unless we change our wasteful ways, our country stands in danger of becoming a vast desert in future years. Already there is a very serious shortage of water in various parts of the country.

It may seem almost unbelievable—but we here in Minnesota are faced with the same problem, despite the many drainage ditches necessary in our part of the state. Really, the long-range outlook is alarming and the sooner a change is made the better, according to the Volunteer.

It all backs up what we've said before—new factories and other facets of the 20th century don't necessarily mean we're making progress. Could be we're just hastening the day when we find ourselves living in a nation of poverty because we've exploited our natural resources until there are none left.

Which brings home to us the fact that far too many politicans can't see a bit farther ahead than the next election. If they could they'd be doing more about our dwindling natural resources, instead of yielding to pressures to exploit our resources even more.

• • •

We don't mean to editorialize. However, we don't believe the fact we're wasting our resources at an awful rate is brought home to us often or emphatically enough. Better we should use foresight now than discover our mistakes through hindsight after it's too late!

• • •

We'd like to take this time to pass on a word of praise for our mail carriers. As you know they go out in all but the most impassable weather to deliver their loads. They have to put up with extreme cold, risk dogbite and face other hazards on their route through the city. But, the mail goes through!

There's one way we can all make the postman's lot a little easier. . .and that is, by shoveling our sidewalks clean after each snowfall. Not only do snow-covered sidewalks make the going tougher, but add the hazard of a bad fall to the lot of the boys with the full pouches. The exercise you get while shoveling will do you good, incidentally.

And that is that. . . .we've stalled about going out on the streets long enough. So long!

School Board to Go to Convention

Five of the six members of the Thief River Falls board of education and Supt. J. A. Sater are planning to attend the annual convention of the Minnesota School Board association in the St. Paul Auditorium February 5, 6 and 7. The local delegation will include Dr. M. D. Starekow, Elmer Bratsch, Arnold Pearson, Wm. Thompson and R. S. Eldevik.

The man who cheapens himself in public is sure to be marked down by his neighbors.

Kermit Eastman, elementary school director, reported a wide variety of subjects was discussed by parents and teachers in the elementary school discussion groups several of which met at different times during the past week.

The discussions ranged from topics such as the starting time and mental capabilities of children just entering kindergarten to the question of whether junior high school students should attend teenage dances. The latter topic drew a negative opinion from those discussing the question.

On the starting age kindergarten parents recommended that children be required to have passed their 5th birthday as the entrance age requirement, as of Sept. 1, 1958.

Other topics discussed were grouping according to ability, marking systems, report cards, problem children, noon hour, lunch and recess problems and discipline.

Older marking systems—A, B, C., etc.—remained in favor with the parents according to conclusions reached by at least one of the discussion groups. One group also voiced the opinion that discipline of children should be up to the organization involved as occasion demands it.

Supt. Sater was highly gratified at the increased turnout to both the high school and elementary meetings and said he expected attendance to increase as future meetings are held.

Paul Anderson, high school director, stated, "Parent participation in the discussion of school problems creates a better public understanding of our school; teacher participation brings about a changed attitude which promotes improvement." His statement was echoed by Eastman, who is equally enthusiastic over results achieved to date.

The next meeting of the groups will be held on Tuesday, February 5th as a part of a meeting of the Lincoln P. T. A. At this meeting the groups will discuss the "Minnesota Teen-Age Code." This code is a working agreement for teen-agers and parents and has already been adopted with some modifications in several communities. "It should be emphasized," Superintendent Sater said, "that all parents are invited to attend this and future lay-teacher discussion groups even though they were not in attendance at the earlier meetings."

Pennington county has been host to an IFYE from Jordan. Last summer, Abdulrahim Ibrahim spent seven weeks here, living with the Charles Svendsgaards at Mavie and with the Orlando Chervestads in Deer Park township.

In addition, several returned IFYE's have spoken of their trips to various groups in the county. Last winter, Dick Sample gave an account of Ecuador, while Dick Angus spoke this fall to the 4-H achievement banquet on his trip to Italy.

Because of these contacts Pennington county 4-H'ers have had with the IFYE program, they have a knolwedge of the success of the program promoting world understanding. Their radio speeches will show this knowledge.

The winner of the county contest will take part in the district event which will be held February 23 at Crookston. The winners of the district contest then compete in the state contest on March 8 and 9. Last year the state winner was Janice Johnson of Roseau county.

The Minnesota Jewish Council cooperates with the Minnesota agricultural extension service in sponsoring this citizenship activity for 4-H club members. They award $5.00 to County Champions and $15.00 to the district winner.

The state champion and reserve champion each receive an award for his community as well as a cash award. The champion will receive $50 to purchase books for a high school or city library, as well as $200 in cash. The reserve champion will receive $25 for library book purchase and $100 in cash.

The public is invited to attend the county contest Saturday, Miss Olsen added.

Testers Needed

A Dairy Herd Improvement association supervisors training school is to be held at the University of Minnesota on April 1 to the 6. It is designed to provide training for supervisory of dairy herd improvement associations. The course will cover such subjects as weighing, sampling and testing of milk, keeping records, figuring cost of feed and value of product as related to cost of production, breeding and dairy herd improvement, lactation and breeding records, fundamentals of dairy feeding, herd management and the relationship of dairy herd improvement association work to other agencies. There are numerous openings in Minnesota for men who like dairy work.

Wages average $200.00 per month and above depending upon the size and number of herds tested and rates members pay for the service. Supervisors furnish their own transportation from farm to farm but get meals and lodging at the farm. Work appeals to young men and women, older men and persons physically handicapped for farm and industrial occupations. To qualify for the position of a supervisor, a high school or agricultural school education is preferred but not required. Also one should have some farm or dairy experience, be able to keep accurate records, like to live in rural communities, and work well with farm people.

There are opening for DHIA supervisors in many counties of the state. These have good promise of permanence and afford valuable experience to persons interested in work closely associated with dairying. Anyone completing a week's training and demonstrating ability to do the work required may expect to be placed in a position within a reasonable period of time. In the meantime call on your local county agent for an interview concerning DHIA if you have not already had this opportunity. This is important.

Pole Buildings

Pole buildings are cheap to build and they'll last a long time. A pole structure will last 30 years or more if the poles are treated. Make sure such pole is treated with at least 8 pounds of creosote or pentachlorophenol solution.

Poles need to be set at least 5 feet in the ground on firm soil. In sand, it's better to pour about four inches of concrete in the bottom of the hole and let it set as a foundation before setting the pole.

Make the holes at least 6-8 inches bigger in diameter than the butt of the pole. That will make tamping easier. Leave the poles 2 or 3 feet longer than needed, then cut the excess length off after the rafters are in place. Poles more than 16 feet long need a top diameter of 5 or 6 inches.

A well-constructed pole building can be used for housing dairy cattle or other livestock, for crop storage or as a machine shed.

Electric Water Heaters

Warm water can be provided for your cattle at a cost for electricity of less than $0.50 for each waterer per year. In one test a total of 4,000 kilowatt hours has been used by the two waterers during the four years they have been on test. Figuring electricity at a cost of 2.75 cents per KWH the cost per year is less than $0.50.

Farmers who have used these heaters are well pleased with the automatic electric waterer. It saves labor and also the cost is low in using this electric equipment. Even more important from a production standpoint is the fact that the cattle always have an ample supply of warm, fresh water.

Automatic electric waterers are available from several manufacturers. Plans for installing these cups are contained in USDA Leaflet 205, "Automatic Livestock Waterers" which is available at the extension office.

The Legislature

By Orlin Folwick

St. Paul—Among the other proposed solutions for Minnesota's tax problem, the sales tax is rearing its controversial head in the state legislature, and before the 1957 session is over, may have become a major factor in decisions on a tax policy for the next two years and those beyond.

Legislators studying the governor's interim tax study commission report submitted by Chairman T. Cameron Thomson of Minneapolis and the governor's budget message, frankly admit they are going to study hard and look far into the future to develop a program that isn't going to mean simply more and more taxes as the years roll by.

Report Well Received

Much admiration for the Thomson report has been expressed. Legislators are in agreement that to save the economy of the state, the proposals in the report have potentialities. For instance, they agree that a lot of the taxes on industry must be relieved if industrial expansion is going to come to Minnesota. The report proposes elimination of the personal property tax on manufacturers' inventories, and a reduction from the present 33⅓ per cent rate on wholesale and retail inventories to 20 per cent. Both would be stimulants to business and industrial activity.

Senator Donald O. Wright of Minneapolis, chairman of the senate tax committee, long an advocate of such reductions, said the legislature will have to take such action if any industrial expansion is to take place.

Farmers to Benefit

The Thompson report has drawn favorable comment on the proposal to eliminate the personal property tax on farm inventories and livestock, which legislators from rural areas say will mean much to the farmers. The rates now range from 10 to 20 per cent on these items.

These items, together with the complete elimination of the current 25 per cent rate on household goods, should, say the legislators, give much relief to the state's taxpayers. The Thomson report estimates that the savings to taxpayers would total some $24,000,000 doldiars which, of course, means a loss in revenues to the local tax officials.

How To Do It?

Where differences of opinion develop between legislators and the report is in the manner of replacing these revenues. The local governments — cities, villages, school districts and other local units cannot be deprived of these revenues because their operations are geared to the collection of these taxes. The report estimates that $21,000,000 a year would have to be replaced to the local governments.

The suggestion in the Thomson report for replacement is to retain the current surtaxes on the state income tax. There are two—one enacted in 1949 for the World War II bonus and the other in 1955 as a supplement to the general revenue fund. They total 10 per cent. It also suggests retaining the present surtax on corpor*ation income plus a one-cent in*crease, and finally, to take the receipts from the telephone companies' gross earnings tax out of the general revenue fund and put them in a new fund to be called "the personal property tax replacement account."

An estimated $18,000,000 will come from these sources, leaving approximately $3,000,000 to be drawn from the state general revenue fund.

After 1959 what?

While indications are that revenues estimated in the Thomson report and the governor's message would keep the state budget in balance to June 30, 1959, many legislators are wondering what is going to happen after that.

The trend in state financing during the last 10 years has been a 10 per cent increase per biennium. From a $97,000,000 appropriation in 1947, the proposal for 1957 is nearly $100,000,000 more. Legislators see the possibility of a ten to twenty million dollar increase in the 1959 budget and are fearful of the implications.

To meet such requirements then, some or all of the taxes to be eliminated in this session might have to restored. Taxes on property may have to rise noticeably if both state, local government and education needs are to be met.

May Talk Sales Tax

Hence, there is quiet talk in legislative huddles on the sales tax. There is agreement that it will have to come in a legislative session soon. Some suggest taking the bull by the horns now and debating a sales tax plan that could run all the way from one to three per cent, with food and medical expenses exempt. Revenues from a sales tax could provide greater reductions in local government taxes, they say, to provide relief for the factory, commercial establishment, farmer and home owner.

Experience in the Dakotas is cited as an example of what can be accomplished in Minnesota. Both Dakotas, not so long ago faced with perplexing financial problems, have put themselves on a good footing and legislators in those states think rates can be reduced.

So far, no individual or group of legislators has been willing to come forth publicly with the proposal. Opposition from Governor Freeman and other groups are a stumbling block but even they, say some legislators, are going to have to withdraw their objections when the critical period arrives.

ADGER . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Kompellen of Thief River Falls were Sunday afternoon visitors and supper guests at the home of Mrs. Kompellen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Moe.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Nelson and Danny and Mrs. Lloyd Nelson and Jeanette were Saturday evening visitors at the Wm. Rupprecht home of rural Thief River Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Nabben and Corrine visited with Mrs. Clara Runnestrand and Mrs. H. P. Nabben who are patients at the Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls Sunday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. George Green of Grafton, and Mr. and Mrs. Manvel Moe also came to visit with Mrs. Nabben the same afternoon.

RANDEN . .

By Mrs. Ezra Davy

Ezra Davy was a business caller in Roseau on Wednesday when he had an x-ray taken of his foot. The doctor found he had a broken bone in the instep resulting from a tree falling on it on Monday, while in the pulp woods.

Harry Dahl Injured Cutting Pulp Wood

Another pulp wood accident happened this week when a tree fell on Harry Dahl, splintering his left arm at the elbow and bruising his legs. He was admitted to the hospital in Roseau for further examination and it was reported he would have to stay there for at least a week.

Ezra Davy took Mrs. L. H. Davy to the doctor for a checkup on Thursday. They were accompanied by Harold Bird of Skime.

Rug Party

A group of ladies met at the Ordean Anderson home last Thursday for a rug party. The time was spent in pleasant talk and rug making. Those present besides the hostess were, Mrs. Gilmer Anderson, Mrs. Emmett Finley, Margaret Tengesdahl and Mrs. Erling Gilthvedt.

Skime Looses to Ross

The Skime [illegible] school children went to Ross on Thursday for a hockey game. It was rather a disappointment to them however, for the boys team lost 22-0 and the girls team lost 22-0. The children are willing and eager to play and win, but so far have not had the coaching they need. Give them credit for their determination. With the spunk they have it wouldn't take much coaching to have a strong team for a winning team. We have to as all the players are united and are regular sportsmen.

Prowler Quint Noses out RLF in Thriller; Play Warren Friday

With 1:32 to play in the fourth quarter, the score 45 to 44 in favor of Red Lake Falls, the Eagles' high-scoring forward, Chuck Kankel, committed his fifth personal foul, and when the Prowlers' Phil Hanson looped in both free throw tries, the locals gained a one-point lead. Coach Al Adams' Prowler cagers managed to protect that advantage during the final seconds of play to defeat the Eagles, 49 to 47, in a hotly-contested district conference basketball game played at Red Lake Falls on Tuesday night.

On Friday night, Feb. 1st, the Warren Ponies will meet the Prowlers in a district conference game on the local court. Tip-off time for the varsity game will be at 8:00 p. m., with a preliminary game being scheduled for 6:45 p. m.

In Tuesday night's "thriller" at Red Lake Falls, coach Rusty Miller's Eagles held the period leads, holding a 11 to 10 advantage in the first period, a 27 to 23 margin at the intermission, and a 35 to 33 lead entering the fourth stanza.

The Eagles moved away to their greatest lead in the third period when, with Kankel and Denis Syvock doing the bulk of the scoring, Red Lake Falls held a 35 to 27 advantage with 3:10 to play. Dave Hanson, who won the game's high scoring honors with 29 points, tossed in three quick fielders to pare that Eagle lead to two points, 35 to 33, at the period's close.

Hanson's field goal opened the fourth period scoring and gave the Prowlers a tie at 35-all, and when Hanson added a free throw, the blue-and-gold edged ahead of the Eagles. The two teams rattled down to the final seconds, with the score being tied, or with one team gaining a point advantage, until the Kankel foul. Phil Hanson's two gift shots gave the locals a 46 to 45 lead, and when Keith Johnson scored on a lay-up, the Prowlers held a 48 to 45 lead. Syvock, who played a fine all-round game for the Eagles and who paced the Red Lake Falls scoring with 18 points, flipped in a field goal, narrowing the Prowlers lead to a point. Johnson, fouled by Gary Kulper, made one of two free throw attempts, and the Prowlers had their 49 to 47 win.

Do you realize that in less than two weeks the eighth region's sub-regional hockey tournament will be played at Warroad? It's a fact, and the dates for the sub-regional are Feb. 11th and 12th. The regional finals will be played at Roseau on Feb. 14th and 15th.

With the first round games less than two weeks away, there appears to be considerable "jockeying" for tournament positions. This year, of course, the eighth region will provide two entries to the state tournament that will be held in St. Paul on Feb. 21st, 22nd, and 23rd. That's the reason for this finagling by certain of the coaches, they want to win that runner-up spot.

In previous years, the first and second place teams, on their rating during the season's play, were "seeded" into the regional tournament. The next four teams, in the conference standings, competed in a sub-regional elimination tournament, with the two winners entering the regional tournament proper. But that's not to be the procedure this year.

There are eight teams competing in regional conference hockey this season, and all eight teams will enter the sub-regional tournament. The draw for the sub-regional came out like this: team number one plays team number five; team number four plays team number eight; team number two plays team number six; and team number three plays team number seven. The four winners in the sub-regional tourney will enter the regional tournament at Roseau on the 14th and 15th. According to these pairings, teams one, five, four, and eight will comprise the upper bracket; and teams two, three, six, and seven will comprise the lower bracket.

It's a foregone conclusion that the power-packed Roseau Rams will finish the league schedule as the conference's number one team, and the Rams will be the top-heavy favorite to win the regional title. The maneuvering now going on by several of the teams is to prevent finishing in fourth, fifth, and eighth place, and so avoid the Roseau Rams' bracket.

An important meeting has been called for Thursday afternoon to be held at Roseau at 3:00 p.m. The reason for this get-together is to discuss the point system and the team standings. According to the plan now in operation, teams are ranked on a point basis. Total points for a series between two teams to be 4. If two teams meet only once, 4 points for a win and 2 points for a tie. If two teams meet twice, 2 points for a win and 1 point for a tie. That sounds fair enough, but the rub is that some teams play more games than the others, and so have the opportunity to gain additional points. For example, the Warroad Warriors have three more scheduled games than the Hallock Polar Bears. Today's meeting will perhaps iron out this discrepancy.

From a purely objective standpoint, and based on hockey merit, this year Region Seven should be entitled to the two state entries. Region Seven has such talented teams as International Falls (on Saturday night, in a game played at the Falls, the Broncos defeated Eveleth, 6 to 3), Eveleth, Hibbing, Duluth East, and Coleraine. Of these teams only one, the Seventh Regional winner, will enter the state tournament. Who will argue that either International Falls or Eveleth couldn't decisively defeat the Region Eight runner-up?

Ride 'Em, Prowlers

We mean, ride those Warren Ponies, who will be here on Friday night for district conference game against the Prowlers. Judged by the game the two teams played at Warren a couple of weeks ago, Friday night's tilt should be a good one. The Prowlers had to strain themselves to win that game, trailing for quite a spell during the game, and getting the win largely through the 32 point performance by center Dave Hanson.

It's fine to have the Ponies back on the Prowler basketball schedule, for over the years this rivalry, the Ponies vs. the Prowlers, has been the healthiest and liveliest. There were a number of years, 1946 to 1950, when the two teams did not meet, and since 1950 until last year, the teams met on the Prowler floor. The reason for this hiatus was the lack of playing facilities at Warren, but with their fine new gymnasium-auditorium the Ponies have a floor that compares with the best.

Good Luck, PeeWees

Coach Paul Bedard and his V.F.W. PeeWee hockey squad will leave town on Friday afternoon enroute to St. Paul where, on Saturday morning they will play their first-round game in the V.F.W. State PeeWee tournament. The locals are slated to meet the South St. Paul PeeWees, in a 9:00 a.m. game on Saturday. The defending state champion Roseau PeeWees are also in the upper bracket.

Making the trip, and comprising the local PeeWee squad, are the following boys: goalies Tommy Teal and Kenneth Froehle; defensemen Jack Goulet, Jack Houfek, and Dick Jahr; centers Jerome Larson and Larry Poole; and wings, Eddie Holmes, Dennis Erickson, Keith Poppenhagen, Tim Teal, David Forkenbrock, and LeRoy Udstrand.

Correction

In last Thursday's Times, in the "Bowler's Honor Roll" we listed Harold Storhaug as leading the Service League bowlers with scores of 196-181-181, for an aggregate of 558. But we had the wrong Storhaug.

It was Hank Storhaug, Harold's cousin, a member of Bob Carlson's Mpls. Morning Tribune team that bowled that fine series. Except for the name of Storhaug, there isn't much resemblance between the two bowlers, for Hank is a smooth-swinging southpaw, and Harold is a strong-armed right-hander.

Hallock Six Defeats Prowlers Here 3 to 2

At the 1:16 mark of the overtime period, Hallock's left wing Duane Docken, picked up a loose puck in center ice, came across the north blue line, side-stepped a Prowler defenseman and fired a shot, from fifteen feet out, that beat goalie Erickson in the north net and gave the Polar Bears a 3 to 2 win over the locals in a regional conference hockey game played here Wednesday night.

Hallock opened the game's scoring at 0:27 mark of the first period when Docken, on an assist from Bill Ryden, hit the south goal with a screened shot. The Prowlers evened the game at 1-all when Jim Reese rifled a shot that found the right-hand corner of the Hallock net.

Hallock moved into a 2 to 1 lead at the 1:54 mark of the second period when Duane Carriere circled the Prowler net, and flipped a shot that was deflected off Ken Sauve's stick into the goal. The Prowlers held a marked advantage in territorial play in the second period, and but for some yeoman work by Hallock's goalie, Harold Soberoski, who booted out eleven on-goal shots in the period, the blue-and-gold would have gained a comfortable lead.

The Prowlers forced the game into overtime when they scored at 7:51 of the third period to tie the score at 2-all. Jim Hall, who was the game's all-round star, recovered his own rebound to bang a shot past Soberoski.

The Prowlers will play at Warroad on Tuesday, Feb. 5th, and then close out their schedule by playing the Baudette Burbots at Baudette on Saturday, Feb. 9th.

Hoffmann Announces $37,817,000 Highway Construction Work

A $37,871,000 revised construction program for the balance of the current fiscal year ending June 30, was itemized this week by State Highway Commissioner M. J. Hoffmann. Added to the $28,278,000 in contracts for trunk highway construction placed with contractors in the first half of the fiscal year, it will result in a fiscal year's program of more than $66,000,000.

"It was found necessary at the close of the last construction season," Hoffmann said, "to revise our program for the blance of this year to better utilize the various funds available to the department for construction purposes."

He pointed out that although some of the projects announced last June as part of the program have been deferred, they will be undertaken as soon as possible.

"With our limited engineering staff," he said, "we find it necessary to go ahead now with those projects for which plans are now completed, or can be completed, during the months immediately ahead. By so doing, we can continue our construction work at a high level and permit our own personnel, and consultants we have retained, to proceed with the preparation of plans for a balanced program in which all classes of trunk highways will receive full consideration."

Some of the projects added to the program, according to Hoffmann, are on the interstate highways. With the state being required to match each $90 in federal funds with only $10 in state funds, it was deemed necessary and advisable to include as many of these projects as possible, but also to get a start on the 935-mile system of interstate roads in the state which are scheduled for completion in 12½ years.

There a total of 86 projects included in the department's revised six-month program, with 530 miles of trunk roads to be improved and 47 structures to be built. The highway improvements include 74 miles of concreate pavement; 156 miles of plantmixed bituminous surfacing; 112 miles of grading, base and bituminous; 74 miles of base and bituminous surfacing and 102 miles of grading and base.

The structures include 22 traffic separations, 19 stream crossings and six railroad overheads and underpasses. The largest single stream crossing is a new bridge on T. H. 100 at Newport over the Mississippi River to replace the present crossing at Inver Grove, which is being used on a lease basis.

In addition to the $37,817,000 in contemplated new construction projects, Hoffmann stated that there is being carried over for completion this year a total of $29,090,000 in contracts awarded last year.

(On the following pages are listed, by county and trunk highway, the projects currently in the program for the first six months of 1957.)

No projects are listed in Pennington county, while a grading job and two bridges are scheduled on Highway 89 in Eastern Marshall county, grading and base, eight miles southerly from the north county line, Bridge No. 9.36, 9.4 miles south of Wannaska, and Bridge No. 9245, 14.3 miles south of Wannaska.

38 Handicapped in Area Secure Jobs

Are Assisted by State Rehabilitation Office

Thirty-eight new handicapped wage earners in northwestern Minnesota joined the ranks of self-supporting Minnesotans in the last half of 1956, according to the semi-annual reports just submitted to the state division of vocational rehabilitation by Henry Howard, supervisor of the division's Bemidji district office which serves this section of the state. Mr. Howard says this figure represents a substantial increase over the same six months of 1956 and is part of a state-wide total of 465 rehabilitants who were "closed out—employed" by the division during the final six months of 1956, an increase of 206% over the same period last year. During this same period 41 new clients were accepted as eligible for service by his office, making a total of 241 physically or mentally handicapped area residents who are now receiving counseling and advice on their future, physical restoration and prosthetic devices, training and education, aid in job placement or some combination of these services from the division.

Their physical or mental disabilities have not limited the range of employment for those placed on jobs. Minnesotans rehabilitated in the last six months are now working as truck drivers, farmers, laborers, teachers, clerks, stenographers, carpenters, accountants, a trapper, small town police officer, an engineer and even a minister.

Children's 1st Teeth Should Be Protected

(This is the fourth in a series of five articles on dental health being presented by Times, in cooperation with the Pennington Co. Dental Society in observance of National Children's Dental Health Week, Feb. 3-9.)

• • •

The care given the so-called baby teeth can often mean the difference between life-long dental health and a need for artificial dentures in young adulthood.

The tooth buds for the child's first teeth begin to form about the sixth week of prenatel life. Calcification begins about the 16th week, and by birth a large part of the crowns of the teeth is already formed.

The first teeth start to appear when the infant is about seven and one-half months old and they continue to come in until the child is about two.

When he is about six years old, the baby teeth begin to be shed normally and the process goes on until he is about 12.

The early loss of these first teeth, through decay or any other reason, can have serious effects because it can result in crowding and severe disarrangement of the second teeth.

One of the chief functions of the first teeth is to maintain space for the eruption of the permanent teeth into the right place. When a baby tooth is lost too soon, the adjacent teeth tend to shift and fill the space, causing the new teeth to come in badly out of position.

There are other reasons why sound and healthy first teeth are important. They are necessary for proper mastication of food. They help to make a child speak clearly. And they give graceful form and symmetry to the face.

The first permanent teeth to appear are the so-called six-year molars which come in when the child is about six years old. They erupt at about the same time that the youngster is losing his front baby teeth.

There are four of these six-year molars and each is the sixth tooth back from the front center of the mouth. The position of these molars helps to determine both the position of the othe. teeth and the shape of the lower part of the face.

The loss of the six-year molar is a serious matter and, unfortunately, it is this tooth that is most frequently lost, mostly because of decay and neglect.

Two Polk County Men Die at Wheel of Cars Saturday

Mikkel M. Wick, 61, of Winger township, died while pushing a stalled car two miles south of Winger.

Wick, aided by his brother was trying to start a stalled car by pushing it by hand. As the car began to roll, Wick jumped in and started the engine.

The car rolled erratically down the road and stopped, the brother said. Wick was found dead at the wheel.

Henry Antell, 64, of the Lengby area, was found dead Saturday night at the junction of Highway 2 and the Lengby road. His son-in-law, Oscar Oppegard of Grand Forks discovered Antell's body when he got off a bus at the junction, where Antell was to have picked him up.

Public Opposed to Governor Naming State Officials

Should the Governor of Minnesota be given the power to appoint the attorney general, state treasurer, and secretary of state, and should the post of state auditor be abolished?

Sixteen per cent of the adults interviewed by the Minneapolis Tribune's Minnesota Poll say they approve of these proposed revisions to the state constitution.

Two out of every three persons (67 per cent) disapprove and 17 per cent have no opinion or give qualified answers.

Last fall the governor's "task force" committee recommended that the attorney general, state treasurer, secretary of state be appointed by the governor. They also suggested doing away with the state auditor's job, with his duties being taken over by other state officials.

As the people see it, the major advantage of the plan is that the administrative branch would be able to work together in closer harmony.

The most frequently mentioned disadvantages are denial of the people's right to elect their own officials, lower caliber of political appointees, and too much power in the hands of the governor.

Small additions of nickel, generally below five per cent, greatly improve the strength, toughness and wear resistance of steel.

SELF-HELP NEEDED

A farm budget of five billion dollars for next year is being recommended by the administration, considerably more than this year's expenditures. Provision is made for price props, faster disposal of surpluses, and the taking of acreage out of production through the soil bank program. It should make possible a speeding up in the process of restoring supply and demand to normal relationships.

If we were required to point out one shortcoming in the overall plan, our complaint probably would be that it does not set up as an ultimate objective of this government spending the turning back to agriculture itself the responsibility for managing its own affairs.

The five billion dollar program can be justified as an emergency measure. It cannot be justified as a permanent annual obligation, and agriculture should know that through its own leadership it must find the permanent solutions for its own production and marketing control problems.

It would be far better for the dairy industry, we are sure, if it were forced to operate under self-imposed controls, absorbing through its own operations the costs of surplus disposal. That cost would be a comparatively small item of expense if a fair price were maintained for that portion of the product for which there is a strong market.

Toward this end a national dairy authority should be established, with all segments of the industry represented in its management. This is the solution that John Brandt advocated. The pattern for such operation exists in similar operations that already have proven themselves.

That desirable end will not be achieved as long as the government is willing to carry the load. The change will not come until the government forces the issue.

AGREE AMONG OURSELVES

(Hoard's Dairymen)

In past issues we have repeatedly called upon farm organization leaders to attempt to reconcile their differences on farm legislation. We have held that Congress cannot be well-directed in drafting a farm program if the differences among farm groups are constantly paraded before committees of Congress and the public.

Instead of maximizing the areas of disagreement among farm organizations, we should be maximizing our areas of agreement and whittling down to the fewest possible issues those bones of contention upon which the groups cannot possibly agree because of principle or policy declarations.

Fred Rohe, president of the Twin City Milk Producers Association, Minnesota, is one of our elder statesmen in the dairy industry. When he addressed the annual meeting of his association recently, he put his personal feelings on the situation into a few concise words. They were:

"The self-help plan of the National Milk Producers Federation is, I believe, a better plan than any federal farm legislation that we have had or any of the various plans that have been proposed recently. But we will not get it enacted into law because various groups within the dairy industry oppose it, thereby showing their unwillingness to cooperate with the whole group to try to get a plan all could support.

"And that is the same sordid, sorry spectacle that the whole agricultural industry exhibits at each session of Congress, various different general farm organizations and commodity associations fighting each other.

"I would like to ask this question. What can we expec to get out of Congress if we haven't the necessary intelligence to agree among ourselves as to what we want?

"Just how stupid can we be?"

MORE STUDY NEEDED

The St. Paul Pioneer Press questions the wisdom of the proposed expansion of the University across the river, which would require the acquisition of a considerable area of land at a high cost and would involve additional large expenditures in providing the necessary bridge facilities. It points out that the University already owns hundreds of acres of land that would be suitable for future expansion needs at no additional cost.

Suggesting that there are many factors to be considered in this overall problem the Pioneer Press comes to this reasonable conclusion:

> The proposed university expansion is designed chiefly for freshmen and sophomores. Before any such lasting commitment, the state might well decide how and where it's going in higher education. Rising enrollments, the need for well-located junior colleges, the shift in requirements for existing facilities are all increasingly apparent.
>
> 'All these trends indicate a real need for planning the educational organization in the state to best serve the people. A competent educational administrator, one who has had experience with these problems elsewhere, would seem the logical man to conduct such a study. At any rate, the expansion of higher educational facilities very soon must be viewed in terms of state population needs, not from the standpoint of individual institutions, or the result will be inconvenience, added costs and inefficiency.

Guard Muster Day Is Set for February 24

The adjutant general's office announced today that all Army and Air National Guard units in the state of Minnesota will participate in a state-wide Muster Day campaign to be conducted on February 24. Muster Day will climax three weeks of intensive recruiting activity by National Guard units in Minnesota. This activity will commence February 1 and will continue through the month culminating on the Muster Day Sunday, February 24.

Muster Day program will include mass-swearing-in ceremonies, street displays and demonstrations of National Guard equipment at armories and air bases throughout Minnesota. Families and friends of the National Guard units will be invited to attend open houses to be held on Muster Day February 24 and to inspect the training and garrison activities of the units and participate in ceremonies to be conducted by the units.

The Guard will stress the new Department of Defense policies of interest to the public and particularly those effecting men between the ages of 18½ and 26 who may now fulfill their military obligation by joining the National Guard, taking six months active duty for training and serving the remainder of their reserve obligation at their home town National Guard unit.

National Guard enlisted men who volunteer to take six months active duty for training under the National Guard Program beginning on the 17th of February will be given an opportunity to fly to Fort Leonard Wood on that date.

The present strength of the National Guard in Minnesota is an all time high 10,000 officers and enlisted men. It is anticipated that the Muster Day activities will increase this strength figure substantially and in addition that a large number of men will join the Guard to participate in the six months active duty for training program which the Guard offers.

New School Group Being Organized

First Meeting Slated at St. Cloud Feb. 14th

Recently nine citizens of as many counties drew up articles of Incorporation for a new state organization known as the Minnesota Association of Public Schools. These articles have been submitted to the office of Minnesota secretary of state and have been duly registered and certified making the association a legal Corporation.

The Incorporators, acting as the temporary board of directors, representing nine counties in the state are: Helmer Christianson, Austin; David Holmquist, Dassel; Theodore Thompson, Fergus Falls; Harry Sykes, Rochester; Irene Seykora, Owatonna; Arthur J. Larson, Rothsay; Benedict J. Spohn, Richmond; Benjamin R. Schendel, Hanover; Stuart Hoeft, Paynesville.

These Directors have called a state wide convention which is to be held in St. Cloud on February 14. Main business will be the election of permanent officers and directors and the adoption of by-laws.

The featured speaker will be Hon. Claude McQuillin, Mayor of Rochester, Minnesota.

Every public school district in the state is eligible for membership in the organization.

This organization was started as a result of requests of many rural areas and small towns whereby consideration would be given to school matters pertaining to their immediate needs.

Implement Firm at Fosston Razed by Fire Monday

Fire, of undetermined origin, destroyed the Reitmeier Implement Co. in Fosston Monday doing damage estimated at thousands of dollars to the building and equipment.

The firm, which dealt in International Harvestor products, is headed by Charles Reitmeier, formerly of Crookston and Grand Forks.

Several tractors and other type farm vehicles were destroyed.

THE MINNESOTA STORY

Prepared by the

TWISTING RIVER

No wonder the Father of Waters intrigued everyone in Minnesota. The Mississippi was regarded with awe by both early white and red men. The river attracted attention of the nation to the North Star State. This great river was, in reality, a common property of the larger part of the United States.

The Mississippi drains approximately a million square miles of the lands of the United States. Its headquarters are found in the Alleghanies and in the hundred thousand tributary rivers and streams to this great master of internal waters.

Minnesota people see the river in its infancy and the stream leaves the state as a great broad waterway to become wider the further the waters move towards the gulf. The total distance by river, from the source at Lake Itasca to the mouth, is 2546 miles.

Even in its native state of Minnesota the Mississippi extends for many crooked miles. From LaCrosse to St. Paul is 156 miles comparatively straight. From St. Paul to the falls of St. Anthony the distance is 13 miles. Above Minneapolis the river makes twists and turns and the nearer its source the greater the uncertainty of its course. From Minneapolis to the outlet of the river at Lake Winnibigoshish to Lake Itasca the river distance is 114 miles. Nearly thirty per cent of the whole mileage of this great river is found in the state where it rises.

WALLS OF FIRST SCHOOL

Minnesota's first public school was started nearly 110 years ago. Remains of the orginial humble structure may still be seen.

Miss Harriet Bishop arrived from her native Vermont at St. Paul on July 16, 1847 on the steamboat Argo. Three days later she opened her first school with seven pupils, two white. This school was established in a small, chinked building constructed for a blacksmith shop. It was dark for the only windows were very dirty. There were boards over a dirt floor and pegs in the wall sustained a rough board bench for the pupils. The teacher was provided with a chair and a cross-legged table.

This rough building was originally located on what is now the north side of Kellogg Boulevard between St. Peter and Market streets. For a long time the building lost its significance and few though of it. No one moved to preserve it as a great historical relic.

In March, 1953, James Nunkivell, a pioneer of the state and St. Paul, discovered the remains of this first school. His findings were verified by other old residents.

It appears that the school stood in its original location until it was moved in the late 1860ies to 181 Ramsey street. Additions were built and the old school served as a livery stable office, an automobile repair shop, a garage and a warehouse. It is now a garage for a painter and decorator.

Much of the building has lost its identity with other construction. Only the front and back walls are now intact.

AN EVERLASTING RECORD

The Minnesota Historical Society is making progress in the work of microfilming some 30 million pages of newspapers found in the outstanding collection of the Society.

To complete the work may well require some ten years of time and a hundred thousand dollars worth of microfilm. In addition there is the employment necessary to complete such a great task.

The basic reason for microfilming the files is to save a great historical record of the state. Paper depreciates with age. This is praticularly true of newsprint. In time the Society would have nothing left of the papers. The process will also save space for the film will require but about one per cent of the space of the present bound volumes.

The Minnesota collection started more than a hundred years ago with not only the early territorial papers but some English and early American papers extending back to the days of the Revolutionary war. For nearly twenty years the Society had no regular home and little money. There was also great mortality among early day newspapers. In 1867 the Society received and bound some 75 newspapers. Ten years later there were 3230 volumes and today the newspapers bound or in microfilm represent the equivalent of approximately 25,000 volumes.

FLOUR FROM MINNEAPOLIS

The first flour to be shipped from a mill at Minneapolis was in the year 1862. Before that time there had been shipments on the streams of southern Minnesota.

The first flour from Minneapolis, later to become the great flour city, was from the Eastman & Gibson mill. Those who made this first shipment were afraid that the flour made in Minnesota would not sell in the eastern market. Consequently, a little deception was practiced.

The flour was put into barrels for which the hoops were cut to imitate the container used in Ohio. In addition there was stencelled on the barrels the following inscription — "Muskingum Mills, Troy, Ohio — the Genuine".

The young man who cut the stencil and applied the trade mark for this first shipment was James Jerome Hill, then a clerk at the levee at St. Paul.

There was a railroad line, just completed, between Minneapolis and St. Paul. The shipment, of some fifty barrels, went by rail to the river bank at St. Paul where it was waiting river boat.

Here Mr. Hill, who was always interested in transportation, noted that there was more revenue for the carrier in this first shipment of flour than had been created by the transportation of cranberries in three months.

The flour from Minnesota was so good that within a few months the brand name was changed to "Nicollet" and its origin in Minnesota stated on the barrels.

THE SECRET

In another moment he will be getting up and walking toward you, eager to tell the secret of his calmness and strength. Will you listen?

He has solved many problems, overcome much grief and temptation, been able to meet the conditions of every-day living, all because through the Church he has come in contact with the Source of all power. In the Church he has found companionship. Its worship services have brought faith, peace and serenity. Its activities have furnished an outlet for his creative abilities and energy. The Church has been a part of his life from boyhood. Through its various departments the needs of his life have been met. He has enjoyed the fellowship there and, looking back, he is able to trace his own growth.

Have you learned his secret? Wouldn't you like to know it?

What the Church has done for him it can do for you. If you are young, it will help meet your problems. If you are older, it will bring satisfaction and peace.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Join the thousands of Minnesota women who get a discount for cash

All business men get a discount for paying cash. And for 61 years fine S & H merchants have believed that consumers are entitled to one also. They recognize your right by giving you S & H Green Stamps as your discount for paying cash.

With S & H stamps you can get over 1500 nationally famous products to help you and your family live better. The latest models and designs of such famous companies as Westinghouse . . . Bulova . . . Ansco . . . Samsonite . . . RCA . . . to name a few. And not one of these things will cost you a penny!

—AND HERE'S HOW MUCH WOMEN LOVE TRADING STAMPS

Last November your women neighbors in North Dakota actually went to the voting polls to protect their right to receive trading stamps as a discount for paying cash. By an overwhelming margin, they voted against special interests who tried to banish stamps through the passage of a law. This North Dakota vote proved that opposition to trading stamps does not come from consumers. Women love them!

Molasses Glazes Barbecued 'Ribs'

With pork supplies now bountiful at meat counters, many styles of this meat can be economically prepared in the months ahead. Here barbecued spareribs, topped with spicy apple rings, make for a very special and popular menu. Unsulphured molasses in the barbecue sauce adds a fine glaze and color to the spareribs.

Unsulphured molasses, the concentrated juice of sugar cane, gives good spreading consistency to a barbecue sauce. Its aromatic and sweet flavor also offers interesting contrast to the nip of mustard, vinegar, Tabasco and Worcestershire included in the sauce. The sauce is ready to be used as soon as the ingredients are blended.

Barbecued Spareribs

- 3 pounds spareribs
- 4 tablespoons unsulphured molasses
- 4 tablespoons prepared mustard
- 3 tablespoons vinegar
- 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
- 2 teaspoons Tabasco

Have spareribs cut in serving pieces. Place in shallow baking pan. Combine unsulphured molasses and mustard; stir in remaining ingredients. Brush spareribs with part of sauce. Bake in a moderate oven, (350° F.) 1½ hours, brushing frequently with remaining sauce. Serve with *Glazed Apple Rings. YIELD: 6 servings.

*Glazed Apple Rings

- 4 medium red apples
- 3 tablespoons unsulphured molasses
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine

Core apples; cut in approximately ½ inch slices. Heat unsulphured molasses and butter in skillet; add apple slices. Turn to cover with butter-molasses mixture. Simmer gently 10 minutes, turning and basting occasionally.

Hear Address by State President; 4 Members Honored

Well over 100 JayCees, local businessmen and visiting dignitaries from other Junior Chambers of Commerce in Minnesota were on hand to hear state JayCee President Roland Wilsey speak at the Jaycee Boss-employe banquet held in the Legion clubrooms Thursday evening.

Doug Tegtmeier was toastmaster at the banquet, which got under way about 7 p.m., and introduced the several out-of-town guests and local dignitaries present.

Wilsey, who was originally from a small town in southern Minnesota told of the difficulties of moving into a larger city from the stand-point of meeting people and making friends.

He cited his own experiences in Minneapolis and St. Paul which led to joining the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the way belonging has been of great benefit to him and how it led to his election as state Jaycee president.

He said the leadership training Jaycees get is a great asset to the individual members of that organization and to the community as a whole. Through the excellent Jaycee programs under way in the many U. S. cities and towns, those communities are assured of outstanding leadership potential in years to come, he emphasized. At the same time the Jaycee becomes a much better citizen of his community.

On a local basis, he said service provided Thief River Falls by North Central Airlines is one of this city's greatest assets and complimented the city on its fine air terminal facilities.

Following Wilsey's address Jaycee Spark Plug awards were made to four of the local Jaycees who have done outstanding work in the Junior Chamber in the past year.

The awards were made by Orin Green, president of the Thief River Falls Junior Chamber of Commerce, to Glenn Peterson, Stanley Gibson, Jon Metusalem and Norris Melander.

The county ASC office is now also accepting wheat acreage reserve agreements for spring wheat, said Culkins. Agreements will be accepted on a first-come first-served basis to the extent that funds are available. The maximum acreage which may be placed in the acreage reserve initially is 50 acres, or 50% of the farmer's wheat allotment, whichever is larger. Farmers interested in signing wheat acreage reserve agreements are asked to contact the ASC office as soon as possible while funds are available, but not later than March 8.

Abolition of Soldier Bonus Taxes Sought

Conservatives Ask Repeal of $5 Head Tax and Other Levies

Abolition of all the special taxes levied by the 1949 Legislature to pay the World War II soldiers' bonus—including the $5 head tax on individual income taxes—is provided in a bill introduced in the Minnesota House of Representatives Friday.

Rep. John A. Hartle of Owatonna, former speaker of the House and Republican state party chief, and four other conservative members of the House, are authors of the bill.

"There is no valid reason for continuing these taxes, which were levied for the express purpose of paying the World War II bonus," Hartle said. "Now that enough money will be on hand to pay the bonus, the taxes should be removed."

"It has been estimated by a legislative interim committee that it would cost about 27 million dollars to pay a Korean War bonus.

Hartle took the position that the Legislature should start with a clean slate and should impose new taxes if there is to be a Korean War bonus.

The special taxes enacted in 1949 provide a 10 per cent increase on fermented malt beverages and intoxicating liquor; a 5 per cent extra tax on corporation income taxes, plus a $5 filing fee for each calendar year; a 5 per cent hike on the surtax paid by national and state banks; a 1 per cent surtax on iron ore, royalty and occupation taxes; and a 5 per cent increase on individual income taxes plus the $5 filing fee known as the

Derailment Damages 17 Cars in Soo Yards

Two freight cars were derailed and 17 others damaged to varying degrees when switching crews in the Soo Line yards here put too many freight cars on a 53 car-capacity siding early Friday, according to Soo Line officials.

The rear cars of the string ran a switch at the north end of the yard in backing onto the siding and when the train started forward again the switch rails spread, sending the two rear-most cars "across country" E. A. Hamerski, superintendent here said.

The other 17 cars were damaged when they were sideswiped as the two derailed cars went down the track between cars on other tracks, Hamerski said.

Mel Joppru Buys Winger Sales Barn

TRF Auctions to Be Held Mondays, Starting Feb. 11

Melvin Joppru, owner of the Joppru Sales Barn and Meat Service, announced last week that he recently bought the livestock sales barn at Winger, and that livestock auctions will be conducted by his organization each Tuesday, beginning February 12.

Because Joppru's Winger sales barn auctions will be held Tuesdays the auctions at the Thief River Falls sales barn will be changed to each Monday of every week, instead of Tuesdays, beginning with the auction Feb. 11, Joppru said.

Purchase of the Winger barn is only a part of the expansion Joppru plans to put into being. Next summer he plans a considerable enlargement of his livestock holding facilities here and possibly at the Winger sales barn. Improvements will also be made on other facilities, Joppru said.

Notification has been received at the Marshall county extension office that petitions received by the state soil conservation committee concerning interest in having a hearing regarding the organization of a soil conservation district in the remainder of Marshall county have been approved.

Matt Thorfinnson has informed the extension office that Theodore Hegseth, who farms near Fergus Falls, and who is on the state soil conservation committee, will conduct two hearings which have been arranged.

The first hearing will be at the Argyle city hall Thursday, February 14, at 2:00 p.m. and the second meeting will be at Newfolden high school Friday, Febuary 15, at 2:00.

It is important that all those interested or opposed to having such a soil conservation district organized be present to be heard so that the state committee may come to a valid decision as to whether or not such a district is wanted and needed in the unorganized area of Marshall County.

With returns now practically complete, a total of $2,680.70 was realized from the mail sale of 1956 Christmas seals in Pennington county, it was announced today by Mrs. George Erickson, secretary-treasurer of the county public health association, sponsor of the sale.

In addition, $189.10 worth of seals was purchased by pupils in the Thief River Falls schools, making total receipts of $2,869.80, about $100 more than last year.

$3,200 Turned in to Saturday in Polio Drive

Mothers March Held Thursday Evening Brings in $1,438

A total of $3,200 has been collected up to Saturday in the 1957 Pennington county polio fund campaign, it was announced today by Richard G. Mabey, drive chairman.

He added that with only scattered returns from the rural areas, the drive has been extended from January 31 to February 15.

Nearly 200 women braved sub-zero weather Thursday night to stage their annual Mothers March on Polio under the direction of Mrs. Harold G. Rasmussen and Mrs. Rudolph Sagmoen, and they collected the substantial sum of $1,438.75, only slightly less than a year ago, according to Chairman Mabey.

On their return to the Auditorium after making the rounds, the women were treated to coffee and doughnuts by a committee of Rotary club members, including A. F. Berge, E. B. Bennon and Roy J. Oen.

Approximately $1,000 has been turned in from the Thief River Falls business district, with only about half the teams reporting. In addition, pupils in the Thief River Falls schools contributed $301.36, and the St. Hilaire school turned in $78.76.

Mrs. Adele L. Olson, chairman of the Rebekah lodge committee that cooperated with the Odd Fellows in conducting the two-day Blue Crutch sale, announced that receipts for the two days aggregated $202.05.

The canvass of the rural areas of the county has been handicapped by the extremely cold weather that has prevailed in recent weeks.

No. Central Gets Route G. Forks to Omaha, Nebraska

Airline Given Temporary Authority, Thursday by Civil Aeronautics Board

The authority will be effective until 60 days after the board's final decision in the seven-states case, a comprehensive study of airflight patterns in the Dakotas, Minnesota and Nebraska. A North Central spokesman in Minneapolis said that may take three years.

The decision in the "Route 38 case" between Grand Forks and Omaha was announced without any comment as to the board's reasons for the action.

A formal opinion will be issued later explaining the basis for the CAB ruling. A board spokesman said the announcement in advance of the formal decision is a new procedure designed "to prevent leaks" on board action.

A North Central spokesman said the 580-mile route will serve Watertown, Brookings, Sioux Falls and Yankton, S. D.; Sioux City Iowa; and Norfolk, Nebr., and Fargo, N. D.

The route will increase North Central's route miles to 3,241, an increase of 22 per cent.

The offender will be brought into juvenile court at a later date, pending further investigation, Anderson said.

Soo Line Crew Clears Tracks After Derailment

A minor derailment in the Soo Line yards here made some extra work for wrecking crews after a switch engine pushed a string of cars through a switch at the north end of the yard Friday. Only two cars were derailed but several others were damaged when sideswiped by the two derailed cars. Shown here is the more seriously damaged car of the two that were derailed, as the wrecking crew starts to clean up the debris.

TRF School Board Members to Go to State Convention

3,000 Expected to Attend Parley Opening Tuesday In St. Paul Auditorium

More than 3,000 persons are expected in St. Paul for the 36th annual convention of the Minnesota School Board association (MSBA) this week.

Representing the Thief River Falls community at the sessions will be members of the local board of education and Supt. J. A. Sater.

The convention, to be held in St. Paul auditorium Tuesday through Thursday, will be watched closely by legislators and others interested in education.

It will provide one of the first "grass roots" forums for reaction to the governor's education program, already sketched in broad outlines and due to be outlined in detail to the legislature Monday.

There have been reports, for example, that school groups which favor many of the governor's recommendations on increased state support for public education may part company with him on the question of using income tax money to support both public junior colleges and the state teachers colleges.

Paul Oland of Bemidji is president of the association. Speakers will include Dean M. Schweickhard, state commissioner of education; Tom Swain, director of the Minnesota Centennial commission; and O. H. Roberts Jr. of the National School Board association. Governor Orville Freeman will speak at the annual banquet.

Den Mothers of Cub Pack to Be Honored Tuesday

Banquet in Trinity Church Basement Arranged as Boy Scout Week Feature

Den mothers of Cub Scout Pack 60 will be honored by the pack at their annual "Blue and Gold" Banquet Tuesday evening, Feb. 5th at 6:30 p.m. in the basement of Trinity Lutheran church. The banquet also commemorates the founding of the scouting movement in America, which is being observed during Boy Scout Week Feb. 6 to 12.

During the ceremonies pins will be awarded to the den mothers, and den chiefs will be awarded their merit badge for work in cub scouting.

The banquet will take the form of an indoor picnic with the families of each den getting together for their own group picnic. Den mothers have contacted each mother for their contribution to the potluck supper. Beverage and desert for the whole group will be provided by the pack.

Lincoln PTA Unit to Hear Brazilian Student Tuesday

Gilson deSousa, exchange student from Brazil who is attending Lincoln high school this winter, will address the Lincoln PTA unit at its meeting in the school auditorium Tuesday evening, February 5, at 8 o'clock. He will give his impressions of the American educational system.

After a brief business session, the assemblage will be divided into groups for a discussion of "The Teen-age Code."

Refreshments will be served following the meeting.

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

Girl Scouts of Thief River Falls enjoyed two movies sent out for viewing by the national organization Monday afternoon in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. One on arts and crafts showed how various things seen by the girls could be woven into the arts badges, the other, "The Wider World" showed Guides in Mexico conducting a reading class for the less fortunate; Guides in Finland helping a Troop of blind girls with their Scouting; Guides in Burma helping in their temple and day schools; and Scouts in New York conducting their "Get out the Vote" campaign. The Scouts thanked Chief Warren Nelson of the U. S. Navy recruiting office for his help with the movies.

In the evening the same pictures were shown to leaders at the association's regular meeting. Mrs. Lou Hetland, president also led the discussion concerning the annual cookie sale and plans for Girl Scout week in March.

The Girl Scout planning board consisting of three girls from each of the five Senior Scout troops announced that their president is Shirley Kulseth, and secretary, Jackie Carlson. All requests for community service have been taken care of this year, they reported. The senior troop acted as waitresses for the Rotary student luncheon, representatives of all five troops distributed the polio cans for the polio drive, and volunteers were ready to baby sit during the national election and to make it possible for leaders to attend training sessions. Any organization wishing Scout help in community projects is invited to call the Girl Scout Office, tel. 1433.

He deserves an "A" for effort... the weatherman, that is. He's been predicting snow or snow flurries off and on for a month. Perhaps he's making his forecasts on a percentage basis. Sooner or later he'll hit it right. On the other hand, he hasn't missed a cold wave forecast yet!

A wag says an expert is a man who knows everything about a given subject except the practical application. A driving expert, for example, is a professional back-seat driver.

January was a bad month for the Soo Line, the past week or so of the month in particular. We've heard of at least three derailments, one of which can be blamed on extremely cold weather. Our Ed Hamerski, Winnipeg division super, had his troubles Friday when a couple of cars tried to change tracks at mid-siding. It can't be done, hey Ed? Luckily enough, no deaths or injuries have been reported from any of the pile-ups.

There were two members of the Scilley family out collecting Thursday night when the local gals staged their Mothers' March on Polio. Trouble was, young Scilley was making paper route collections ahead of his mother and her companions so that in at least one case the householder was almost fresh out of donations for the polio drive!

Since it is sometimes difficult, if not completely impossible, to induce industry to move into towns, why don't the towns encourage development of local industries? We can name a few places that have done so with considerable success. Alexandria, for instance, had a boat works that wasn't too prosperous, but the far-sighted and imaginative folks down there did some pushing and now there's an aircraft factory as well as a boat works. They make the Bellanca Cruisemaster, a neat little four-placer that cruises over 200 m.p.h. How prosperous the airplane business is nowadays we don't know—but at least, with some hard work, they have established a promising industry there and local "push" was what did it!

Another illustration of initiative is Lokstad's rolling-pin factory a few miles out of Newfolden. John Lokstad developed this thriving little business on his own, even to making most of his own special tools. He can turn a finished rolling pin in practically nothing flat—and give you a choice of smooth, grooved or checkered patterns in the bargain!

• • •

There's one advantage of having locally-developed industry—you don't have so many worries about it moving away, such as outside-owned or government industries sometimes do. There's a good chance the jewel-bearing factory out at Rolla, N. D. may be closed down or moved out of that community and there has been a howl raised from there to Washington over the possibility.

• • •

In our humble opinion a city is better off if industry related to national defense isn't its mainstay. The market for such manufacturers is purely artificial and induced by what we hope is a temporary situation of affairs. Seasonal industries also leave much to be desired.

• • •

If you go all the way back into the history of an industry you're pretty sure to find that it started on a local basis and grew to what ever position it now enjoys. Detroit, for instance, although almost ideally suited for the automobile industry in location and other factors, became an automobile manufacturing center as much by accident as anything else! We think history will bear us on this contention.

• • •

They say necessity is the mother of invention. One fellow we know of would go so far as to say the automobile jack is an illegitimate offspring. . . . SO LONG!

Best Food Buys

Save money during February by using the foods labelled "Best Buys" this month. The United States Department of Agriculture reports that these foods will be in good supply and at a price you want to pay.

Eggs lead the list, especially Grade A large eggs. Make the best use of these eggs for breakfast, for dinner, and supper main dishes, and in desserts. This is a good time to treat your family to souffles, sponge cakes, meringues, and other egg specialties.

Cheese Souffle

Here's a recipe that will help you to serve your family some of these top-quality eggs we have now. It's Cheese Souffle, and the recipe comes from our Dairy Food Bulletin.

Prepare 1 cup thick base. This may be white sauce, using 4 tablespoons flour to 1 cup milk or a can of condensed cream of chicken, mushroom, or celery soup.

Beat in 4 egg yolks, one at a time, and add ½ pound shredded American cheese and, if desired, 1 cup chunkstyle tuna, broken into flakes. Add seasonings required depending on base used. Fold this mixture into 4 egg whites which have been beaten stiff with ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar. Pour into a 1½ quart baking dish. Set the dish in a pan of warm water and bake at 300 degrees for about 1¼ hours. Serves 4 to 6.

How To Freeze Eggs

Maybe you'll want to freeze some of these eggs for later use. For best results follow these directions:

Eggs should be broken for freezing, preferably after cooling them to about 32 degrees F. Just before breaking, wash eggs in water at about 120 degrees F. and add a detergent to help loosen dirt. Dry quickly. Check the condition of each egg by breaking it into a cup before adding it to the mixing bowl.

Egg whites or yolks may be frozen separately or mixed. Egg whites need no treatment. When freezing yolks, use fork to break them, stir slightly but do not beat. Mix in 2 tablespoons sugar or corn sirup, or 1 teaspoon salt, per cup. The texture of mixed whites and yolks may be improved a little by adding one half the above amounts of salt or sweetening per cup, but most homemakers prefer to freeze the mixture without adding salt or sweetening.

As of Dec. 31, there was $22,032,346 on hand to pay the remaining debt of 25 million dollars. Additional receipts will be accumulated by the state to pay that, Hartle said.

The conservatives' bill was viewed by some liberals as the beginning of the conservatives' attack on Gov. Freeman's "package" tax program.

The governor's tax plan, based on recommendations of a tax study commission, calls for continuation of all the special taxes with the exception of recommended elimination of the $5 head tax.

Under the governor's program, the Korean War bonus would be paid by the windfall to be derived from the enactment of an income tax withholding system. The windfall was estimated at 25 million dollars.

The legislative reapportionment bill that passed the House in 1955 but failed in the Senate was introduced in the Legislature Thursday.

Identical measures were submitted to the House and Senate. They re-district the state into 63, instead of 67, legislative districts. The Senate membership would be cut from 67 to 63 and the House would continue with 131 members.

Rep. Alf Bergerud of Edina and Sen. Arthur Gillen of South St. Paul introduced the bills.

The Senate delayed action on a resolution calling for living expense allowances for members of the Legislature, with indications a vote would come early next week. The resolution would grant allowances of $12 a day to out-of-town members and $5 to those who live in the Twin Cities.

4-H'er of the WEEK

Ernest Breznay

An active member of the Mavie 4-H Club is Ernest Breznay. He has been a member of that club for 8 years, and has held the offices of president, reporter and librarian for two years, and secretary. He has carried a total of 53 projects in his 8 years of membership.

When asked how 4-H has helped him, Ernest says: "To me 4-H means the meeting of many new friends and the learning of much valuable information that I can use later in life. I have also learned how to take part in social groups which I have found to be fun. I especially enjoyed State 4-H Club Week. 4-H work is a good way for young people to keep busy as there is always an event coming up to be preparing for. It is also an outlet to display our talents in many fields as demonstrations, talks, plays, music, speaking, and recreation."

Ernie has had three trips to the State Fair on Demonstrations, and has been a blue ribbon winner in Farm Mechanics at the State Fair. He has received the Key Award, Public Speaking and Garden Medals, and the County Safety award.

Church and school activities also keep him occupied. He sings in the choir, played basketball and baseball, student manager of the football team, school band, worked in library, and is a member of the P.T.A. He is also a member of the F.F.A. and is a reporter for that organization, and a member of the Square Dance club, and plays in the Junior Band.

His plans for the future include Bemidji State Teachers College, where he plans to major in teaching.

Newfolden Show Helps Polio Fund

March of Dimes Drive Acclaimed as Success

A highly successful March of Dimes campaign was climaxed in Newfolden last week with a home talent show and basketball games between the married and single women and dads and sons of the community, according to Mrs. Floyd Bakke, chairman of the Newfolden village polio drive.

Mrs. Bakke reported that, despite an extremely cold evening, a large number of residents turned out for the show and games. In the basketball games the married women's team, the "Powder Puffs" played the "Perky Petal" single women's team, while the dads' "Blocks" team was pitted against the son's "Chips" team. According to Mrs. Bakke both games were hilarious. Winners were not announced. Mrs. J. P. Halvorson, Mrs. Pete Tandberg and Mrs. Evonnne Olson were "cheerleaders."

In the talent division the Gill sisters from the Mud Lake refuge presented several vocal numbers, as did Orville Elseth and Gordon Ellingson, Oliver Nelson, piano, and Byron Moran, guitar, rendered instrumental selections. Coffee and cake was served to the appreciative audience after the show. A free-will offering netted the polio drive over $90.

Mrs. Evonne Olson was mistress of ceremonies at the show. Also assisting Mrs. Bakke were Mrs. Wayne Alferis and Mrs. Hjalmer Lofstrom.

Student Council Seeks Rooms for Fall Convention

The Lincoln high school student council housing drive will go into high gear this week, said F. Miles Nelson, principal. Students will canvass Thief River Falls to get pledges of housing for the students who will visit this city on Nov. 7 and 8.

The plan is to present the problem to the Lincoln school PTA when it meets Tuesday, Feb. 5, and send out circulars with students in each of the classes to ask parents and friends of the students.

The student council will appreciate any volunteer housing by the public Nelson said, adding that securing rooms to accommodate 450 students is a large undertaking. Students who take part come from towns in Minnesota and are among the finest citizens in the school populations of their respective towns, he said.

4-H'er Richly Rewarded

A Minnesota 4-H girl has started the New Year with the rewarding experience of having spent a week at the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago. She is Charlotte Gomer, 18, of Benson. This trip is one of the goals sought by 4-H Club members everywhere, and it has become the symbol of superior project work. Best performance in the 4-H Dress Revue program won state honors for Charlotte. Simplicity Pattern Co., which has supported the program for 10 years, provided the trip award.

Charlotte Gomer

The climax of Charlotte's experience at the Club Congress was an opportunity to model her prize winning outfit before an audience of over 1000 who were guests of Simplicity at their 10th anniversary banquet. Her costume consisted of a mulberry orlon and cotton tailored dress fashioned along princess lines with a high neck. Back interest was created by buttons which ended above a slash of pink petticoat. Black hat, shoes, and purse completed the ensemble.

Charlotte was one of 48 Dress Revue winners to promenade down the 90 foot elevated runway to the accompaniment of soft music and the fashion narrator's commentary. In addition to the Congress trip, each girl was presented with a fine leather cased scissors set.

Weather Was Cold Here in January

Mercury Failed to Rise to Zero on Twelve Days

Perhaps the best that can be said about the January weather is, "Kee-kee-kee-ripes, but it was cold!" as uttered by the "Kee bird," that mythical creature of arctic regions which winters in northern Minnesota.

It was cold in January — several degrees below normal for a goodly portion of the month. Nevertheless, the January high temperature was a relatively balmy 34 above zero Jan. 19. On the opposite end of the scale and showing a spread of 67 degrees was the low for the winter — 33 below zero registered Jan. 29, as shown by the Times' weather records.

There were 12 days in the month in which the mercury never reached as high as zero and 5 days in which the temperature stayed at or above zero. Above-zero temperatures were registered on 19 days.

Precipitation was light during the month, totalling about one-half inch, or in terms of new snow about 6 inches. Normally the area receives well over an inch of moisture in January.

Some relief is promised in the long-range forecast issued by the U. P. weather bureau which predicts near-normal temperatures in the northern Minnesota area for the next 30 days.

Pennsylvania, the nation's second largest producer of bituminous coal, crossed the 8,000,000-ton production mark just before the end of 1956. Bituminous is mined in 30 Pennsylvania counties and the record goes back to 1800.

The Department of Commerce now rates America's export coal market in the billion dollars-a-year class. Shipments of American coal abroad in 1956 reached a record high in excess of 48,000,000 tons.

THE MINNESOTA STORY

Prepared by the Minnesota Historical Society

COUNTING THE FRONTIER

Minnesota counted noses twice in as many years more than a century ago. The first census was taken in 1849 to justify the creation of the Minnesota territory.

That count, listed as of June 11, 1849, showed 4680 people in the territory which then extended from the Mississippi to the Missouri. Men outnumbered the women about two to one. That was the general condition on the frontier.

This first census was made by settlements. St. Paul was the largest with 840 people. Second in size was the settlement listed as Pembina. It had 637 people most of whom came in by way of the Great Lakes. This num- Third in size was Stillwater which had made a good start before the settlements on the Mississippi had gotten well underway. The settlement at St. Anthony and in nearby Little Canada added 571 to the populations. Settlements with fewer numbers of people. Crow Wing counted 178 men, women and children. Mendota had 122. Black Dog village claimed 18 souls. The soldiers, women and children in forts numbered 317.

In 1850 Minnesota had its first official census as an organized government. This was taken by the territorial counties rather than by scattered settlements. That census showed a total civilian population of 6193. This, of course, did not include the Indian population which was, no doubt, somewhat larger than that of the incoming whites. In 1850 the military force in the territory was greatly increased to number 1014.

BY TRAIL AND RAIL

The early settlers in Minnesota went to their new land by various methods of transportation, all with their costs of time, money and hardship.

The first people in came by the rivers. They may have worked their way from the Atlantic states to the Ohio. Then they rowed their way up the river to St. Paul or took one of the early steamboats up the big stream. From St. Paul they went further up the river or took to the Minnesota and its various tributaries.

As this general method was used highways were also being developed. They were but trails from points east to west. On them would be found long lines of overland wagons, some of the covered wagon type and others with modifications to suit the load and the owner. These vehicles fanned out through Minnesota on trails and roads leading from the river ports.

When the railroads were built from the east transportation changed. In 1858, the year Minnesota became a state, much of the travel was by rail from the east and by way of Chicago to Dubuque or Prairie du Chien. Then the river or stages would serve the pioneers.

The cost of travel by railroad to these early terminals was about $30 from New York and closely related fares from other points. There was a half fare for children from four to twelve. Freight on belongings was $2.25 a hundred from New York.

ANOTHER COUNTY

Morrison county, one of the early sub-divisions of Minnesota, was named for Allen W. Morrison. This pioneer came to the upper Mississippi in 1820 and he was the head of an energetic family of traders.

The first settler in the area which is now the county was William Nicholson. He floated down river from the mouth of the Swan on a raft in 1847. He came back the next year with 22 men to cut a road from the site of Little Falls to the headquarters of the Winnebago agency at Long Praire. He returned to find that one William Aiken had taken possession of some land and built a hotel. Aiken died in 1851. He had two wives and his funeral was disturbed by contention as to who was the chief mourner.

The county was organized in 1856. Within three years 24 plats of communities within the county and the area to the west were filed.

Morrison county was long a battlefield between the Sioux and the Chippewas. The new county had a large native population and this was increased in 1848 when a large group of the Winnebagoes were brought in from Fort Atkinson, Iowa. These Indians had gotten in the way of advancing settlement in Iowa. They soon found that they were in the way in their new homes. They lived along the Swan and other rivers. They became dissatisfied. The white people coming into the area were unhappy. The result was that after some seven years the Winnebagoes were picked up and put down on the White Earth reservation. This left Morrison county to a new population of pioneers.

FOUR CABINET MEMBERS

Some states have complained in recent times that they have never had a citizen who has served as a member of a presidential cabinet. Though Minnesota is a comparatively new state it has had four men who have obtained high ranking recognition.

The first to serve as a cabinet member was Alexander Ramsey, the first territorial governor and the second governor after statehood. He served as secretary of war in the Hayes cabinet, beginning two years of service in 1879.

William Windom, a Minnesota congressman and senator, was secretary of the treasury for two periods. One was in the administration of President Garfield in 1881 and the second service was under President Harrison for two years beginning in 1889.

Frank B. Kellogg, who began his law practice at Rochester, later joined an outstanding law firm. He was elected to the United States senate in 1916. He was secretary of state in the Coolidge administration and he was also ambassador to the Court of St. James. Later, he served on the Permanent Court of International Justice and was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1930.

William D. Mitchell of St. Paul was the fourth cabinet member from Minnesota. He served as attorney general in the Hoover administration from 1929 through 1933. He now practices law in New York City.

Prowler Quint Whips Warren 68-41; Plays Bemidji on Saturday

Coach Al Adams' cage Prowlers, holding the Warren Ponies to but 12 points in the second half, defeated Warren, 68 to 41, in a district conference game played on the local floor on Friday night.

This weekend the Prowlers meet a pair of highly rated teams, playing the defending district champion Crookston Pirates at Crookston on Friday night, and then tangling with the regional champion Bemidji Lumberjacks on the Prowler floor on Saturday night. Both teams, the Pirates and the Jacks, are favored to retain their district titles this season.

Except for a brief flurry in the second period when the Ponies, showing fine accuracy from the free throw line and taking advantage of Prowlers misplays, pulled up from a 20 to 9 deficit at the end of the first period to trail by a 32 to 29 score with a minute to play in the second period, coach Adams' team held control of Friday night's tilt.

Rolling up the second half of play leading by a 37 to 29 score, the Prowlers racked up nine consecutive points on five free throws and a pair of field goals, to jump to a 46-to 29 lead. Warren garnered the final points of the period when, with 2:06 to play, Bill Grange scored on a hook shot.

With Dave Hanson looping in five field goals and boosting his total point output for the game to thirty-two, the Prowlers pulled away from the Ponies in the fourth period to record a deserved 68 to 41 triumph.

Hanson, with 11 field goals and 10 free throws, easily won the game's high point honors. Other "double digit" scorers for the Prowlers were Kenny Jones with 12 points and Keith Johnson with 11 points. For the visiting Ponies, Bill Grange, with 12 points, and Brian Black, with 12 points, were the prime point-getters.

Weather Warms up a Little This Week

Mercury Rebounds after Hitting —26 Thursday

If you had an accurate thermometer it's possible you may have noticed a slight warming trend over the weekend—although it won't make much difference in the amount of clothing you'll have to wear outdoors.

According to the U. S. Weather bureau the next 30 days will bring near-normal temperatures to a wide region in the upper midwest, which includes our northern Minnesota area. Precipitation for the same period will be below normal for the second such period in a row, all of which adds up to good news for folks in this area.

The low temperature for the period since Thursday was -26, which came Thursday morning. The high was 7 above zero Sunday. The low Monday morning was 5 below, still cold but a noticeable improvement over temperatures of the past two weeks.

The KTRF forecast is for generally fair weather today, followed by considerable cloudiness Monday night and Tuesday. Some light snow is also predicted, with no important temperature changes.

Winds will be light westerly. Highs will be 15-20 above zero and the lows tonight 5 below to 5 above. The Wednesday outlook is for colder weather.

A new catalogue of free safety has been issued by the Safety division of the Minnesota Highway department for use by program directors, teachers, and others who use motion pictures in safety training.

Forty safety films are included in the list, ranging from hints for pedestrian protection to drivers education films. The films are in sound, either black and white or colored, for showing on 16 m.m. projectors. Any group within the state may borrow these films without charge, with the exhibitor paying return postage. Bookings may be made by mail with requests to be made as far in advance of intended showing as possible, including alternate selections and alternate dates recommended to assure better service.

Copies of the film catalogue can be secured from the Saftey division, Minnesota Highway department, 1279 University Avenue, St. Paul 4, Minn., or by telephoning to Midway 6-4688, Ext. 323.

No Accidents Here Since Thursday

First Accident-free Period in Many Weeks

For the first time in several weeks neither city police, county sheriff or state highway patrol had even a minor accident to report, according to these law enforcement agencies.

City police reported several persons charged with driving under the influence will be brought into court today, along with other traffic offenders.

Captain Walter Anderson of the highway patrol said the good safety record being made in this area is partly due to good winter road conditions and the fact that there is less travel at this time of year. He cautioned against over-optimism, however, saying the road conditions may vary from week to week and that all drivers should use extreme caution at all times when driving in winter.

Silage Contest Set for Winter Shows

Pennington Farmers Are Urged to Submit Entries

A silage contest is a new feature of the Red River Valley Winter Shows, states County Agent Paul Stelmaschuck. This is the first time farmers will have an opportunity to exhibit and get scores on their silage.

The show will be conducted in the cattle barn and the judging will be done at 10:00 a. m. on February 26.

Farmers are encouraged to enter corn, grass, legume, oats, or other silage. A quart sample in a plastic bag is sufficient. The scoring and evaluation of the silage will be sent to each exhibitor. When this data is available the owner will know if his silage is good or not and if it isn't he can take steps to correct an undesirable characteristics found in the silage.

Some Changes

At a meeting of the region's high school hockey coaches and athletic directors at Roseau on Thursday afternoon, there were some revisions made in the sub-regional and regional tournament pairings. To erase some unequalities that had arisen in the point-totals, the points that were carried by the Indus and Red Lake Falls games in contests against the conference's other six teams, were disallowed.

And there were some alterations made in the pairings, too. As of now, the pairing for the sub-regional tourney at Warroad will find team number one playing team number eight at 7:30 P. M. on Monday, Feb. 11th; and at 9:00 P. M. team number four will play team number five.

On Tuesday night, the lower bracket will play, with team number two playing team number seven at 7:30 P. M., and team number three meeting team number six at 9:00 P. M.

The regional tournament proper will be held at Roseau on Thursday and Friday, Feb. 14th and 15th. With face-off time at 7:30 P. M., the winners of Monday night's sub-regional games will play; and at 9:00 P. M. the winners of Tuesday night's sub-regional games will meet. The regional championship tilt will be played on Friday night, with the face-off at 7:30 P. M. A consolation game, between the losers of the Thursday night's semi-finals, will be played at 9:00 P. M.

At Thursday's meeting, a canvass of the team point totals, as of then, was made, and it appears that the first three places in the conference standings have been determined. Roseau is number one with 16 points; Williams is second with 12 points; and Hallock, which has concluded its season, is third with 11 points. Thief River Falls, Baudette, and Warroad are embroiled in a struggle for fourth, fifth and sixth places.

From a glance at the tournament pairings, it is apparent that sixth place in the conference standings is to be preferred to a fourth or fifth place rating. The sixth place team gains a berth in the lower bracket, with Williams, Hallock and probably Indus. The fourth and fifth place teams enter the bracket that carries the title-favorite Roseau Rams.

We hope that last Thursday's meeting, coming as it did a bare ten days in advance of the tournament, will not establish a precedent, and that "revision" meetings (in the years that this region sends two entries to the state tournament) will not become a biennial occurrence.

Dave's Progress

In glancing through our "book of facts," which contains the basketball individual scoring records for the year, we noted particularly the scoring spree of Dave Hanson during the past two weeks. Starting with the Warren Pony game at Warren on Jan. 18th and concluding with the Warren game here on Feb. 1st, Dave played five games. In that span the six-foot, five-inch junior has scored fifty-nine field goals and thirty-two free throws, for a total of 150 points. That averages out a thirty-point per game clip. How do you like that!

We're commenting on this fine point - per - game average this week, for we are doubtful if Dave's scoring average will carry through this weekend, when the Prowlers meet the Crookston Pirates and the Bemidji Lumberjacks. The Bemidji Lumberjacks, especially, were successful in bottling up big Dave in the first meeting between the two teams, holding the Prowler center to three field goals and six free throws. Against the Pirates, Dave tallied eight field goals and eight free throws for a creditable 24-point performance.

Oh yes, here's a recital of Dave's point-by-game in his last five games; Warren, 32 points; Mahnomen, 27 points; East Grand Forks, 30 points; Red Lake Falls, 29 points; and Warren, 32 points.

Cracking the Whip

John Oven, the skip of the "Far East" rink (it's called the Easterners because it is composed of curlers from Eveleth, Duluth, and Two Harbors), maintains that he is going to have discipline in his rink. Oven intends to levy a moderate "fine" against Roy Jarvi for reporting late at a scheduled match on Sunday afternoon. And John intends to take drastic actions, and slap on a heavy fine, against Game Warden Carl Sundstrom. According to John, Carl will be subject to a fine for not appearing to curl in a scheduled match, and, too, he will be fined for insubordination.

Rules are rules, and the law is the law, and he's the skip of the rink. So says John.

Planning Complete for '57 Winter Shows

The major planning is about complete for the forty-seventh annual University of Minnesota's Farmers' Week and Red River Valley Winter Shows to be held in Crookston, February 25 to March 1, according to B. E. Youngquist, president of the Winter Shows board of managers, Inc. The detailed program is at the printers and will be ready for mailing to the public the first week in February.

The livestock people are expecting a good show. In fact, the number of people showing livestock is up this year and the number of people offering animals for sale is up over last year, according to William Strickler of Euclid, president of the Red River Valley Livestock Association.

George Nornes of Climax, vo-ag instructor and secretary of the Junior Futurity committee, says the Junior Futurity livestock show is on par with last year. Mr. Nornes says the show this year has the added feature of the young people being able to collect a certain amount of expense money involved in showing their animals. This was made possible by the interest of thirty-five banks in the Red River Valley area contributing money to a futurity fund.

During the week, the afternoon programs will feature a "soils" theme, a "feeding pelleted feeds" theme, as well as "the use of the airplane in farming." Details on these programs will be forthcoming in your newspaper.

The Winter Shows board of managers has been able to secure an international scientist, a nationally-known educator, and a world-wide traveler and newspaper commentator to address the evening meetings. Music groups from the city of Crookston and from the Crookston Public Schools, directed by T. W. Thorson, as well as music groups from the Northwest School of Agriculture, directed by Mrs. Lo-Ann Kana and Jack Harris, will present band, orchestra, and choral music at various times throughout the week.

According to Paul Engelstad of Thief River Falls, general superintendent of the livestock shows and exhibitions, display space for industrial and educational displays is at a premium. He is having a real time finding space for all that want to come to the show.

The judges for the Crops Show will be R. S. Dunham and A. R. Schmid of the Institute of Agriculture, University of Minnesota, St. Paul; O. C. Turnquist, also of the Institute of Agriculture, will judge potatoes. The livestock judges will be R. M. Jordan, sheep; R. E. Jacobs, beef cattle; H. G. Zavoral, swine, all of the Institute of Agriculture, University of Minnesota, St. Paul; Axel Hanson, of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune, will judge dairy cattle.

The board of managers will meet at the Northwest School of Agriculture today, February 4, to smooth-up final details.

Arthur Hansen of Ulen Appointed to Securities Post

Former State Treasurer Appointed Commissioner Thursday by Gov. Freeman

Arthur Hansen of Ulen, recently-deposed DFL state treasurer, was appointed Thursday to a six-year term as Minnesota commissioner of securities.

Gov. Freeman announced the Hansen appointment and nine others yesterday, all of them effective today.

The list will be sent to the senate today for confirmation. The senate still has not acted upon 60 appointees whose names were sent up by the governor early in January.

Arthur Naftalin, commissioner of administration, was named to a second two-year term. He is on leave from the University of Minnesota political science department to serve as the state's "business manager."

Raymond V. Vecellio, career state employe who became public examiner following resignation of the late Richard Golling two years ago, will serve a full six-year term.

Francis W. Russell, Cold Spring, was named to serve his fourth six-year term on the three-member civil service board.

Russell first was appointed by former Governor Stassen in 1939.

Hansen succeeds Charles L. Hayes, who has been serving an interim appointment as securities commissioner since resignation of Theodore Ofstedahl last last August. Hayes returns to his post of deputy commissioner, a civil service job.

Radio and Electronics Course

By Ted Mills

TED MILLS

Ted Mills was graduated from high school in Southwestern Missouri and took a pre-engineering course at a small liberal arts college, also in Missouri. In 1935 he received the bachelor degree in electrical engineering from the University of Minnesota.

For six years he worked in several capacities in the audio-visual education service at the University. During World War II he set up, and directed for two years, a school for Negro electrician mates, the first of its kind in the country. Following this he taught regular electrical engineering classes at the University of Minnesota for three years.

After a period of several years of operating an electrical contracting business, Mr. Mills set up the electrical course at the Area Vocational Technical School which he has taught since the school was begun in 1949.

During the past few decades we have come to rely so much upon the science of electricity that almost every activity we engage in is dependent upon it. For a good many years we have used electricity as a method of transmitting power efficiently, quietly, and with little cost from central power plants to our homes and businesses. This power has driven our machines and furnished us with heat and light. For a long time too, but particularly in the last thirty years or so, we have called upon electricity for communications systems telegraph, telephone, radio, and now in the last few years, television. Still more recently there has developed a tremendously large and extremely intricate group of specialized applications of electricity that is generally spoken of as "electronics".

Altho we have been constantly associated with electrical power, communication, and electronics equipment, and are so wholly dependent upon it, there is probably no branch of the sciences that is looked upon so much with awe and misunderstanding. Frequently we hear people say that we don't know what electricity is. Actually we have probably a greater fund of knowledge about electricity than about any other science. Certainly we know the subject down more nearly to its absolute fundamentals than most subjects, and can predict more accurately what we can do with it.

The recent developments in communications and electronics have increased tremendously the need for scientists, technicians, and skilled workers in these fields. Anyone who reads the want-ads knows of the thousands of unfilled jobs. The one great bottleneck in our industry today is the shortage of technical workers of every type and grade, and the greatest shortage of all is for electronics men.

The large, long-established corporations, such as General Electric, Westinghouse, Honeywell, and others, have increased their staffs manyfold. New smaller companies have multiplied in number and variety to supply the needs of industry for communications and electronics equipment. Besides the familiar electrical devices that we all see every day such as motors, telephones, furnace controls, automatic washers, and countless others—less common, but more intricate, machines require hundreds of thousands of people for manufacture, installations, and maintenance. Some of these more complicated devices are calculating machines, automatic flight controls for aircraft, safety control of automatic manufacturing processes, and closed circuit television for use in industry and business. These are only a few of hundreds of special applications that require men with special training.

The military services too are constantly in need of men with a fundamental training in electricity and electronics, to be given further specialized training in their special types of equipment such as radar, sonar, fire control, missile control, etc. The billions of dollars worth of such equipment that they have in use make the electronics man indispensable to the military. We are proud that almost every one of the many young men who have finished our course and then entered the armed services has been accepted for the specialized field for which they had studied. In every case of which we know, they have done outstanding jobs.

The planned purpose of our Radio and Electronics course is to train men for these fields. The entire program requires a total of 2160 hours of training. This is the equivalent of two nine month terms of full six hour days. Most of our students are High School boys who start the course with the eleventh grade and attend three hours a day during the eleventh and twelfth terms. Thus they complete, during these two terms of half days, half of the total program. The course is so designed that a student may drop out at this half way point and still have accomplished a worthwhile unit of the course. The last half of the course consists largely of actual job experiences intended to add to the workers skill and his range of knowledge of the field.

The young man who enters our course as a High School Junior, spends half his day with us throughout the term. Approximately half of this time is spent in classroom work and the other half in the shop, where he works with the tools and equipment of the trade and learns to use them skillfully and correctly. About three months of the first year is spent in developing a knowledge of the fundamentals of electricity and electrical circuits. The last six months he goes on to a thorough study of the fundamentals of radio and electronics. During this time he builds a series of working radios, beginning with a simple crystal set and finishing with a complete modern receiver. The second year is devoted largely to radio servicing. Approximately two thirds of each day is spent in the shop doing practical repair or construction of radio or electronics equipment.

Because of its nature, radio and electronics work, while it requires certain manual skills, needs particularly a highly developed ability to understand technical things. This ability is not so much the result of natural aptitude, but rather is acquired by experience. It may as well be called a mental effort for its development. A student who has already shown an interest in science and math courses and has done reasonably well in them.

If a student does well here it is principally because of his own effort. Our chief job as instructor is to keep him interested enough to make that effort and to provide him with a well arranged series of job situations with which to work and think while he develops this ability. We are inclined to believe that if a student acquires this kind of mental skill and along with it the sure confidence in the rightness of his thinking that naturally accompanies such ability, and then if we can help him to get fired with the ambition to make full use of his talents, we will have done about the best we can do for him. Such a man can adapt himself to just about any job situation that he finds himself in, or that society needs him for. And so we try, in the prosaic daily work of dealing with electrical problems, to keep this kind of development in mind as our real goal. We try constantly to encourage the student to rely to the greatest extent upon his own resources. We try to credit him not so much with the amount of daily work that he hands in as with the progress that he makes. We like to think he is here not just to turn in a days assignment, which he may be able to borrow from the neighbor at his elbow, but rather to learn to do something useful and valuable.

The building space and equipment that we have available for Radio and Electronics is fairly adequate although, as most of you know, we are in temporary quarters where we get along without many needed improvements which do not seem to justify their cost for short term use. We are looking forward eagerly to next year when we hope to be able to move into the new Area Vocational-Technical School building which is now under construction.

With better space and with some additional equipment, we will hope to have an electrical course of which the community can be proud, where we can offer a training that will help to supply some of the technical men that are so much needed now.

Cadillac
His Golden Anniversary at the Wheel!
In Texas, there is a gentleman who is currently driving out his fiftieth year at the wheel of a Cadillac car.
In New Jersey, there is another gentleman who has purchased every yearly model that Cadillac has produced over the past fifty-three years.
These are simply dramatic examples of one of the most remarkable truisms in all motordom: that once a man takes the wheel of a Cadillac, he usually remains at the wheel of a Cadillac!
To be sure, a motor car would have to offer many unique virtues in order to win so generous a place for itself in the affections of so many.
And, in the case of Cadillac, we think these virtues are self-evident.
There is, first of all, quality. No effort of styling or design or craftsmanship is ever spared to make Cadillac the finest possible motor car.
There is beauty and luxury and performance. The car's magnificent styling and interior coachwork have, over the years, brought Cadillac an inbred majesty and elegance that are entirely its own . . . and Cadillac engineering has been the industry's constant inspiration.
Finally, there is reputation. Never in automotive history has another motor car sustained such an abiding public conviction in its own goodness.
So whether you've been at the wheel of a Cadillac for half a century . . . or have yet to spend your first hour in the "car of cars" . . . you should see and drive this newest of Cadillacs.

"UNWISE" STATEMENT

By his irresponsible statements Charles E. Wilson has on several occasions demonstrated his unfitness for his duties as Secretary of Defense. His recent statement that the National Guard has been a haven for draft dodgers might have been overlooked as an unintentional slur on an honorable organization if it were his first error. The charge however is just another mistake in a series of verbal blunders.

Ellard Walsh, long time adjutant general of Minnesota and now serving the Guard as the president of its national association, has promptly and properly called Mr. Wilson's statement a lie. Here in Minnesota we have reason to be especially proud of the record of our national guard units in two world wars and in the Korean "police action."

President Eisenhower referred to Wilson's statement as "unwise." It would seem that Mr. Wilson's inept observations have been tolerated long enough and that a request for his resignation would be in order.

THE HOUSE VOTES YES

Only 61 of the 483 members of the House of Representatives voted against the resolution supporting the Eisenhower doctrine in the Middle East. This means that once again Democrats and Republicans are approaching a dangerous foreign policy problem with a united front.

It probably is true that this resolution adds little to the broad powers with which the President already is vested. It is tremendously important however as a vote of confidence in the administration and as evidence of political solidarity here at home in dealing with world problems. The adoption of this resolution by a one-sided vote leaves no doubt as to that authority. It will be known to all that when the President speaks on these matters he speaks for a united people.

THE DOOR IS OPEN

Dr. Gordon Mork, president of the Minnesota Education Association, discussed various phases of teaching from the teacher's point of view at a Lions Club meeting Wednesday and we liked his talk. It was a down-to-earth presentation of some of the problems in which we all are interested.

He spoke of the need for professionalizing rather than merely unionizing teachers, and we came away wishing he had devoted more time to this point. We still do not know what the teachers have in mind when they speak of professionalizing teaching.

Teaching, at the higher levels, is already established as a profession. Dr. Mork, for instance, with a professorship at the University of Minnesota, has, by all standards, achieved a professional status.

It was interesting to learn that Dr. Mork started his career in education at Lake Bronson in this corner of the state. He still is a teacher as his certificate proved him to be when he applied for that job at Bronson.

We are sure the doctorate and the professorship came to Dr. Mork only after years of continued study and application. At some uncertain point in the course of his advancement teaching to him became not only an occupation but a profession.

If by further professionalizing of teaching it is meant that the professional status should be conferred upon all teachers when they first start teaching then the change probably would serve no good purpose.

The important thing, it seems, is that we recognize the fact that the door to professional status is open to all teachers who wish to advance. Dr. Mork has proven by his own example that there are opportunities in education as in other professions or as in business. For the bank clerk who is satisfied to remain a bank clerk, banking offers very limited opportunities.

SAUD AND TITO

The New York Times did not approve the conduct of its mayor in refusing to extend to King Saud the courtesies usually shown to a visiting monarch. We are sure hizoner did not like to be reminded of a Chicago mayor, some thirty years ago, who had "earned some cheap political popularity among certain groups" but did American foreign policy no good by declaring he would punch the King of England in the nose if he came to that city.

In commenting on the King Saud incident and the proposed visit of President Tito, the Times reminded us that as citizens of a democracy we have some individual responsibilities in such matters. It states:

> ". . . In the conduct of our national foreign policy it is from time to time desirable that the leaders of foreign states visit us. Such visits may be for serious negotiation. They do not necessarily mean that our Government or our people fully approve or even partially approve of all that the visitor stands for. They do mean that the makers of our foreign policy believe this nation stands to gain from the presence of the visitor in this country.
> "Against this background two observations are pertinent. When our Government decides to invite a foreign visitor it should make clear to our people the important considerations dictating such an invitation. In the nature of our society the Government cannot and should not try to dictate to our people their behavior. But it is also the sign of a mature democracy that its people will exercise the self-restraint which is always an implicit condition of a workable democracy. The national security, after all, is the security of all of us, and a guest of the President of the United States is in a real sense the guest of all of us."

REPORT from the GOVERNOR

By Orville L. Freeman

This week I presented to the State Legislature a special message containing my recommendations in the field of education. Since the proposals made in this message affect everyone in all parts of the state, and since education is one of the major functions of state government, I am summarizing some of these proposals in this column. I hope that the citizens of the state as well as the members of the legislature will give them serious consideration.

Increased State Aids

I am recommending an increase in the state's contributions to the school districts for the current maintenance costs of our schools. Costs as well as numbers of students are constantly increasing. Unless the state increases its share of the burden of these costs, the burden on local property taxes within the school districts will become increasingly heavy. I have therefore recommended an increase of five dollars per pupil unit (from $82 to $87) in the [illegible] also recommended increases totalling $6,000,000 in equalization aid, that goes to those districts least able to pay, where the need for aid is greatest.

Junior Colleges

I am recommending that Minnesota, for the first time, give state aid to junior colleges, which are now the only public educational institutions to which the state gives no assistance. This aid will help the school districts that now maintain junior colleges. I hope that it will also encourage the establishment of other junior colleges, especially in those parts of the state where there are now no public or private institutions of higher education. This should make it possible for more of our young people to attend college.

Scholarships and Loans

It is estimated that at the present time fewer than half of those high school graduates who have the necessary ability now go on to college. Some of them are prevented from going because of lack of adequate financial resources. At a time such as this, when we need far more people with college education than are now available, we owe it to the welfare society as a whole to extend to qualified youth opportunity for such education.

I am therefore recommending that the State of Minnesota set up a scholarship and loan fund, to be used to help remove the financial barrier that now prevents many young people with [illegible] for a college education from continuing their education beyond high school.

School Construction

I am recommending several measures to assist school districts in meeting the serious problem of providing adequate school buildings and facilities. Because of our increasing number of students, this problem is more serious than ever before; and I hope that the adoption of these new provisions will help to eliminate the shortage of classrooms that, in many areas, has meant real crowding and hardship for both students and teachers.

WASHINGTON Quiz

Q—Is Federal Aid to Education an outgrowth of recent Federal policy?

A—No. While education as such is considered primarily a matter of local and state responsibility, Federal aid to education goes back to 1862 with the passage of the Morrill Act, which originally applied assistance in the form of grants of public lands. Following this Act, later laws developed a system of federal aid to education which included assistance to state land grant and mechanical arts colleges; agricultural extension work; vocational education and rehabilitation; federal grants for school construction in areas of military installations and federal grants in aid on a money basis.

Q—How do members of Congress qualify for retirement benefits and how long must they serve to become eligible?

A—Since August 1, 1946 members of the Congress must pay 6% of his base pay which is deducted from his salary each pay day. For service prior to that date the deduction is somewhat lower. He must serve at least six years to be entitled to annuity on basis of pay and service. If he is age 62 or over, upon leaving office his annuity will begin the first day of the month following the month his service terminated. If he is not 62, his annuity will begin on the first day of the month in which he attains that age. If he becomes totally disabled after completing five years, he would be entitled to annuity beginning the first day of the month following termination of salary, irrespective of age. If he retires prior to his six year service he receives a refund of his contributions plus 4% interest compounded annually.

Q—Are Senators restricted to the number of committees they may hold membership?

A—Yes. But a majority party member may serve on as many as three committees. A Representative has slightly less scope of membership.

Additional information or assistance on veterans benefits may be obtained by writing or visiting the VA Contact Representatives at the Minot VA Hospital, or the Bismarck or Grand Forks VA offices.

Q—Could I take a correspondence course under the War Orphans education program?

A—No. The law prohibits correspondence training. War Orphans education must be taken in the school or college classroom.

Q—How do I go about paying my GI insurance premiums once a year instead of every month? I understand I can save a little money that way.

A—First, find out how much you will have to pay. Your local VA office, or the VA district office where you pay your premiums, can tell you. Then send VA a check for that amount, explaining in a letter that you are paying on an annual basis.

Q—Is it possible to change courses of study under the Korean G. I. Bill more than once?

A—No. The law allows only one Change of course—and no more, under any conditions.

Q—I am planning to get a G. I. business loan. No real estate is involved. How much money does the law allow me to borrow?

A—The law places no restrictions on the amount you may borrow from a private lender. The [illegible] up to the lender. The law, however, does limit VA's guarantee on non-real estate business loans to 50 per cent of the loan up to a maximum guarantee of $2,000.

Guard Service Is Cut for Active-duty Men

A reduction in the period of obligated service for National Guardsmen who complete a tour of active duty has been announced by Major General J. E. Nelson, Minnesota adjutant general. These reductions are based on policies recently announced by the Secretary of Defense.

Men between 17 and 18½ who are members of the Guard or who join before April 1 can reduce their obligations by as much as six years by taking six months' active duty for training. Men in that category who do not take the active duty for training are obligated to serve in the Guard or Ready Reserve until age 28. By taking the six monts' training their period of obligated service is reduced to a total of five years.

Men who enlist in the Guard between ages 18½ and 26 incur a six-year obligation provided they take six months of active duty training. This is a reduction of two years from the former eight-year requirement.

Present Defense Department instructions require that after April 1, 1957, all men joining the Guard will be required to take six months' basic training at a Regular Army post.

Men returning to civilian life after a hitch in the Regular Army have had their Ready Reserve service obligation reduced also. Regular Army enlistees who complete a three-year enlistment may now join a National Guard unit for one year and then transfer to the Standby Reserve. The requirement was formerly two years of Guard service.

Army inductees who join the Guard after completion of two years' active service will be eligible for transfer to the Standby Reserve after two years in the Guard. This is a reduction of one year from the former three-year Ready Reserve requirement.

Booth Fisheries to Quit Operating at Warroad Soon

The Warroad branch of Booth Fisheries Corporation is closing its 50 years of operation on Lake of the Woods, according to information from Jim Eisenrich, manager of the office.

The branch was started in 1906 by Armstrong Fish Co., a subsidiary of Booth. This was in the days when steam tugs pulled barges loaded with fish from the various fish stations around the lake into Warroad for shipment. One of the main targets of the fishermen in thos days was the huge sturgeon, which was sought for its eggs for making caviar. The sturgeon population went down rapidly after the dam at Kenora was built, making it impossible for the huge fish to run into Lake of the Woods and replenish the population.

The Booth has operated a number of well known boats on the lake over the years. There were the steamers NaMaPuk, Rover and Isabelle, and more recently the diesel powered Scout and the Bert Steele, which is still operating.

U. S. Boy Scouts Note Scout Week February 6 to 12

'Onward for God and My Country' Is Theme of This Year's Observance

The nation's 4,500,000 Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, Explorers, and adult leaders will mark the 47th anniversary of their organization during Boy Scout Week, February 6 to 12.

The observance has as its theme, "Onward for God and My Country" with a special emphasis on "Duty to Country."

Sunday, February 10 is Boy Scout Sunday. Scouts and leaders will attend religious services in uniform in countless churches of all denominations. Many sermons, addressed to Scouts, will touch on some aspect of the Boy Scout Week theme.

In hundreds of communities Scouts, their parents, and institions sponsoring Scout units, will unite in paying their respects to the volunteer adult leaders whose contributions of time and effort in behalf of youth makes these units possible.

National Scout officials say that 48.7 per cent of all Scout units—and there are 111,000 of them are made possible by the sponsorship of churches and synagogues of all faiths. Civic groups make possible 30.8 per cent, while schools sponsor 19.9 per cent of Scout units in all three-age levels.

At the Boy Scout Week celebrations many units will review its program highlights and the successes of the first year in the four—year program, "Onward for God and My Country," camping and other outdoor activities, and planning for participation in the Fourth National Jamboree which is expected to attract more than 50,000 Scouts, Explorers, and leaders for a week of camping together at historic Valley Forge, Pennsylvania next July 12 to 18.

Sixty-one free nations have Boy Scouting.

Increases in Turkey Output May Be Small

Many growers and industry men attending the Minnesota Turkey Growers association convention in Leamington hotel look for the 1957 production increase to be smaller than predicted, reports the Minneapolis Tribune.

A Jan. 1 survey showed Minnesota intended to increase turkey production 19 per cent to 11,371,000 birds. A 10 per cent boost was indicated for the entire United States.

Those who are predicting the smaller increase base their conclusions on these factors: orders for poults are slower than last year, some breeder flocks have been slaughtered, some growers over-estimated their 1957 intentions and warnings against overproduction have had an effect.

Not so, maintains Clem Thurnbeck, Forest Lake, Minn.

"I thing we'll get that predicted increase," he declared. "Those statistics have been right in the past and I think they'll be right this year. This cycle — growing more birds year after year — will go on as long as the creditors don't lose money."

Kenneth Ford, manager of the feed division at North Dakota State Mill, Grand Forks, said farmers in northwestern Minnesota and North Dakota are "not pessimistic but are a little cautious."

"I can't see any big increases for our area," he continued. "I think the warnings against overproduction have had an effect."

"There's still a feeling of indecision on the part of many farmers as to how many turkeys they want to grow," said a northern Minnesota turkey processor.

Famed Physician Backs Heart Fund

Dr. Paul Dudley White Supports February Drive

Two of America's top heart specialists visited Minnesota this week to help focus public attention on the 1957 Heart Fund drive.

They were Dr. Paul Dudley White, Boston, President Eisenhower's heart consultant, and Dr. Edgar V. Allen, Mayo clinic, president of the American Heart association. Both urged support of the state Heart Fund campaign, which is underway this month with a goal of $475,000.

Speaking at a kickoff rally in Minneapolis, Dr. White outlined a plan for protecting the youth of tomorrow against heart disease of today.

"Many of the 20-odd types of heart diseases are getting to be preventable," declared White. "Our big challenges for the future are to solve coronary heart disease (heart attacks) and high blood pressure."

Dr. Allen called for renewed emphasis on heart research and establishment of a Student American Heart Association to interest promising school children in entering the field of medical research.

Five hopeful facts about heart and blood vessel diseases have developed as a result of heart research in recent years, White pointed out. He listed them:

1. Some forms of heart disease can be prevented. . . a few can be cured.
2. All heart cases can be cared for best if diagnosed early.
3. Almost every heart condition can be helped by proper treatment.
4. Most heart patients can keep on working, often at the same job.
5. Your "symptoms" may or may not mean heart disease. Ask your doctor.

Local Heart Fund drives are underway in 85 Minnesota counties and over 400 communities.

House Rejects Pay Bonus by Close Margin

Proposal to Provide Expense Money May Be Reconsidered

A resolution to authorize payment of daily living expenses to members of the Legislature was voted down in the House Tuesday after the Senate had approved it, 34-30.

The House vote was 65-58, with 66 votes needed. A last minute shift from "aye" to "no" by Rep. George Christie, Minneapolis conservative, made the difference. He changed his vote while the voting machine was recording the total.

Rep. Christie said after the session that he changed his vote because "if the liberals did not vote for it I feel they shouldn't get it."

The House was voting on a concurrent resolution to grant each out-of-town member expenses of $12 a day up to a total of 100 days and each Twin Cities member $8 a day.

While the Senate debated the issue for 45 minutes, the House voted without debate after listening to a brief explanation by Rep. Fred Cina of Aurora, the liberal majority leader.

Cina said the proposal had been criticized in some newspapers but not any more than when we voted ourselves what was called a bonus" at the end of each session.

The matter may not be dead. It could be revived on a motion to reconsider by a House member who voted against the resolution Tuesday.

If the resolution is not revived, the Senate could vote its members expenses in a separate resolution.

In Senate debate, the expense allowances were described as "an honest and forthright" approach to the problem and criticized as a use of power without real backing from the voters.

Cu s Harris Heads N.V Concert Group; Next Concert Feb. 21

Mabey, treasurer; Mrs. Art Hamilton, secretary; Norman Peterson, membership chairman. Mrs. Melville Simon—was appointed a board member to fill an existing vacancy.

The treasurer's report for the current season indicates the association made a substantial gain over the previous year, enabling it to complete the season without any deficit. The board expressed its appreciation of the success financially.

Other action included selections of programs for the 1957-1958 season. Tentative selections included the Ballet Russe Quartette; The Choralers, a vocal octet; Lillian Mernick, pianist; and either a coloratura or contralto vocalist, depending on availability. Artists will be obtained from Allied concert services as was the current series.

The next concert in the current series will be Ralph Magelssen, baritone, on February 21st at 8 p.m. in the highschool auditorium. Mr. Magelssen will present a program ranging from selections of the masters like Handel, Mozart, Schubert through the moderns such as Copeland and will conclude his program with selections from the "Merry Widow;" "Song of Norway;" and "Brigadoon."

Mr. Magelssen is a native of Minnesota, receiving his degree in music from the University of Minnesota, won a scholarship to the Juilliard School of Music in New York, and then continued his studies in Germany and Italy. For the past six seasons he has been the leading baritone with Vancouvers summer theatre and has sung notable roles in 8 of Broadway's most successful productions.

Members of the association may arrange to bring out of town guests by contacting one of the board members prior to the concert, it was announced.

Grain Dealers to Finance 4-H Grain Projects in 1957

Will Finance Projects from Seeding Time Until After Harvest in Fall

Grain dealers are helping to sponsor 4-H grain projects in Pennington county, according to County Agent Paul Stelmaschuk. The projects will be financed by dealers from spring until after the grain is harvested. The grain used by the 4-H members will have to be from the approved varieties for this area listed by the University of Minnesota. It will be a certified or registered grade.

Harry Oen Receives Jaycee Outstanding Young Farmer Award

Harry A. Oen, well-known young farmer of Rocksbury township, has been selected by the Thief River Falls Junior Chamber of Commerce to be the recipient of the chapter's annual outstanding young farmer award, it was announced today by Jon Metusalem, Jaycee agriculture committee chairman.

Oen will be a guest at the state Junior Chamber's agricultural banquet in Austin February 26, and will be honored locally this spring at the annual Jaycee-FFA dinner.

Among the farm improvement practices which won the award for Oen, the following were cited by the committee:

Crop rotation with assistance of the Soil Conservation Service; surface drainage on 240 acres, with SCS aid; use of commercial fertilizer, return of crop residue and use of manure and green manure to build up soil fertility; use of chemical weed sprays and of improved grain and forage varieties; constructed a self-feeding bunker silo; labor-saving devices, such as skidding haystacks to farmstead in one operation; built a granary and installed an elevator; and cleared and broke an additional 30 acres.

Oen was graduated with distinction in 1950 from the University of Minnesota College of Agriculture. He had started farming in partnership with his father, the late Henry Oen, and his brother Raymond in 1948, and since 1952 has been in partnership with Raymond. He is married and the father of four children.

Another factor in his selection, said Metusalem, was his outstanding record of participation in community affairs. He currently is president of the Tri-county Sugar Beet association, and has served for four years as township supervisor, as well as having been a member of the Farm Bureau for 13 years and president of the local unit.

He has served on the board of trustees and finance committee of Trinity church, on the board of directors of the Community Chest and as township chairman for the March of Dimes.

During his twelve years in 4-H club work, Oen won six trips to the Minnesota state fair. He was an honor student in Lincoln high school, where he won two letters in football.

Reports Indicate Missouri Power to Reach City in Fall

Various problems of civic interest were discussed at the annual meeting of Jobs Incorporated, held Tuesday night in the council chambers of the municipal auditorium. Following the reading of the secretary's report and a statement on the organization's finances by secretary Robert J. Lund, President William LaFave called on several of the members for reports on community progress possibilities.

Mayor Orion Belch and A. F. Berge, president of the council, discussed the city's position in relation to Missouri River power. Dr. Belch stated that a contract for bureau power had been entered into and that negotiations are proceeding satisfactorily for the wheelage service to be provided by Minnkota Power Cooperative.

Under the plan now under consideration Minnkota will deliver bureau power to a sub-station here to be built by the company. It is estimated that seven months will be required for this installation and the city officials expressed confidence that the service would be available here this fall, reducing substantially the city's power costs.

W. E. Dahlquist reported on actions taken by the Northwest Development Association of interest to this community. This led to a discussion of the junior college question and the broader educational facilities that will be made available here, starting with the next school term, when the area vocational school will adopt an expanded program.

Les Ihle discussed changes that had taken place in the business of the community during the past year and future prospects. For the first time in many years, he noted, there had been vacant buildings in the business section. Changes now under way and the remodelling of sev-

Mercury Rises in Area During Week

Reaches High Mark of 21 Wednesday Afternoon

Bright sunshine and warmer temperatures prevailed over the Pennington county area this past week as recent cold waves moved into other parts of the country.

Temperatures were warm here compared with those a week earlier when the mercury stayed below zero for the most part. The low temperature so far this week was 5 below Monday, Feb. 4. The high was reached Wednesday when a 21-above reading was registered here.

The KTRF forecast calls for fair to partly cloudy skies through Friday. It will be somewhat colder today with little temperature change tonight. A warmup is expected Friday.

Highs predicted will be 10 to 15 above and the lows tonight will be from 0 to 5 above. Winds will be light westerly today, becoming light southeasterly tonight. The Saturday outlook is for warmer temperatures.

Another long-range forecast recently issued by the U. S. Weather bureau makes some changes in the 30-day weather prediction for the month. While an earlier 30-day forecast had called for below normal temperatures and precipitation in February, the new long-range forecast calls for above-normal precipitation and below normal temperatures in area of the Northern U. S. including our northern Minnesota area.
